Mike,

Thank God it's with you in football this the last week of year. You have been spring football. It's been good playing help. I wish football with you and Cross Country were this year. I'll see you in August. Tell me this summer and we'll do something.

Mike I have enjoyed working with you in football this year. You have been a great asset and not in the same season because I enjoy both. Your friend,
Kevin

Once Upon A Time . . .

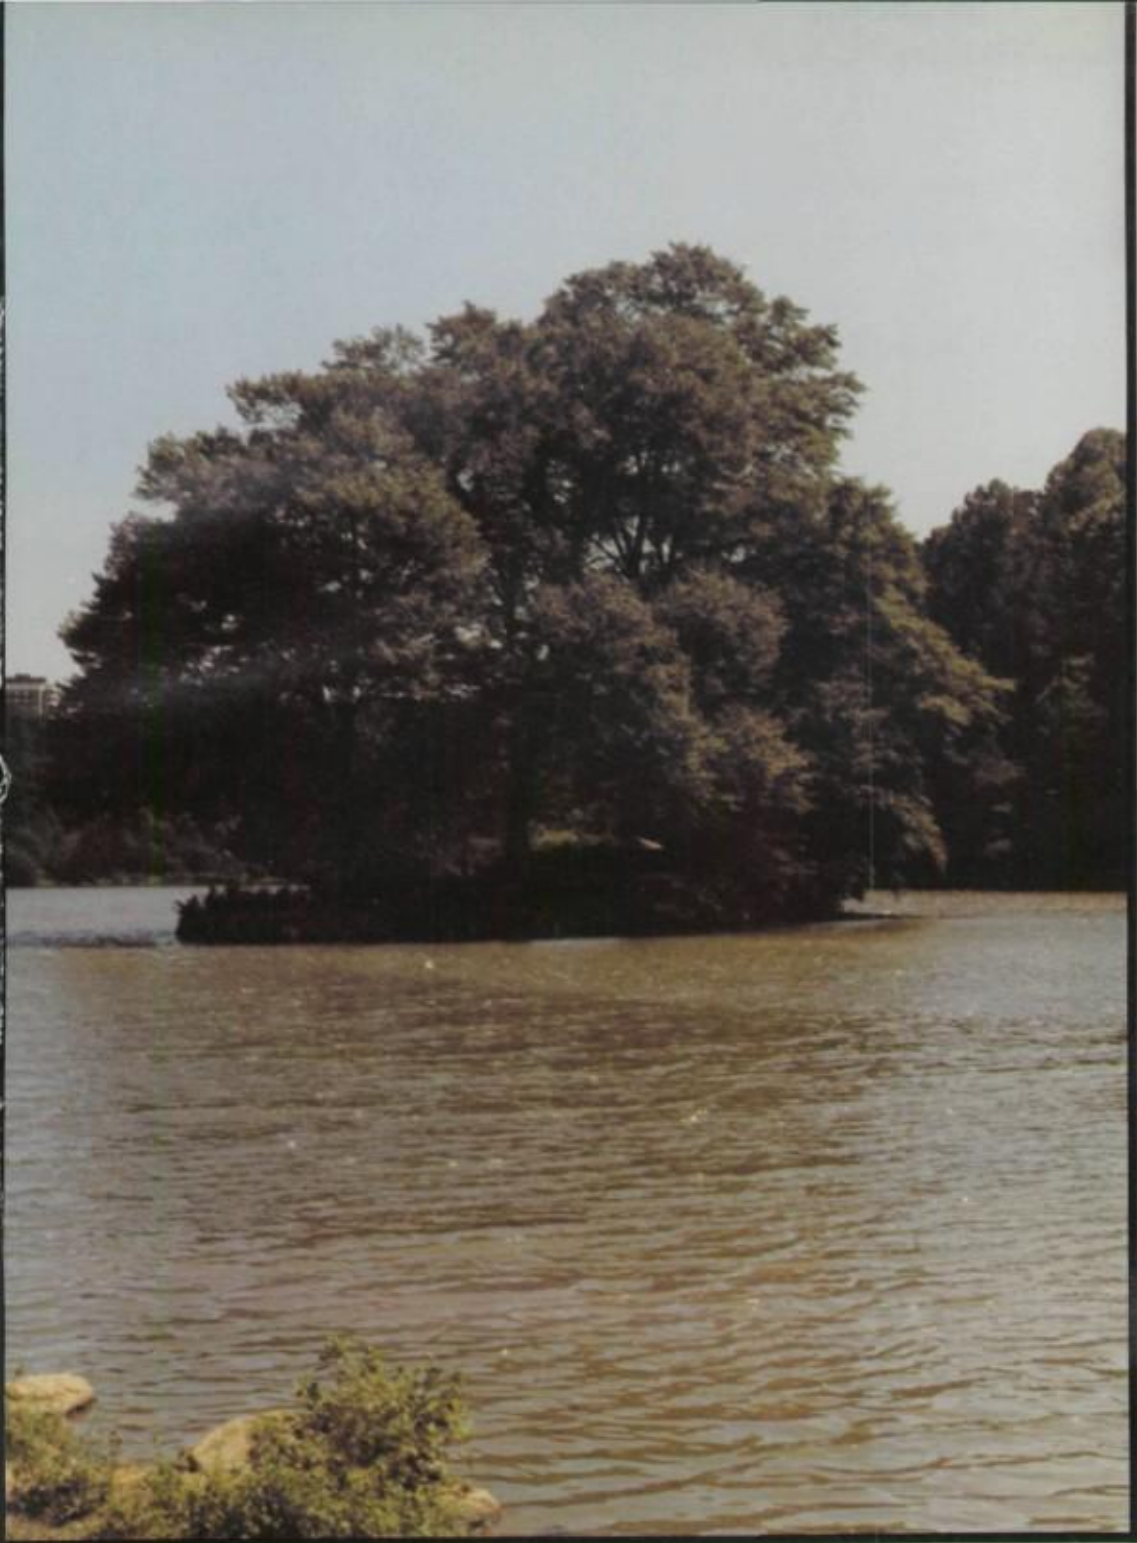

... in a small and rural community, the local citizens eagerly awaited the arrival of Emory University faculty from Oxford, Ga., which marked a distinct change in their lifestyles. From this moment onward, the community anticipated increased growth and commerce, and perhaps, a new independence. Gradually, as time passed and the area became more densely populated, the citizens also realized that in order for them to match their community's growth, they must establish a local school for the children of the incoming Emory staff members.

Thus begins the legend of Druid Hills. In it's earliest days, the school which is now known as Druid Hills was begun as an elementary school. It was started in 1919 and housed in the Fishburne Building, still presently located on Emory Campus.

Nearly a decade later, the present main building was constructed to accommodate kindergarten through eleventh grade. As the school evolved and the students achieved a new sense of unity, new traditions and cultures came hand in hand ... a pride similar to that of their namesake developed. The Druids, those mystical pagan priests of a dead religion, seemed to reflect the modern ideals of the new community school.

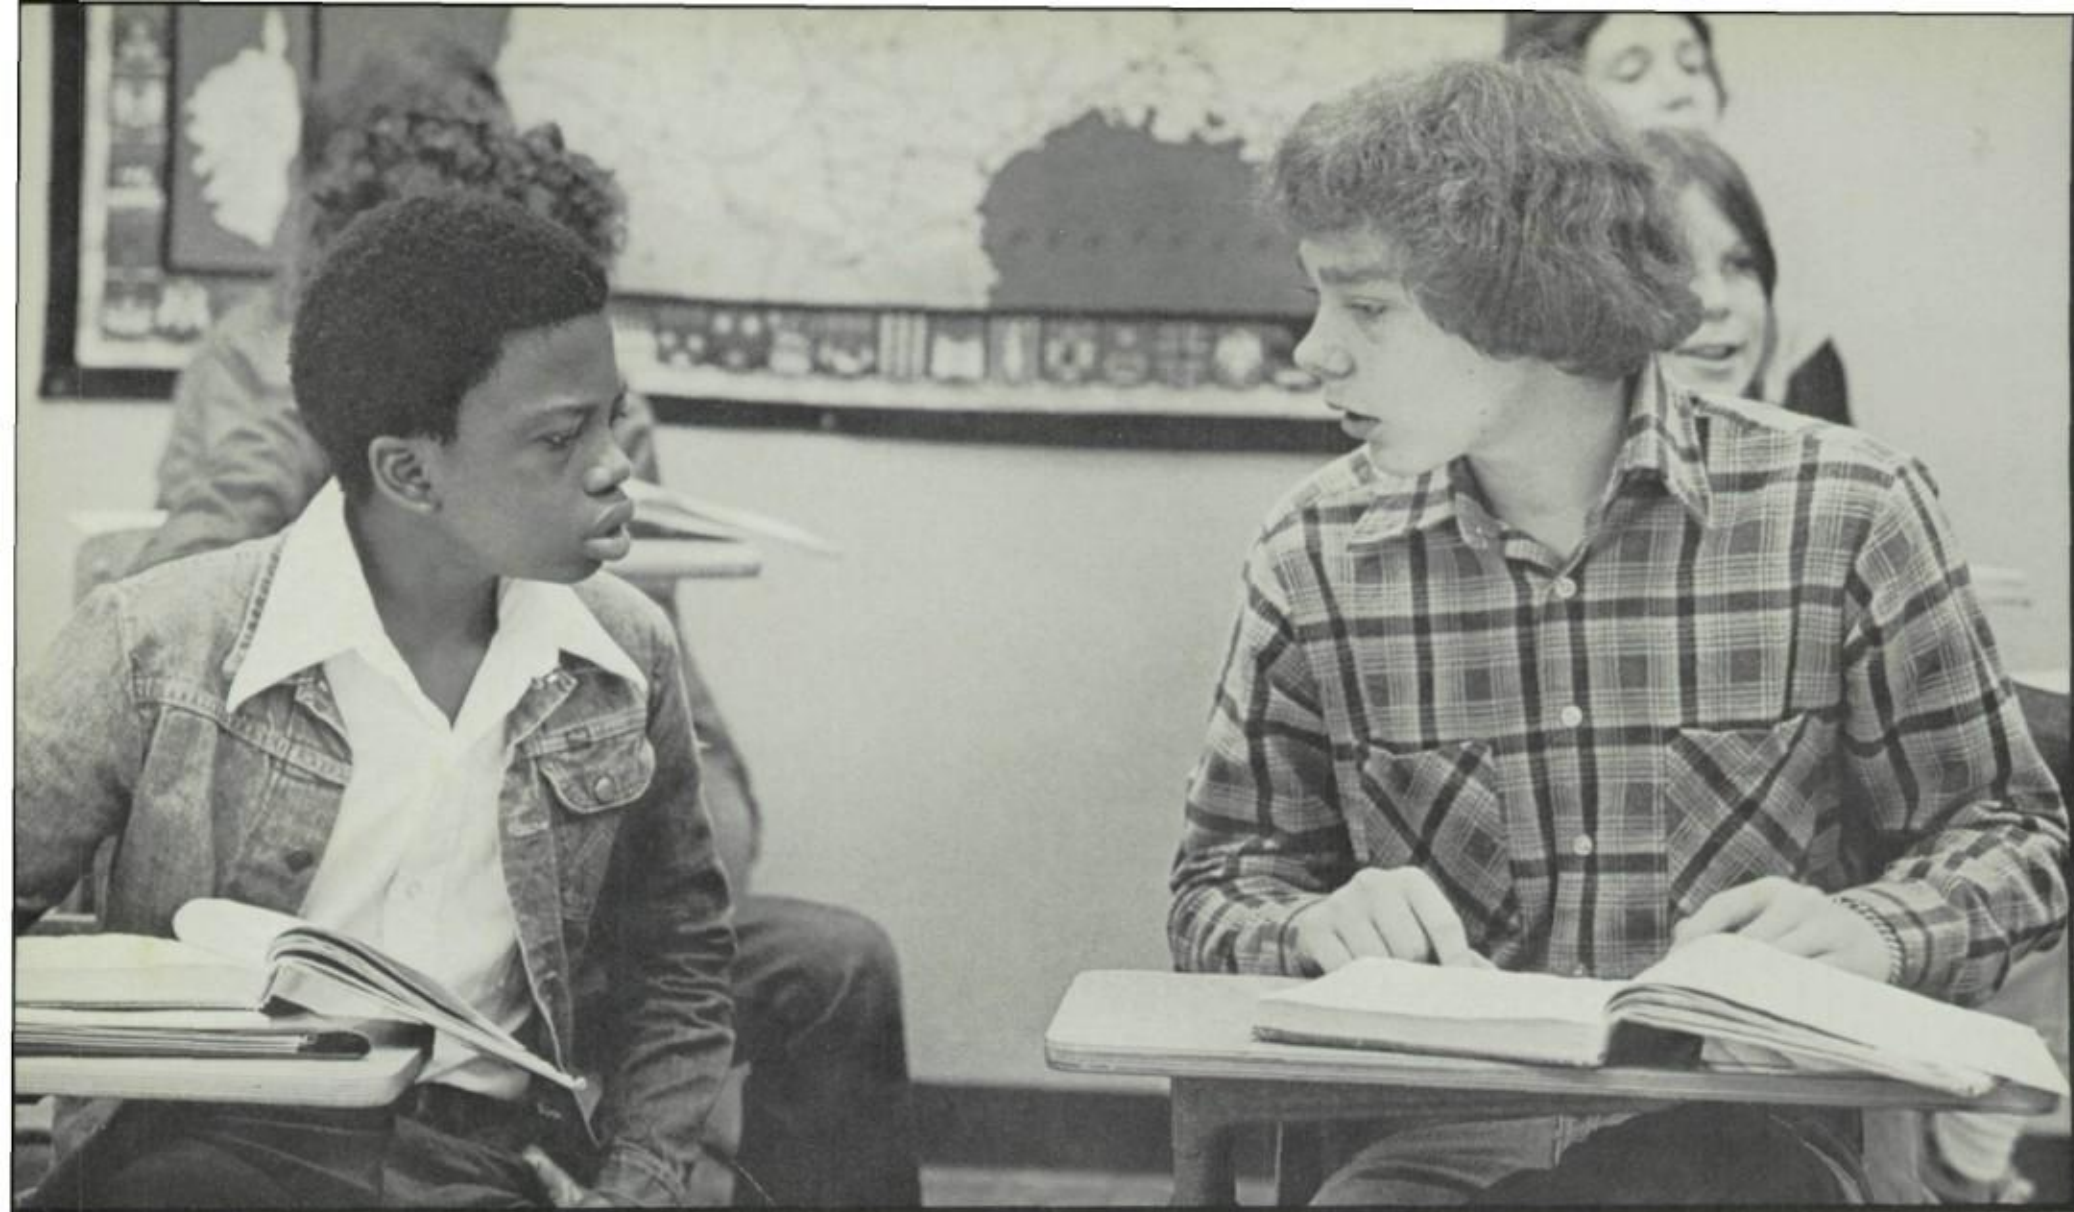

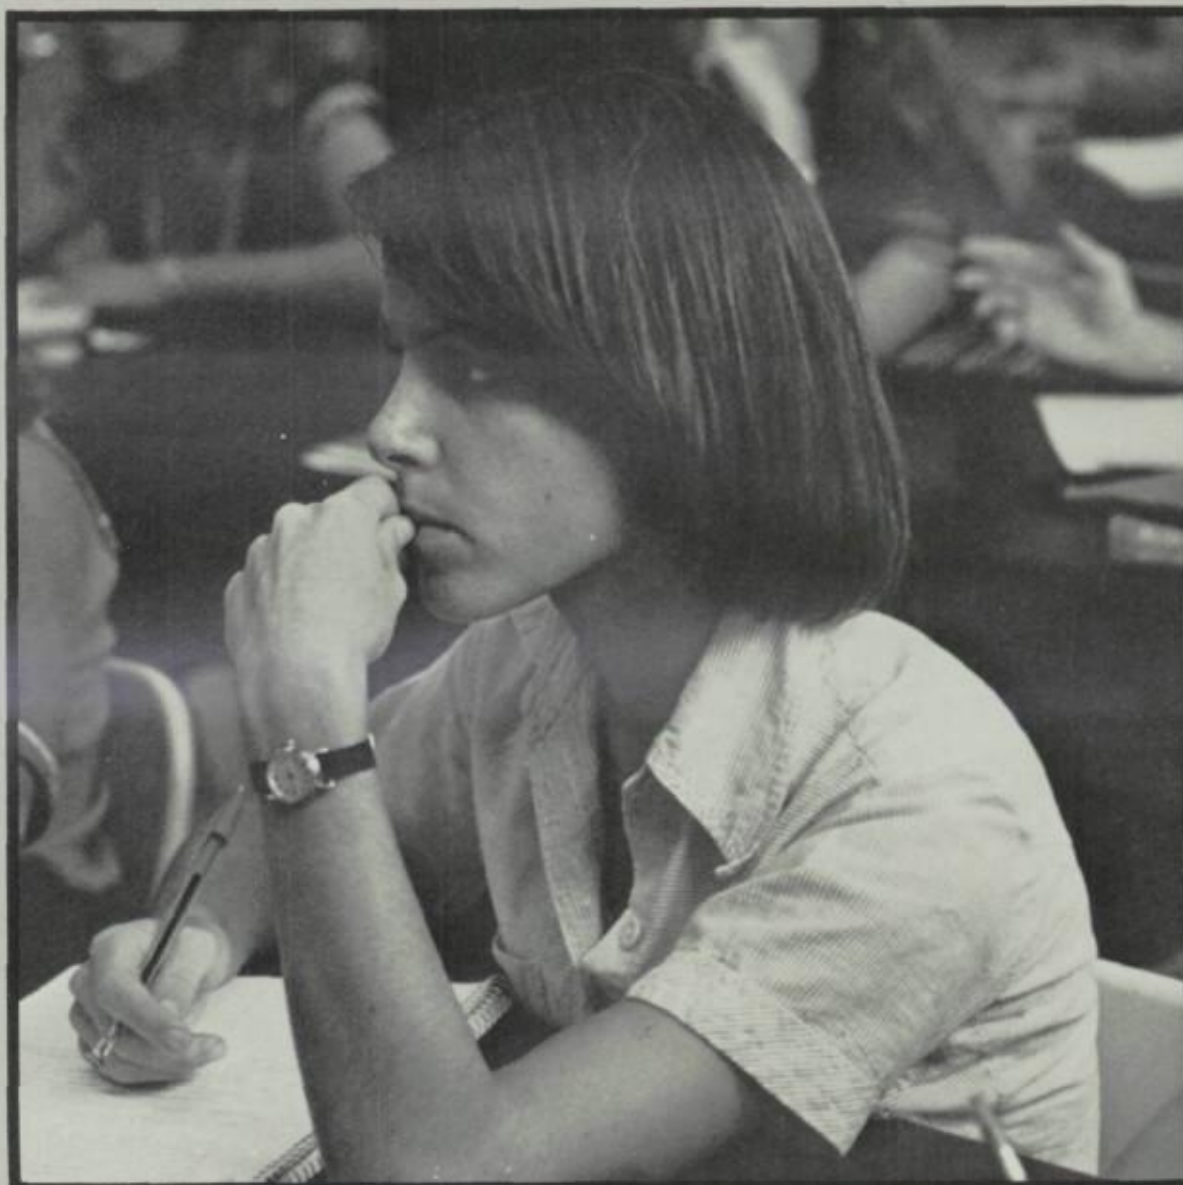

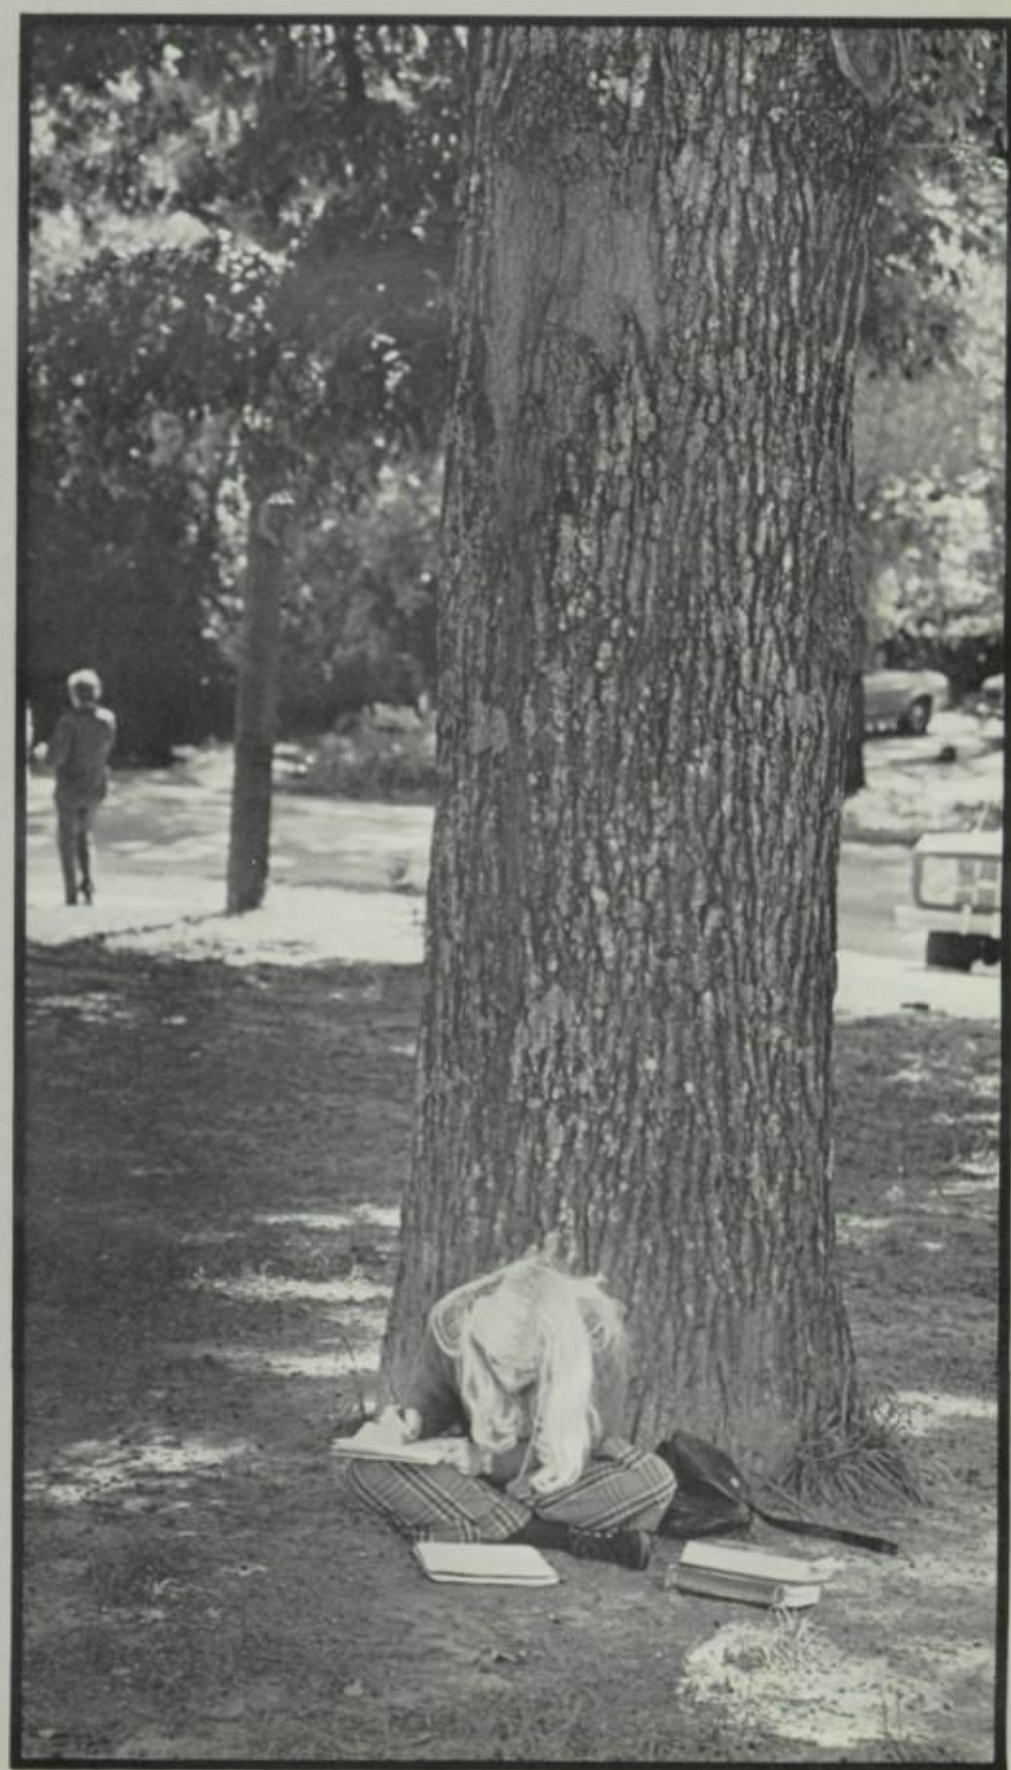

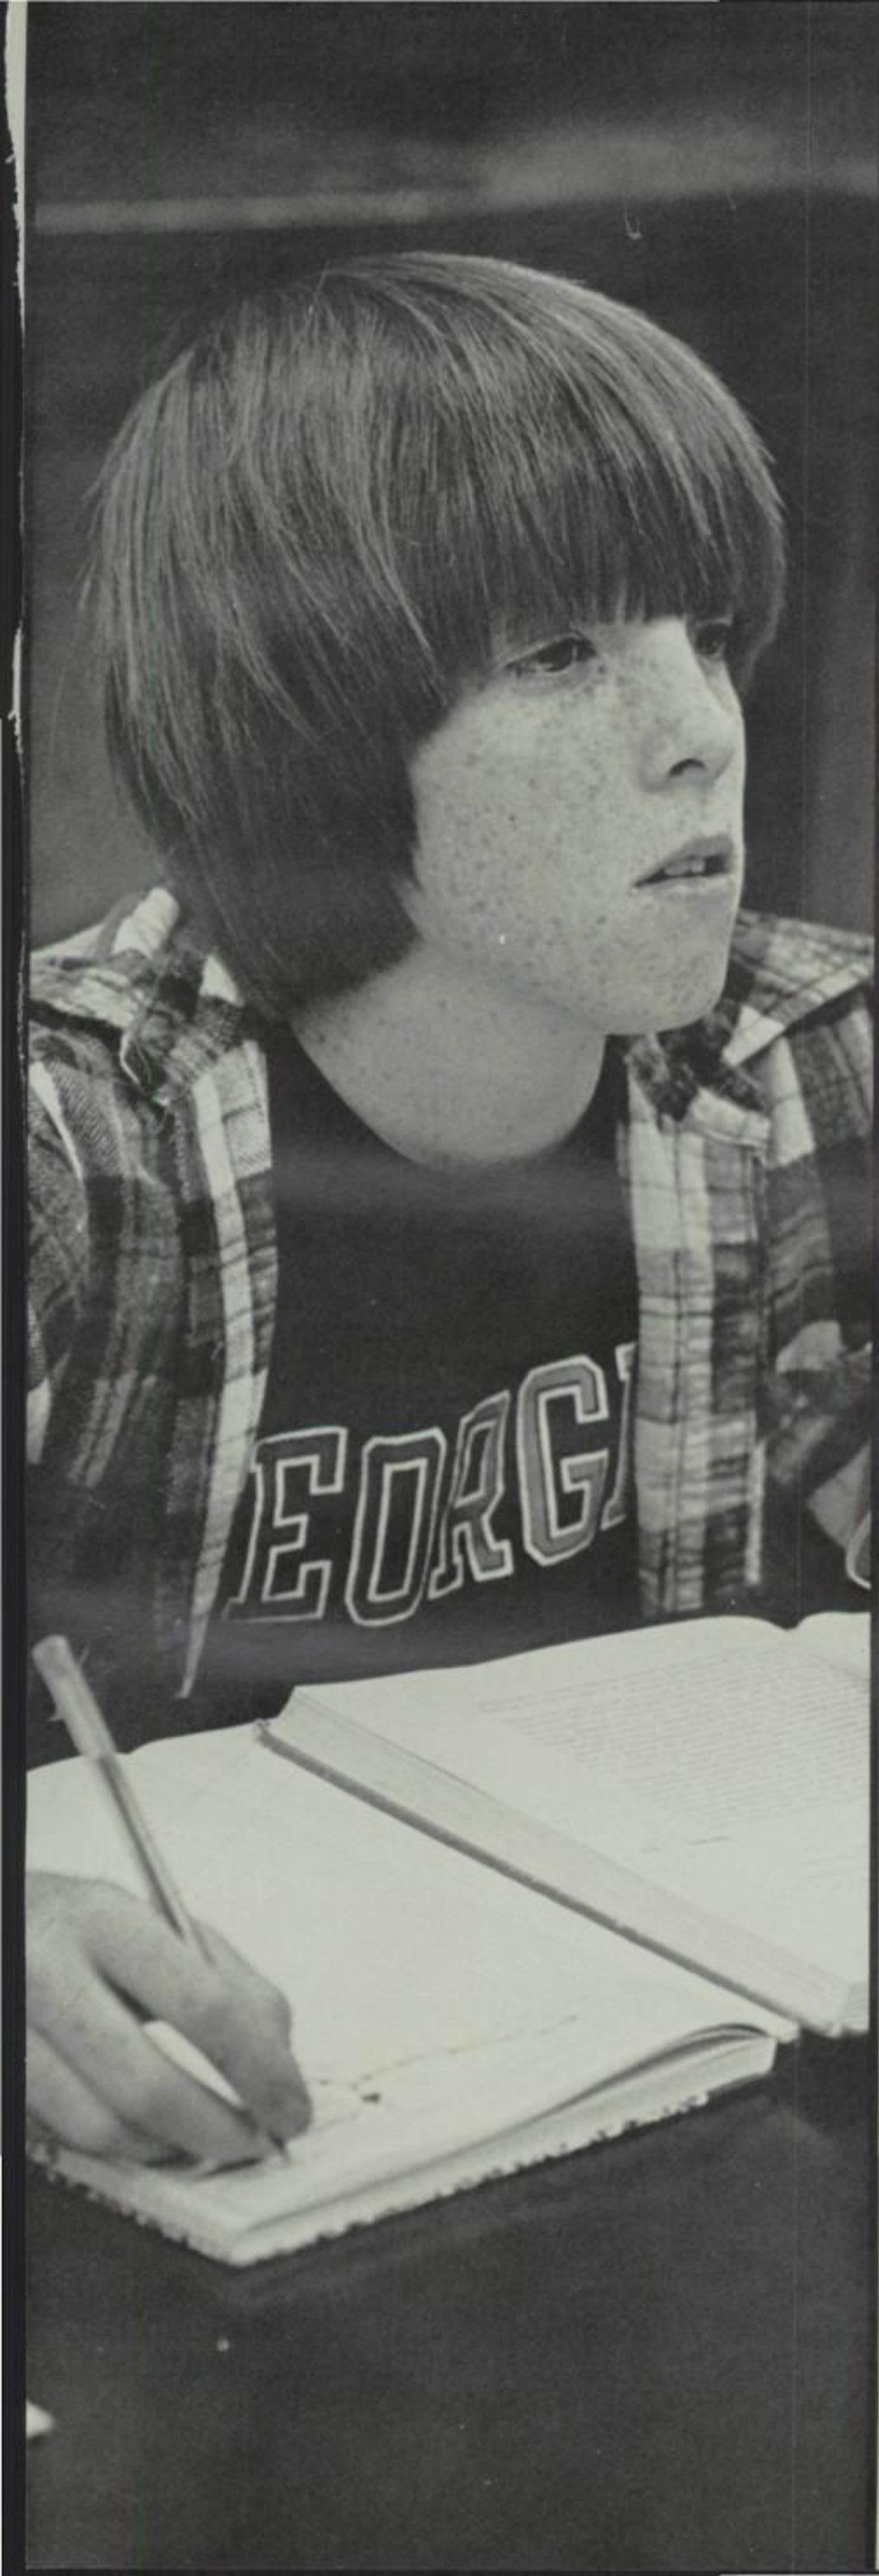

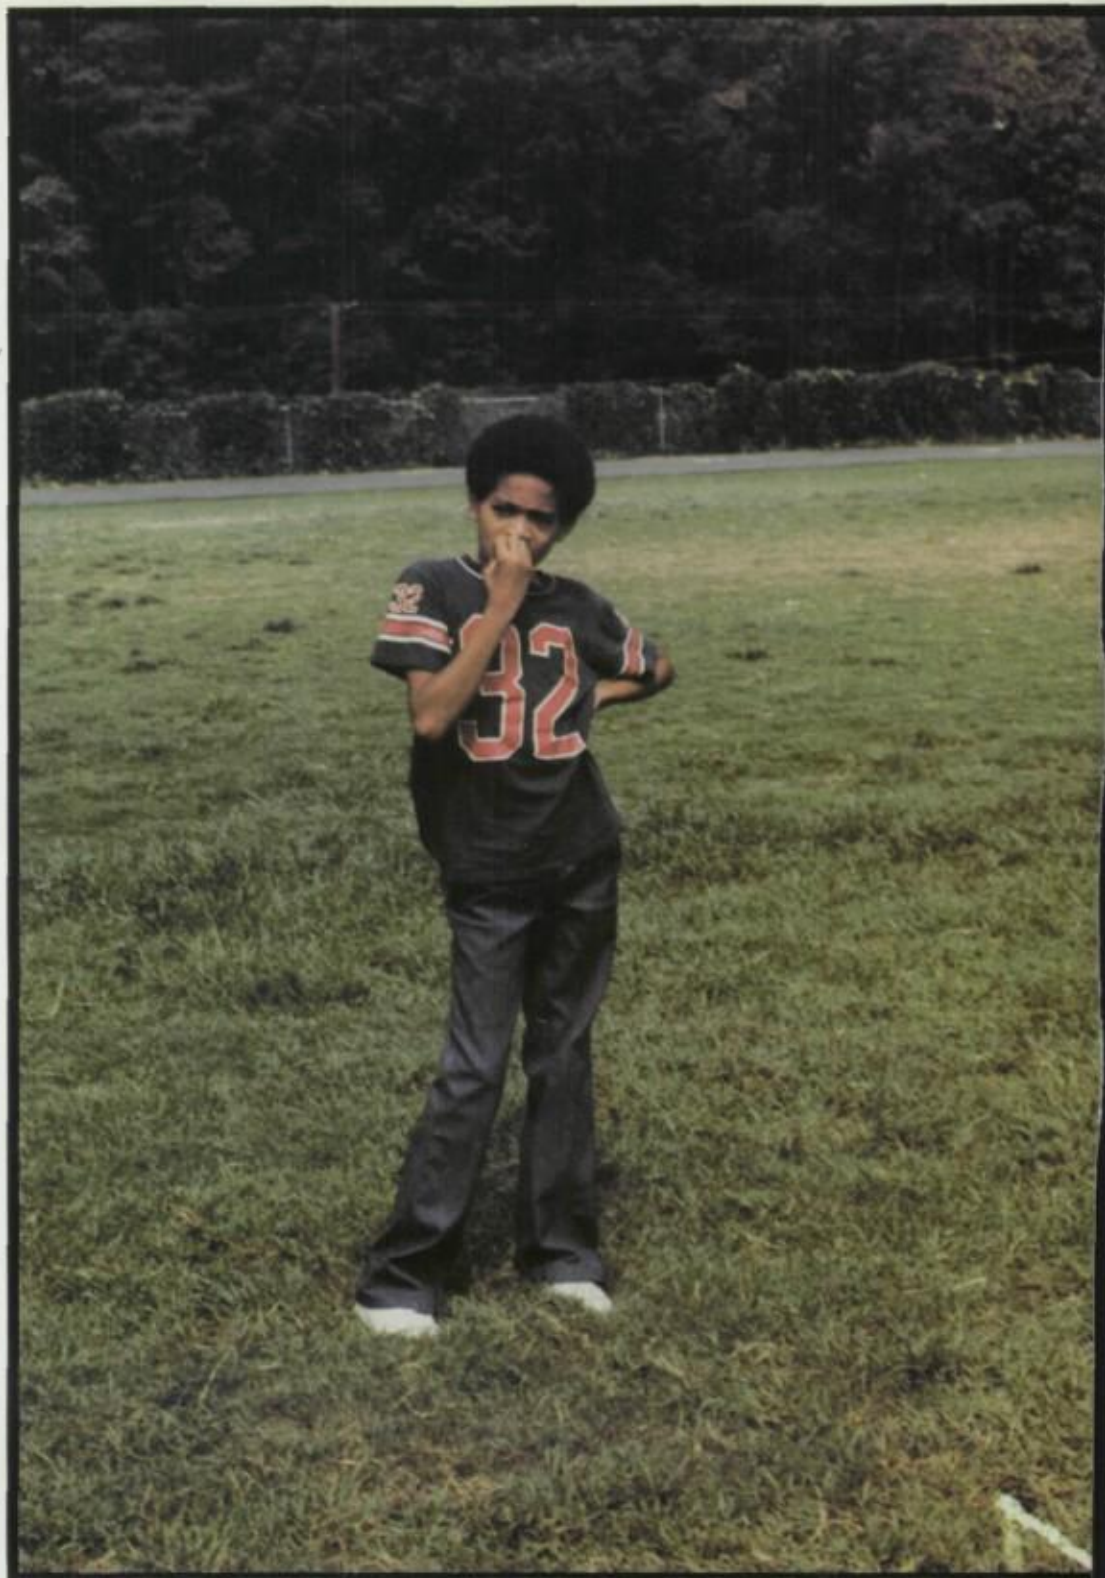

Fifty years ago our founding fathers acknowledged the strange and foreboding priests and reasoned that their school was destined to become as famed and feared as the old Druids. Their school was to excel both scholastically and athletically while assuming the dignity and great powers that the Druids wielded. They named their small structure Druid Hills, whose ideas and achievements would influence the surrounding community.

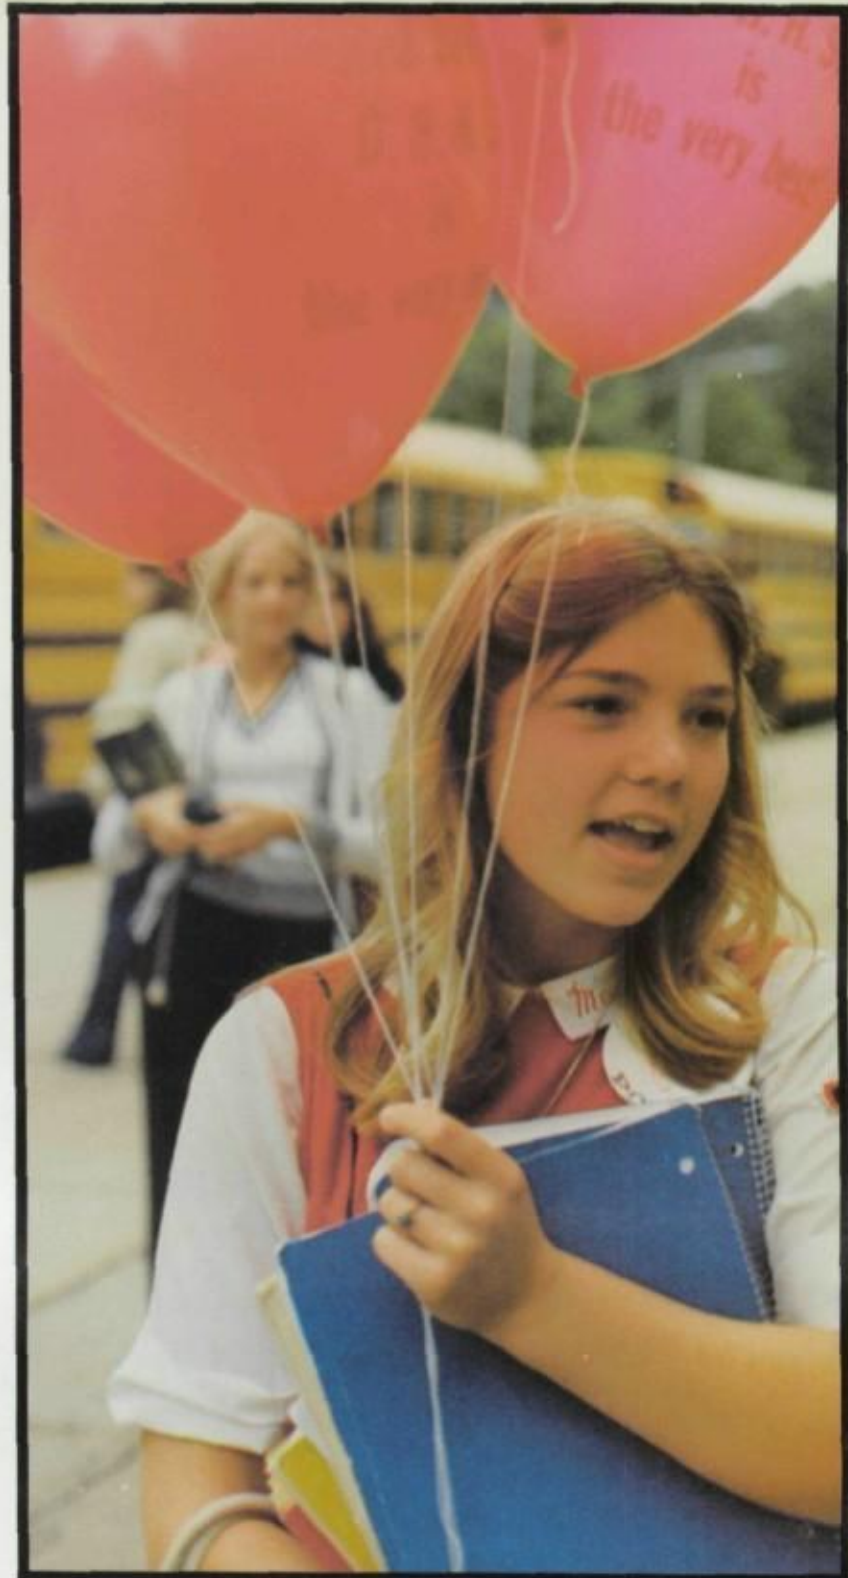

It has been said of the Druids that they were unwilling, at first, to share their system of training with the common people. They soon revised this manner of thinking when they realized that the system was, while selective as far as materials go, one which could not be denied the general public. Secondly, the Druids felt that the student should rely on the written word more than the exercise of his memory. Likewise the students of Druid Hills coped with their instruction.

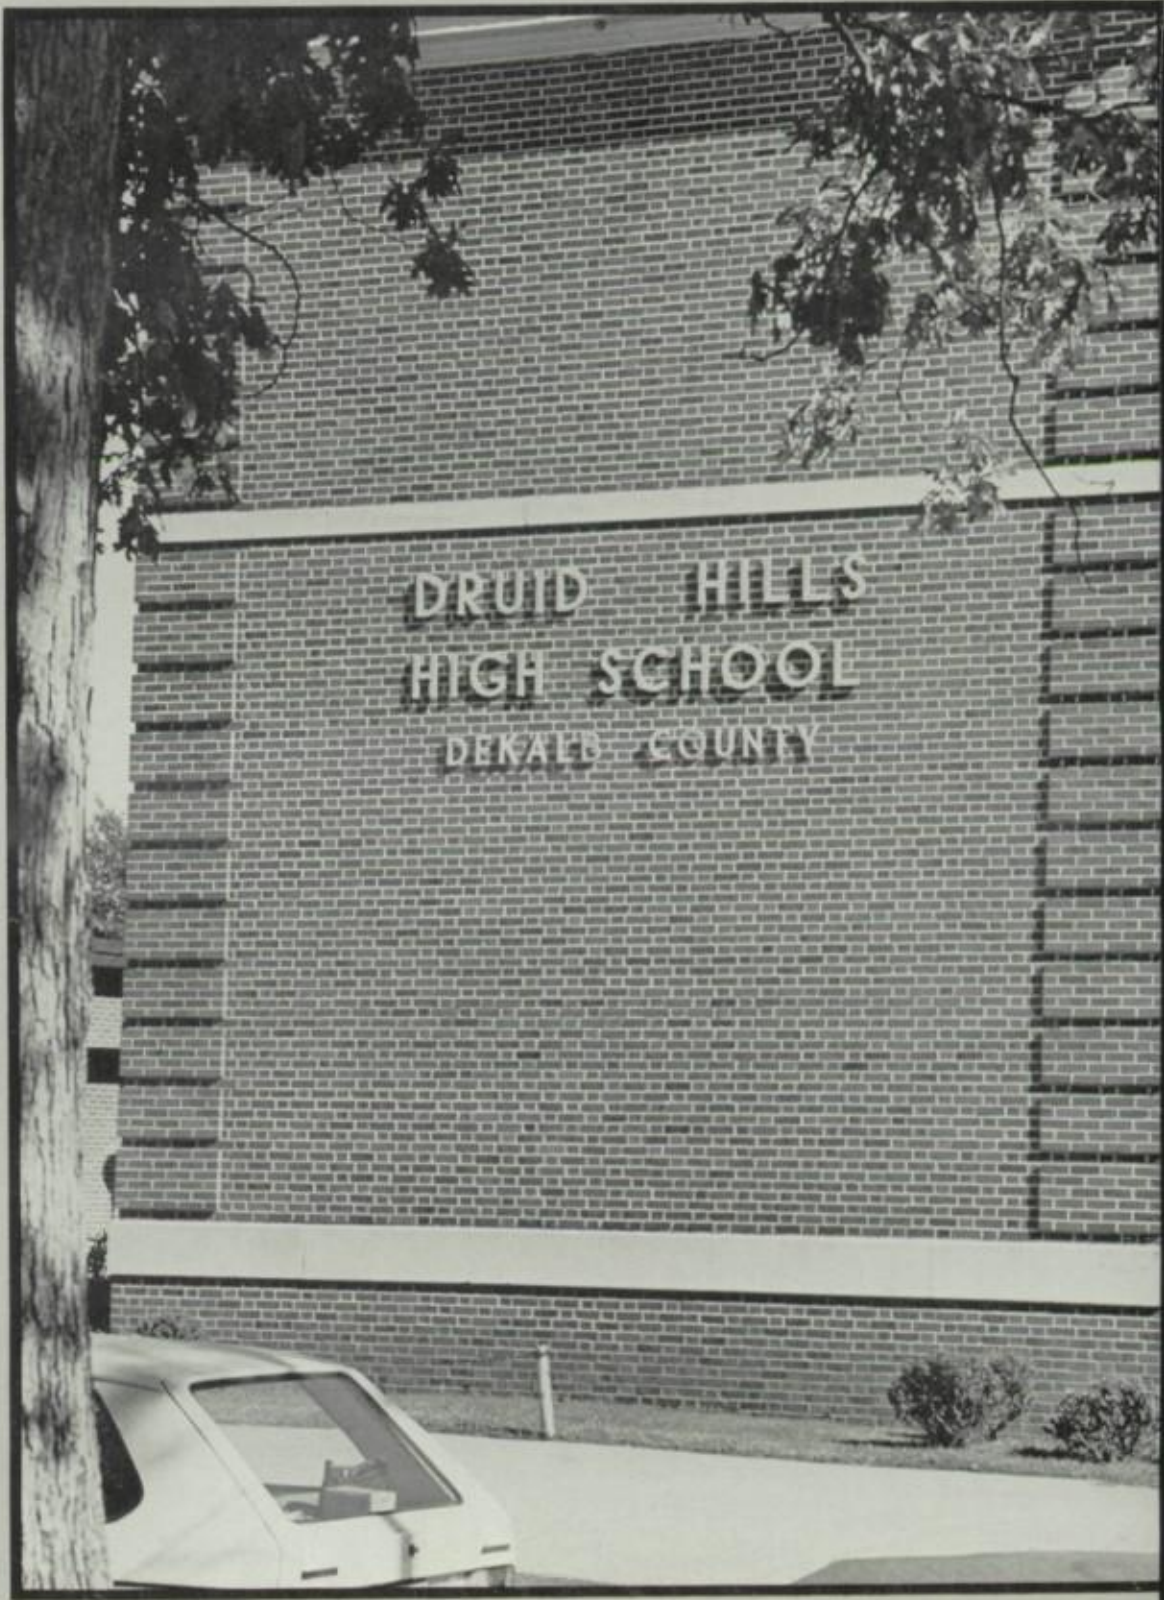

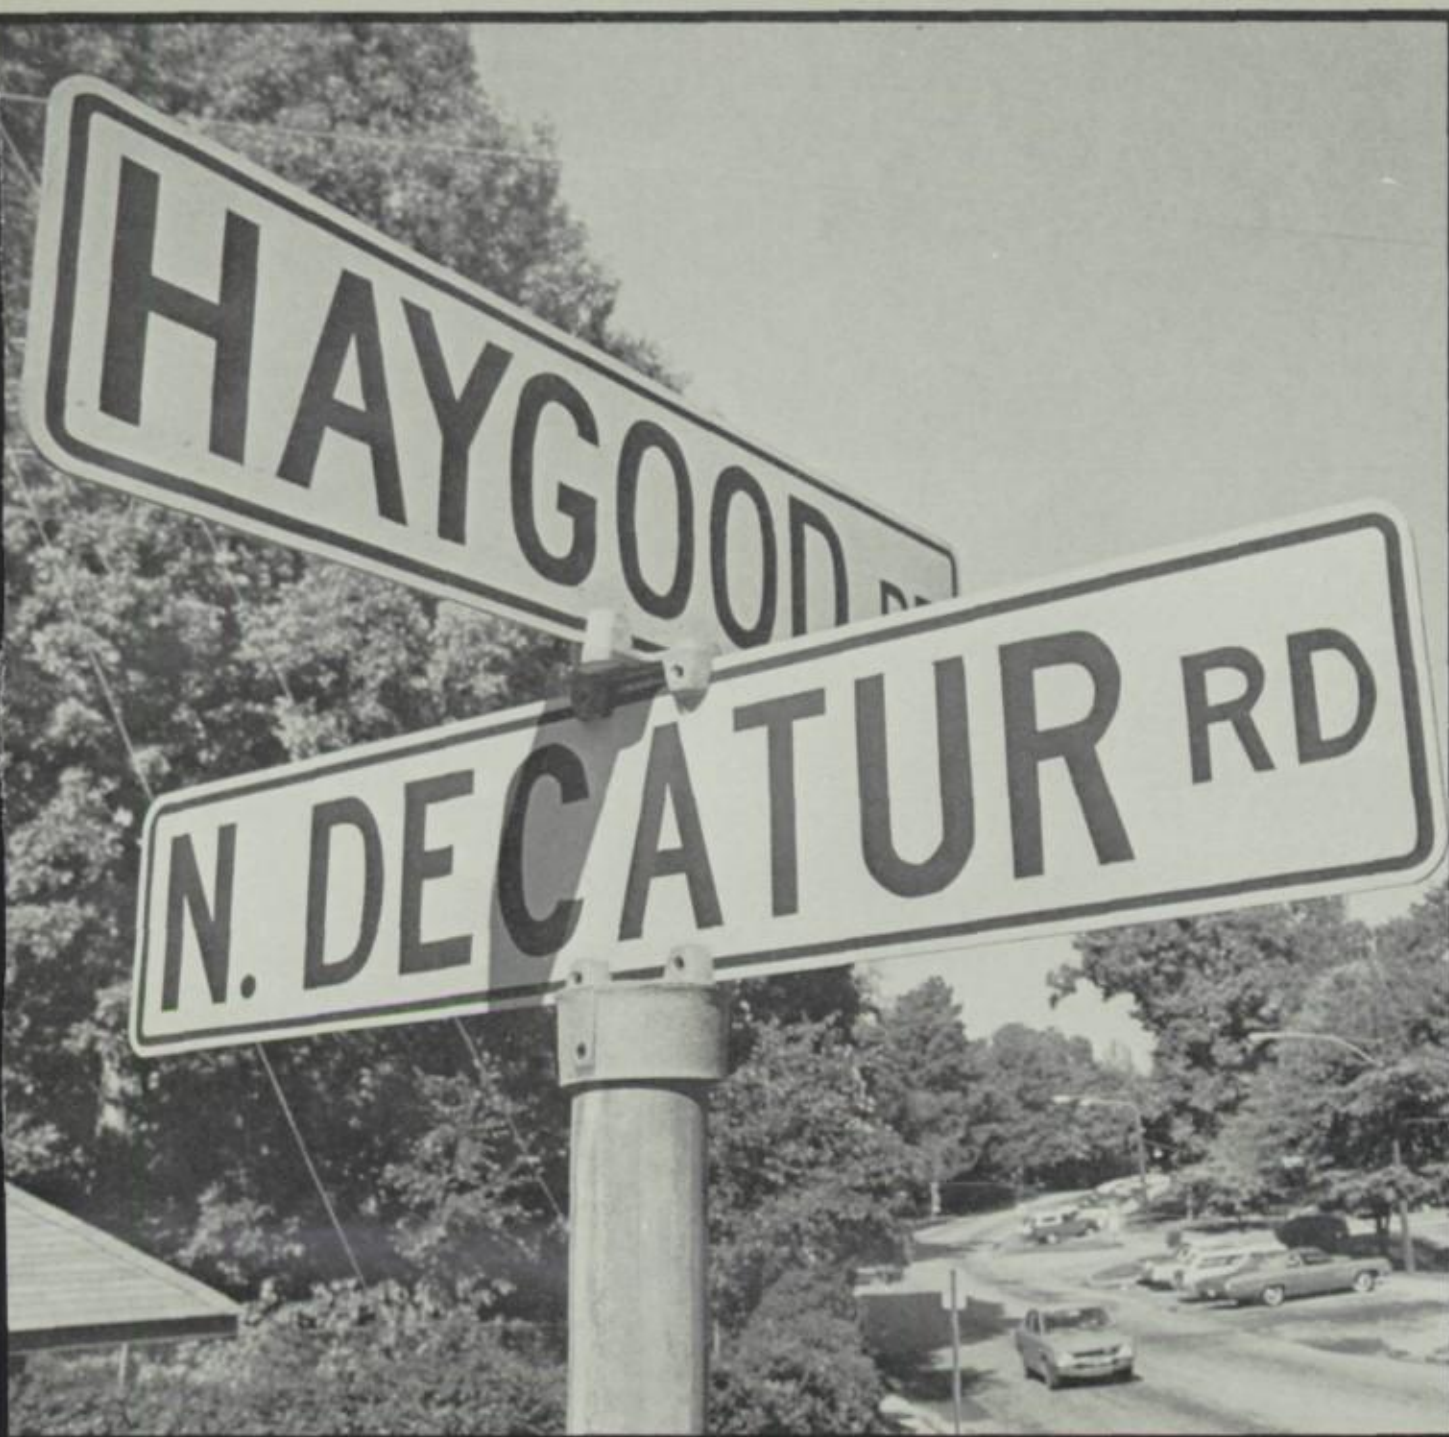

The student body was already anticipating great academic achievement and with their proficient faculty, they soon fulfilled their own high standards. They learned the value of an education where participation and individual skill marked the true measure of studying and the true merit of a student could be judged by his actions, not by the grade he received.

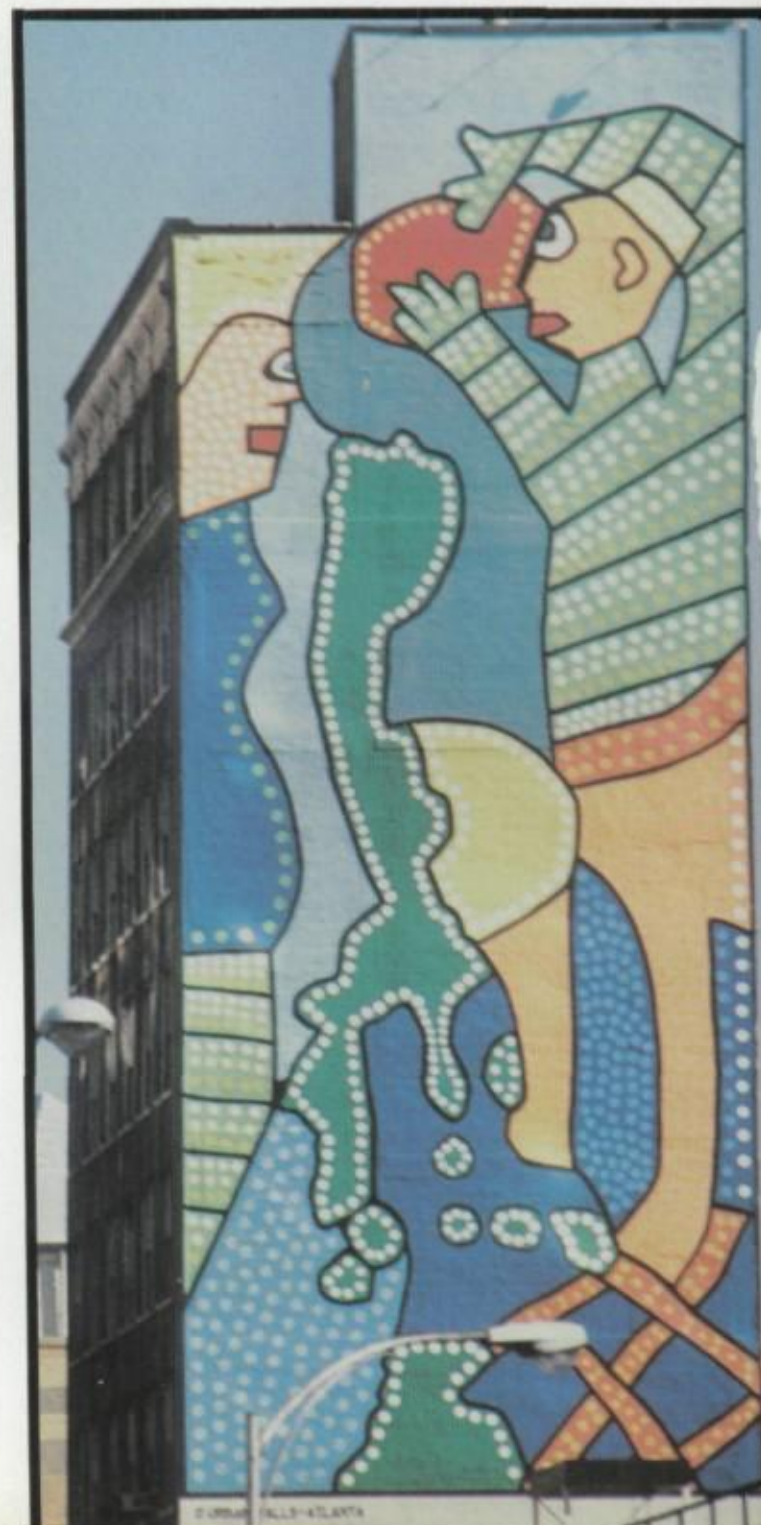

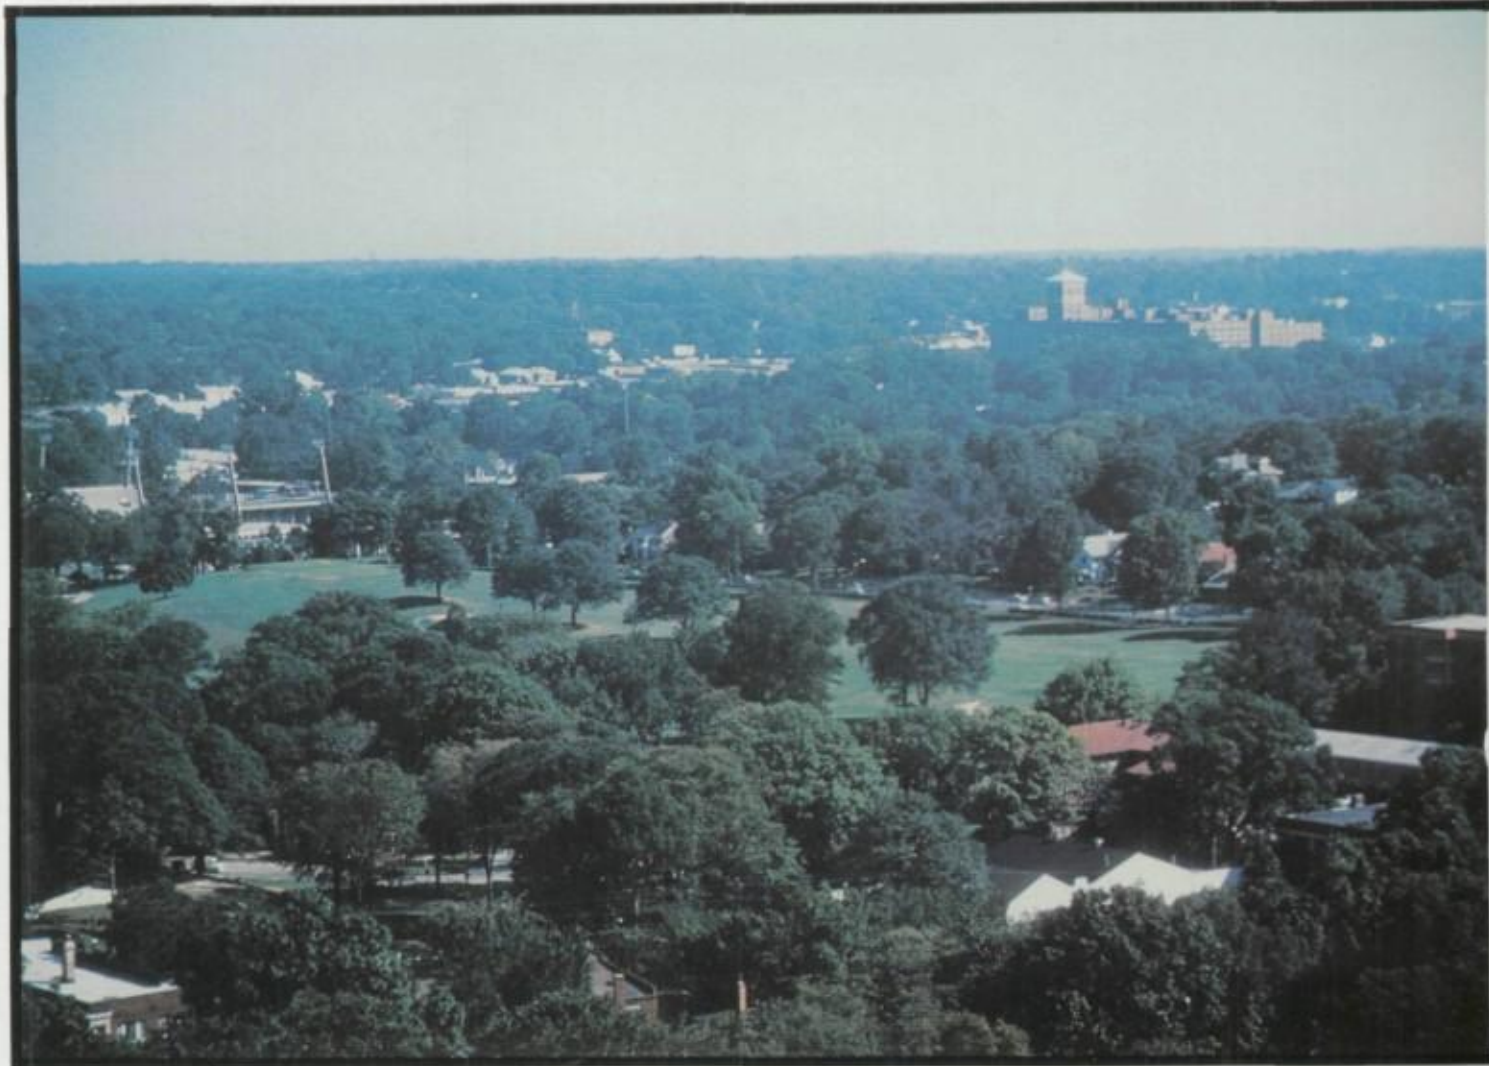

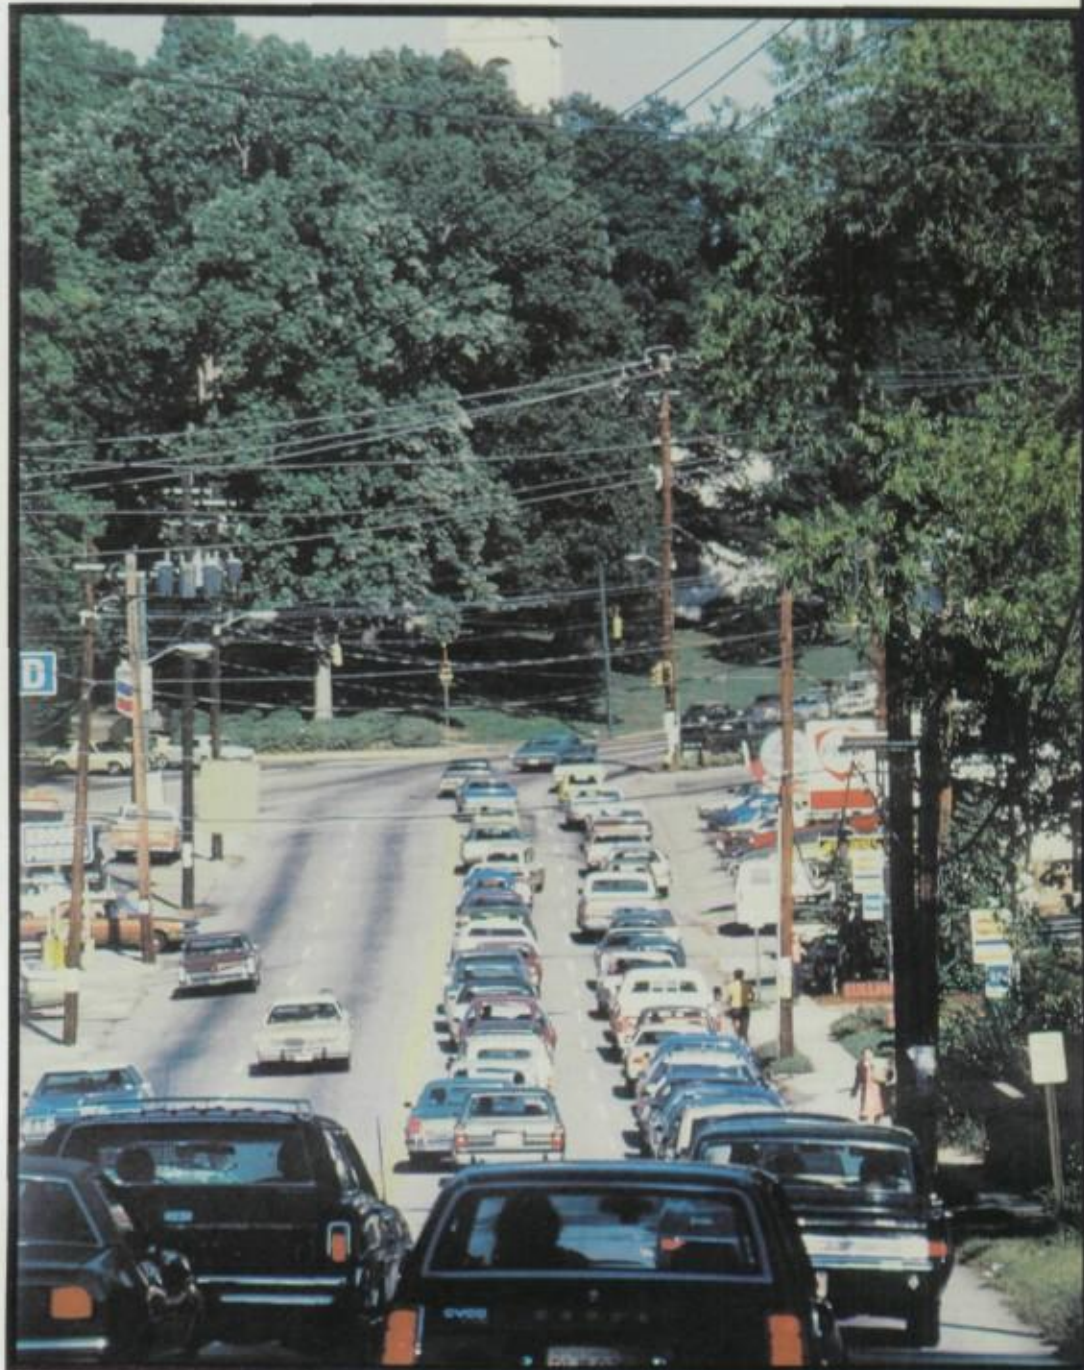

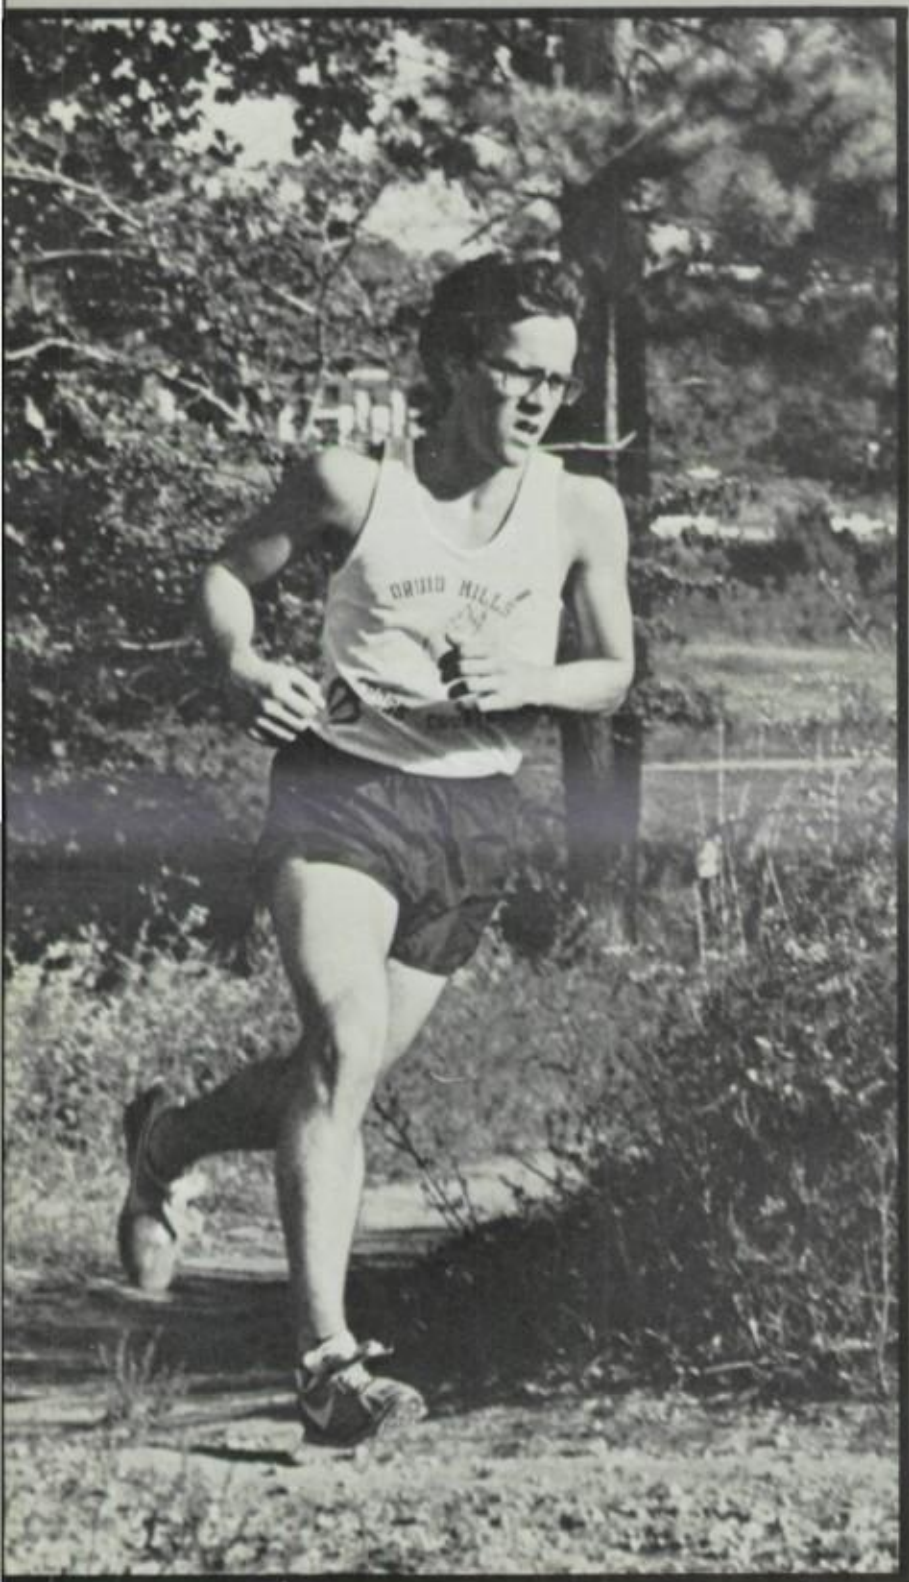

In 1948 the school and school district gave up independent status and voluntarily became a part of the Dekalb County School System. Within three years the North Building was constructed, originally to house elementary school students. By 1959 it ceased to be an elementary school with the construction of Fernbank and became an official part of the high school campus. In 1962 the new cafeteria was built and in 1965 the current gymnasium opened replacing the original which was remodeled to serve as the stage and music area of the new gym.

As the Emory area continued to flourish, the Druid Hills district expanded rapidly. The once prosaic neighborhood was a bustling community ... new and numerous stores and shopping centers, fine restaurants and fast food emporiums, and the ever present and increasing problem of traffic.

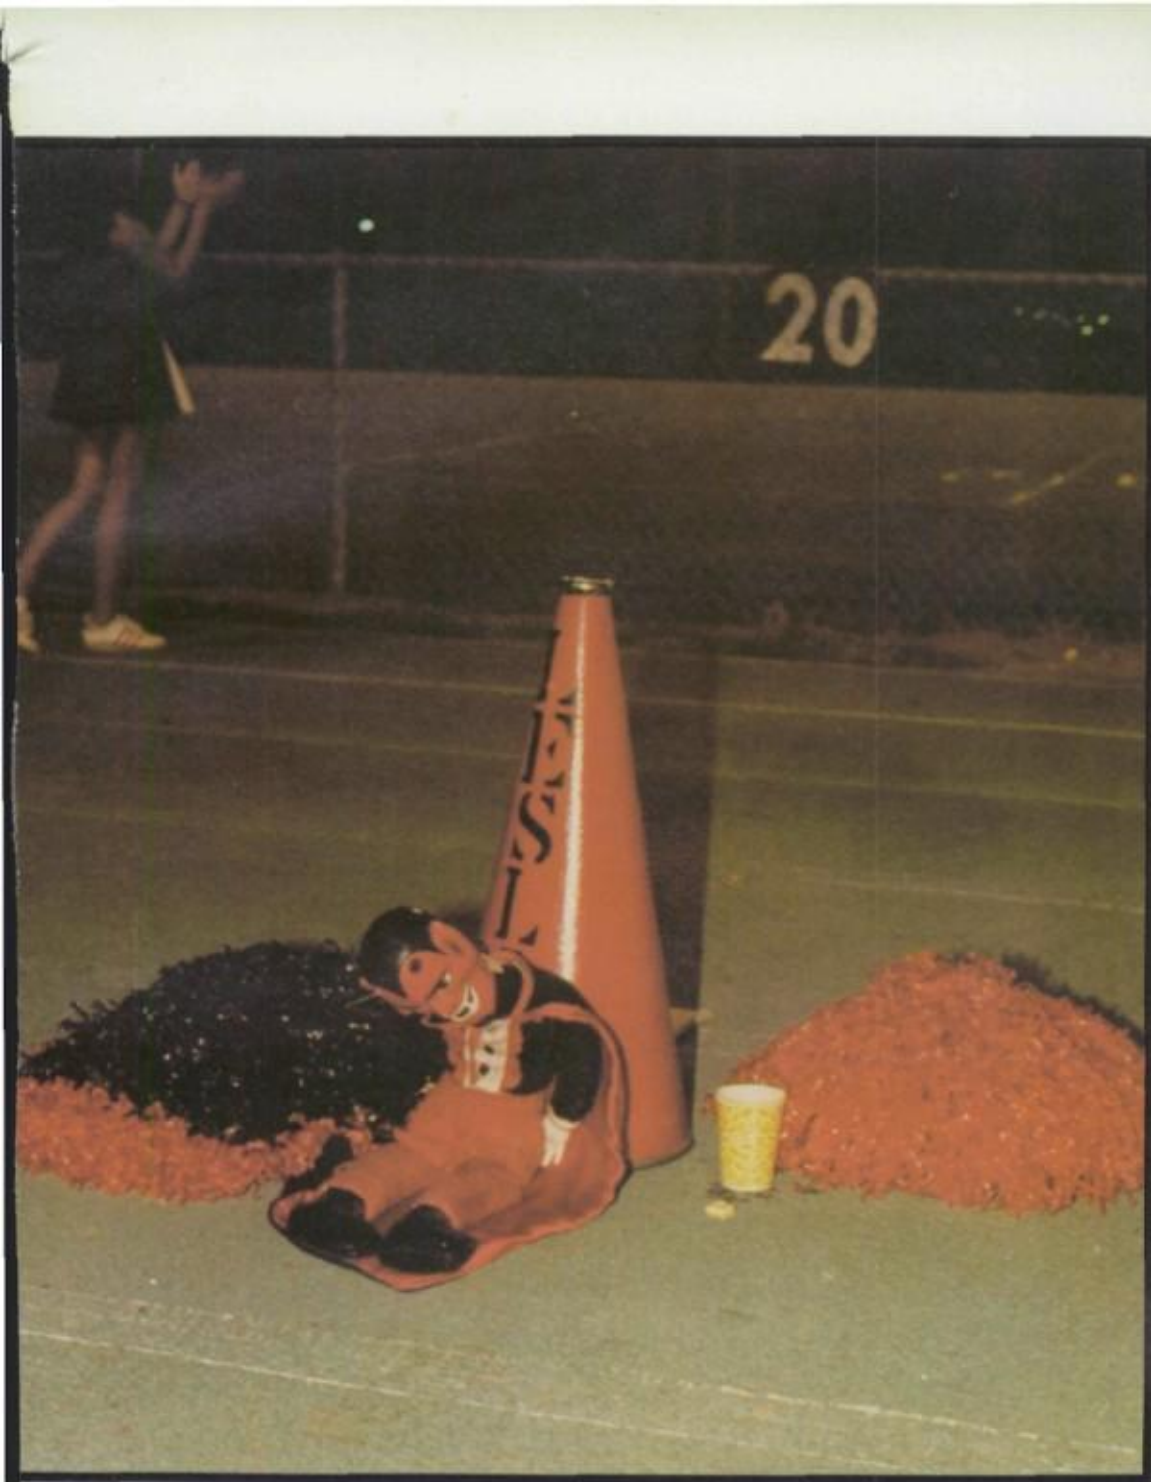

The high school students took great pride in their institution. Druid Hills had become one of the most highly regarded schools in the county, and true to form, their sports program was one with which other schools had to reckon. In the traditions of the Druids the school was building an indisputable reputation for itself.

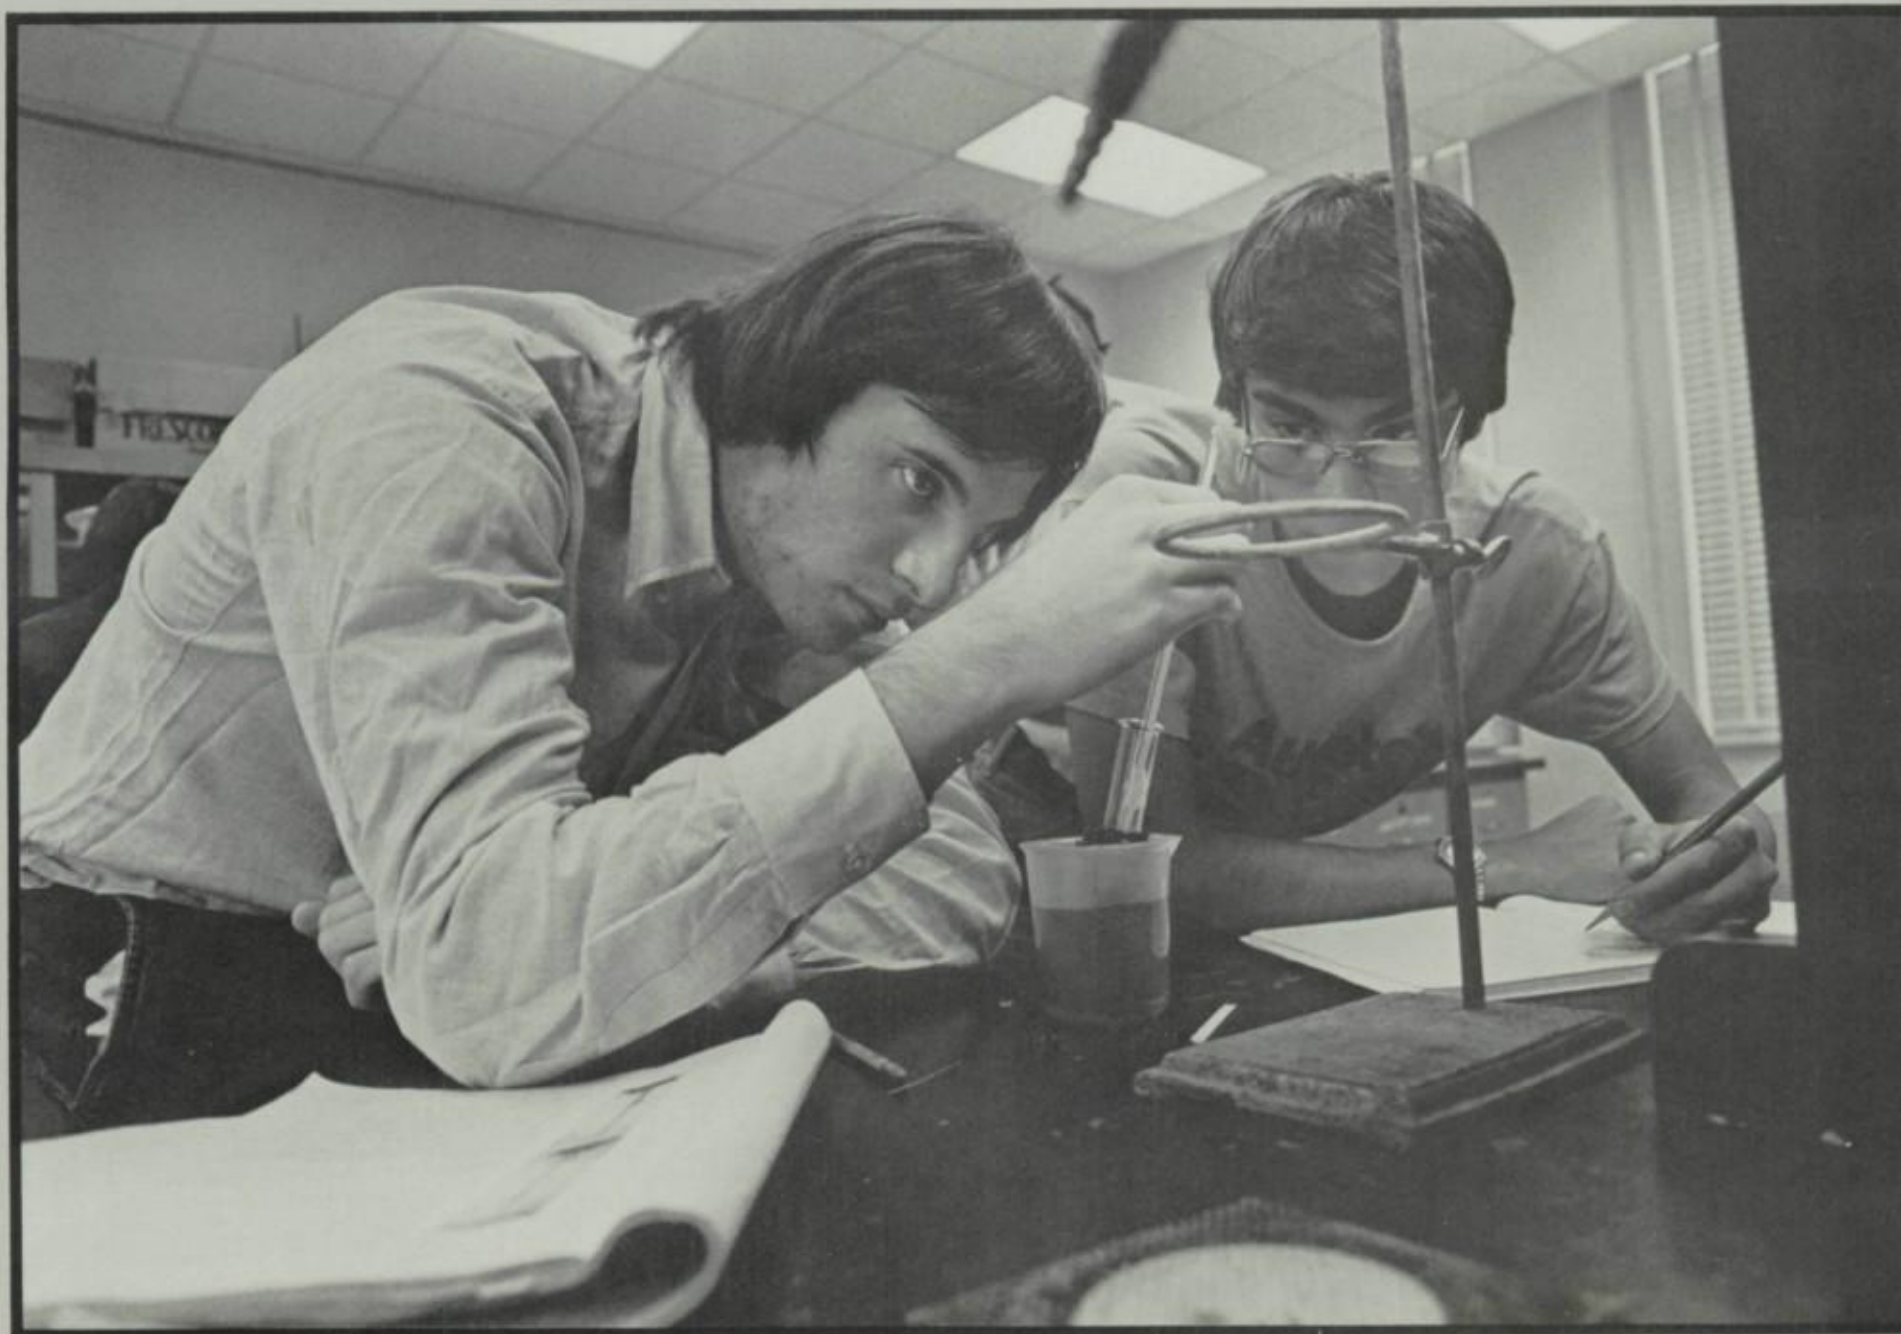

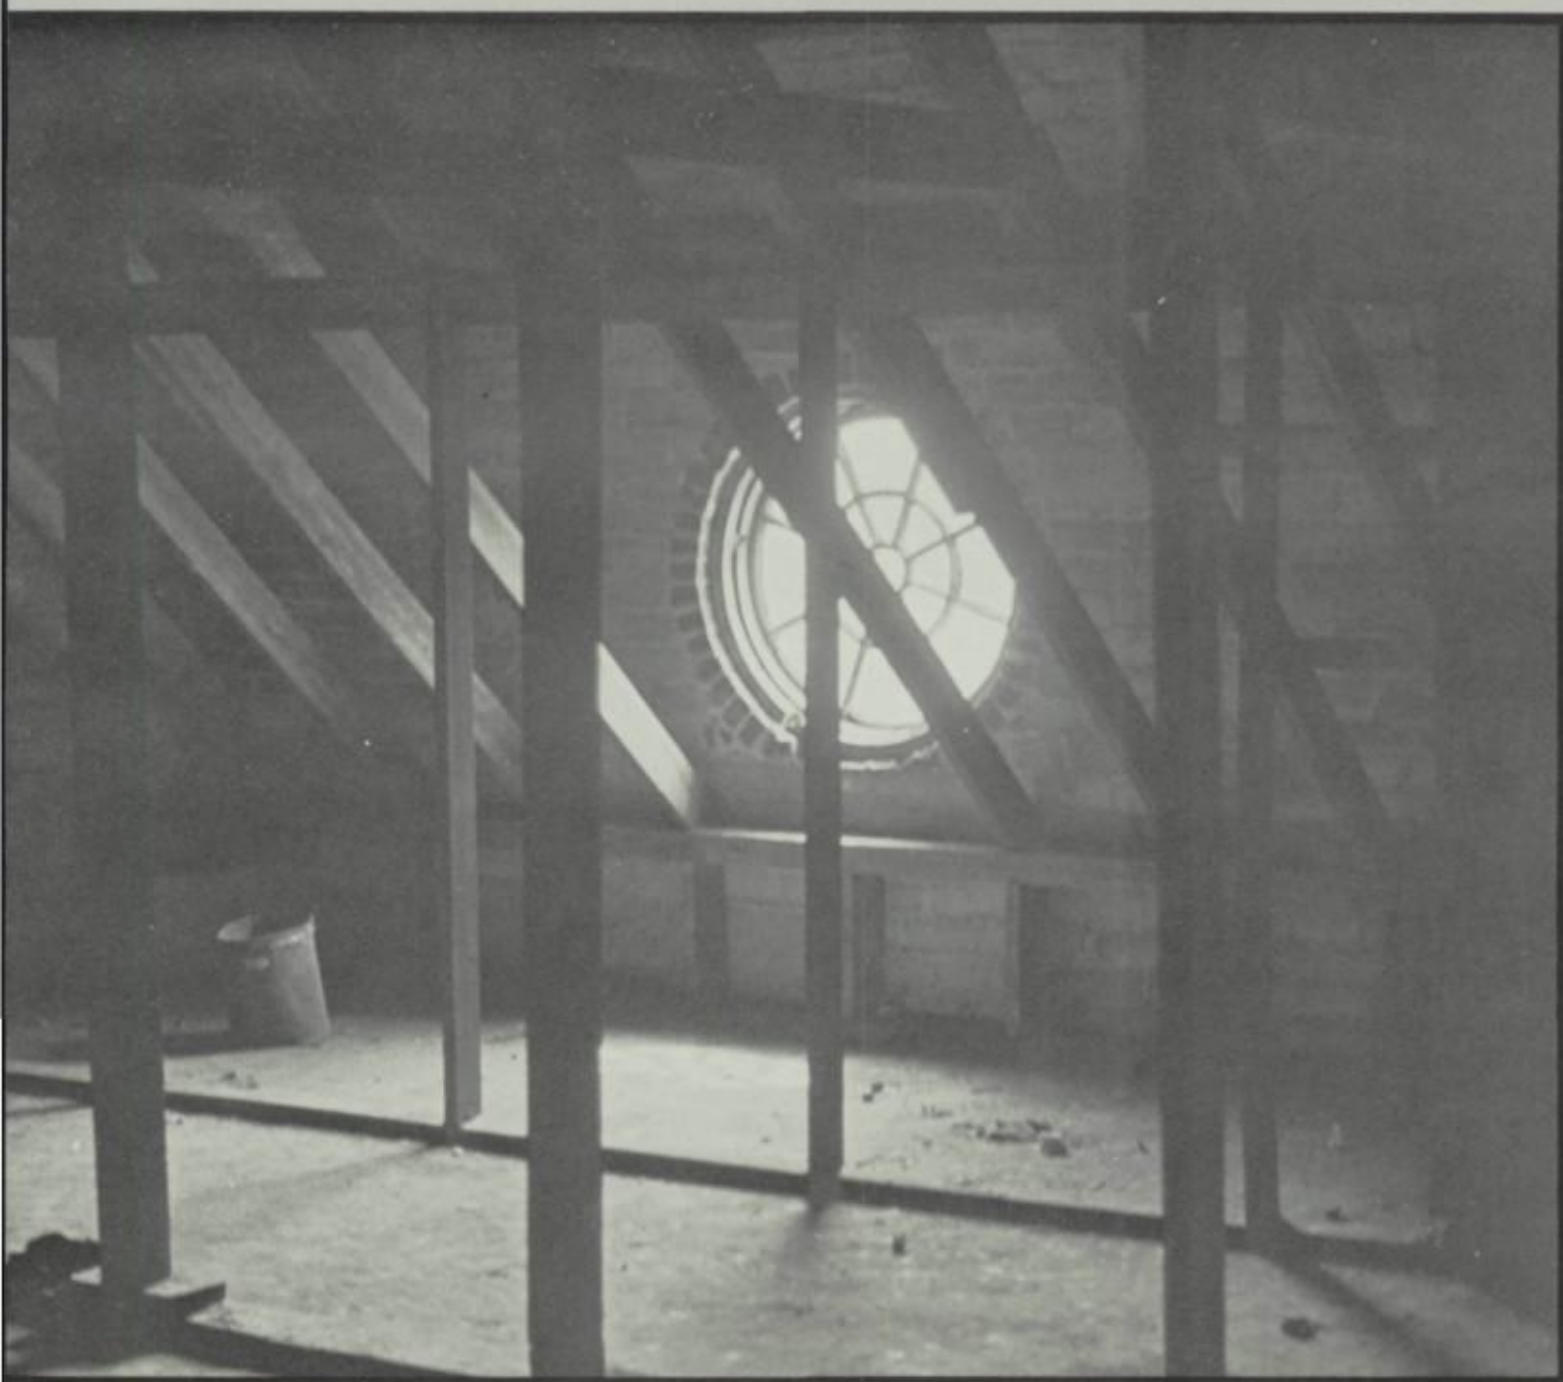

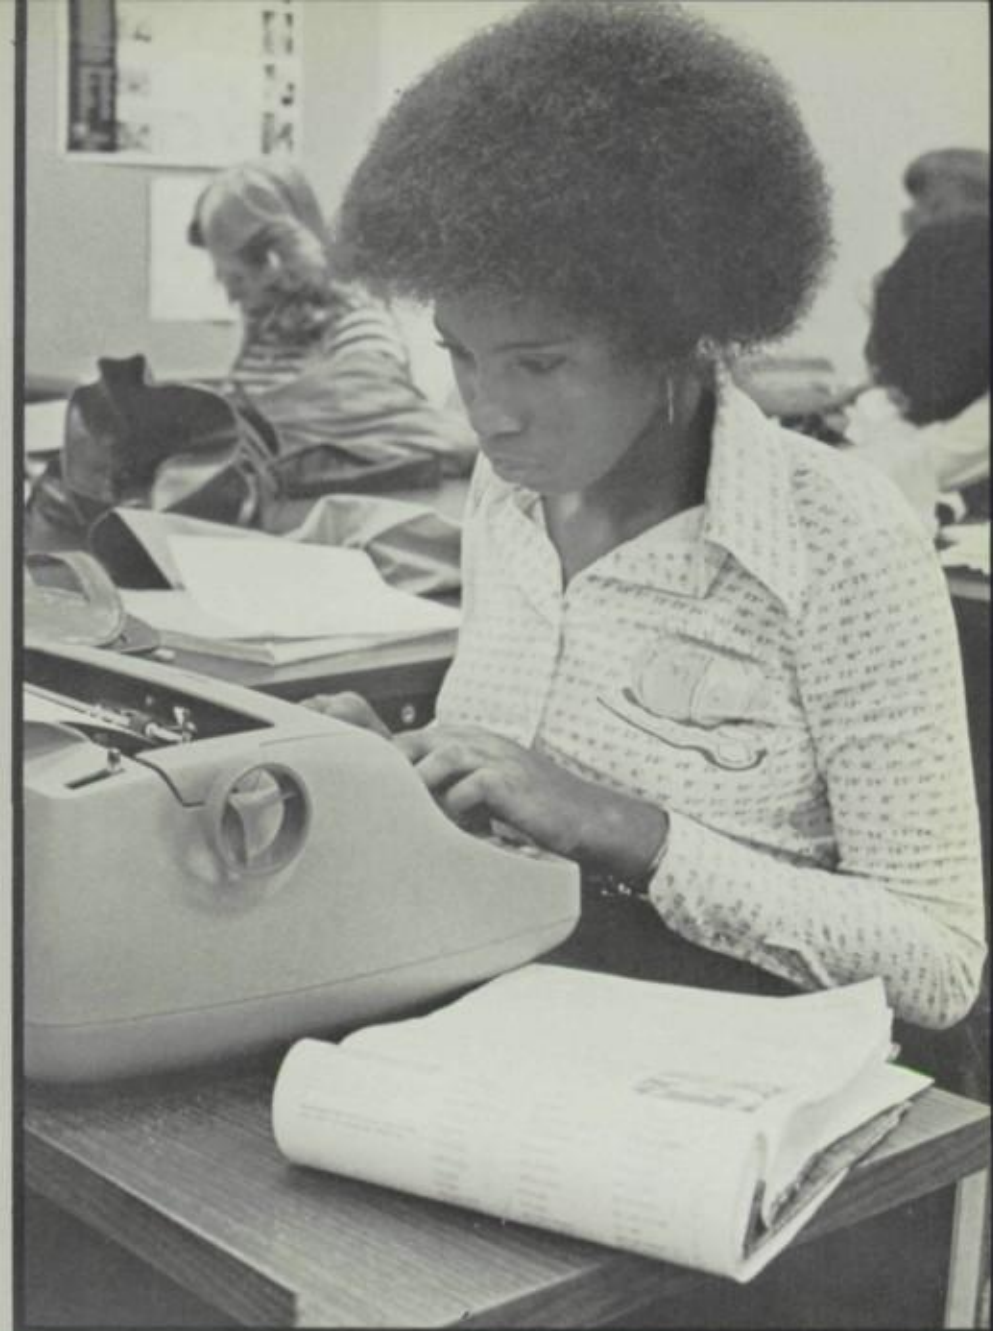

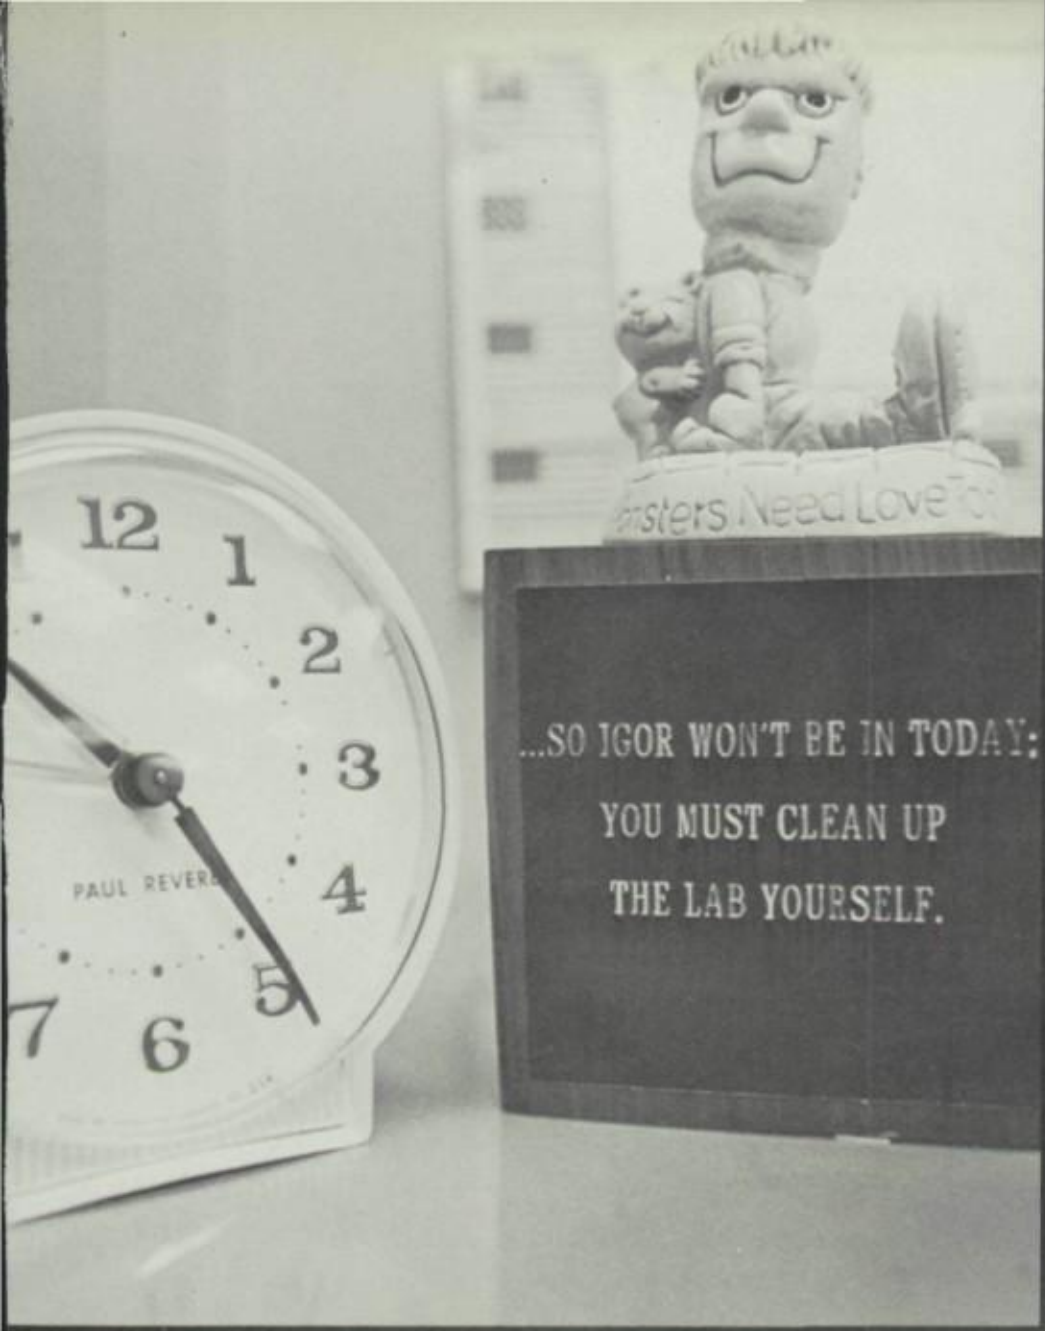

As a result of overcrowding two high schools were constructed in the sixties to relieve the load of Druid Hills. Losing a large part of the student body did not affect the Druids morale however. They maintained the close and somewhat tribal society that evolved. Able to conquer their foes, seek and gain recognition, protect their own interests, the students had been labeled for their worth — the School of Champions.

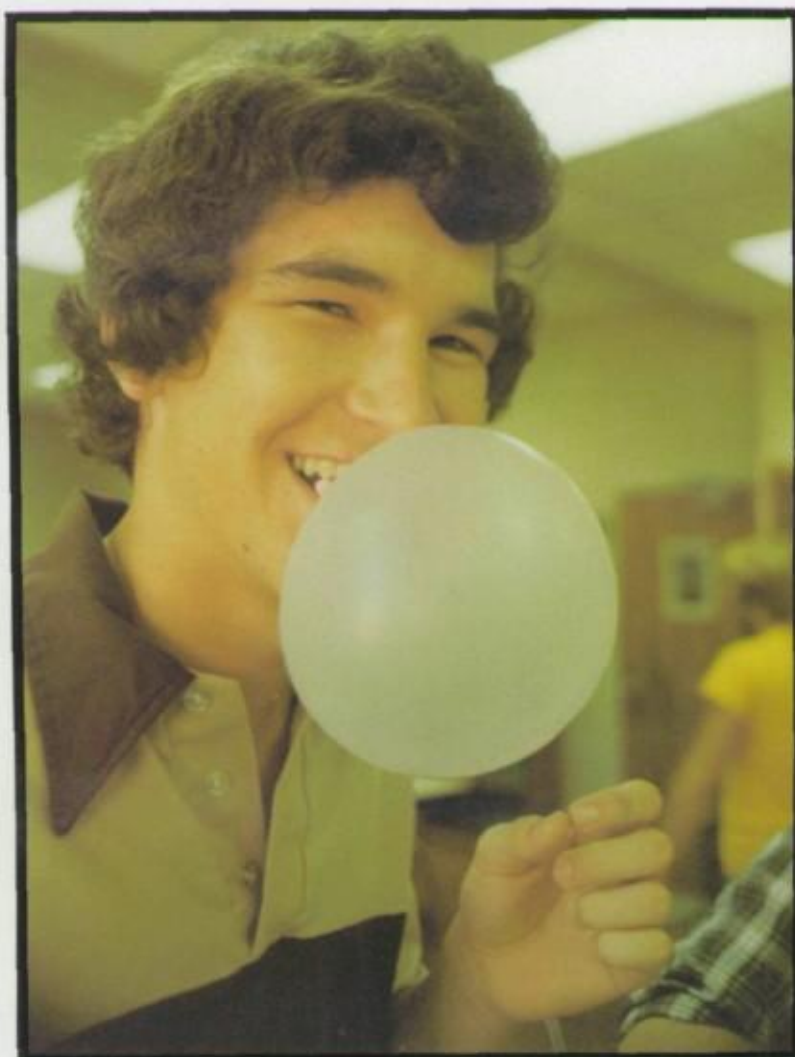

Despite its weathered outside appearance, Druid Hills is sturdy and has recently undergone a two million dollar renovation. Patiently meeting the demands for change, Druid Hills continues to add to the curriculum and to the extra-curricular program. Students now enjoy wall to wall carpeting in most classrooms, air conditioning, new science labs, new reading labs, new language labs, new business facilities, and a refurbished auditorium.

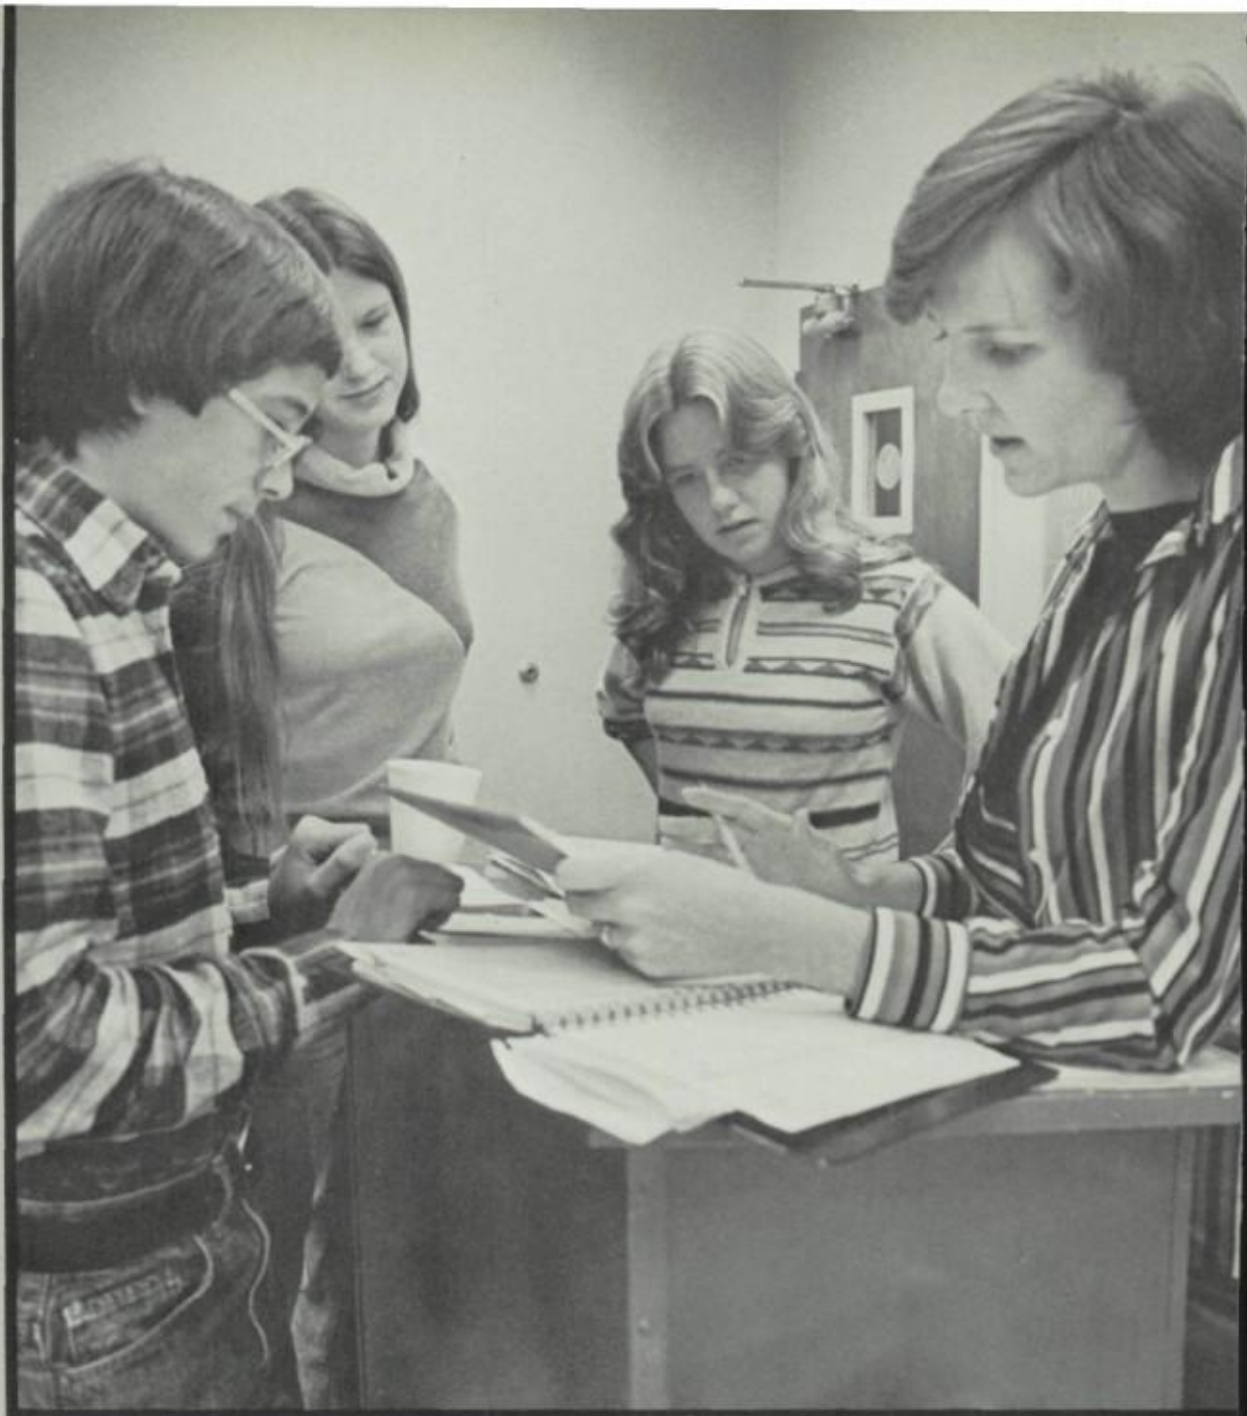

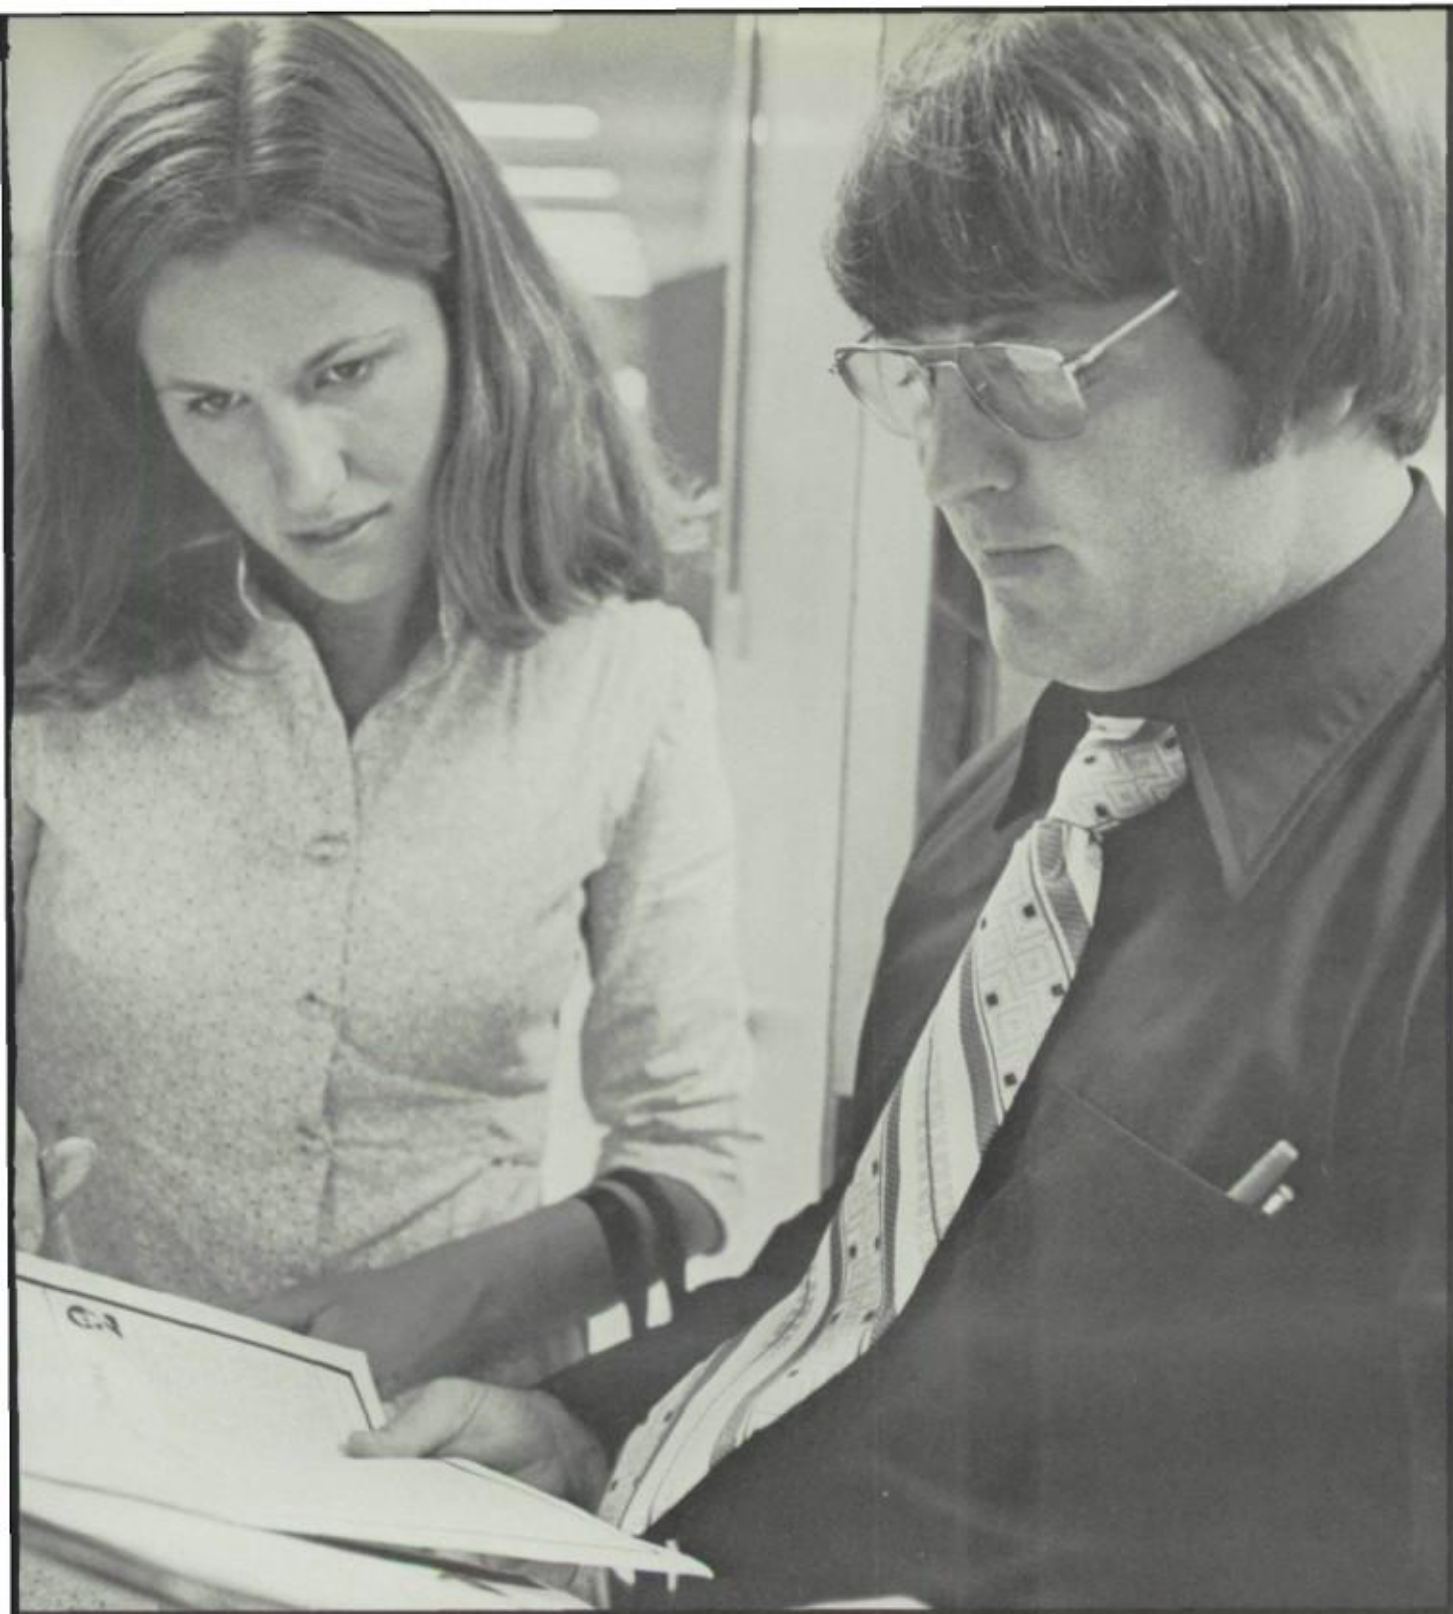

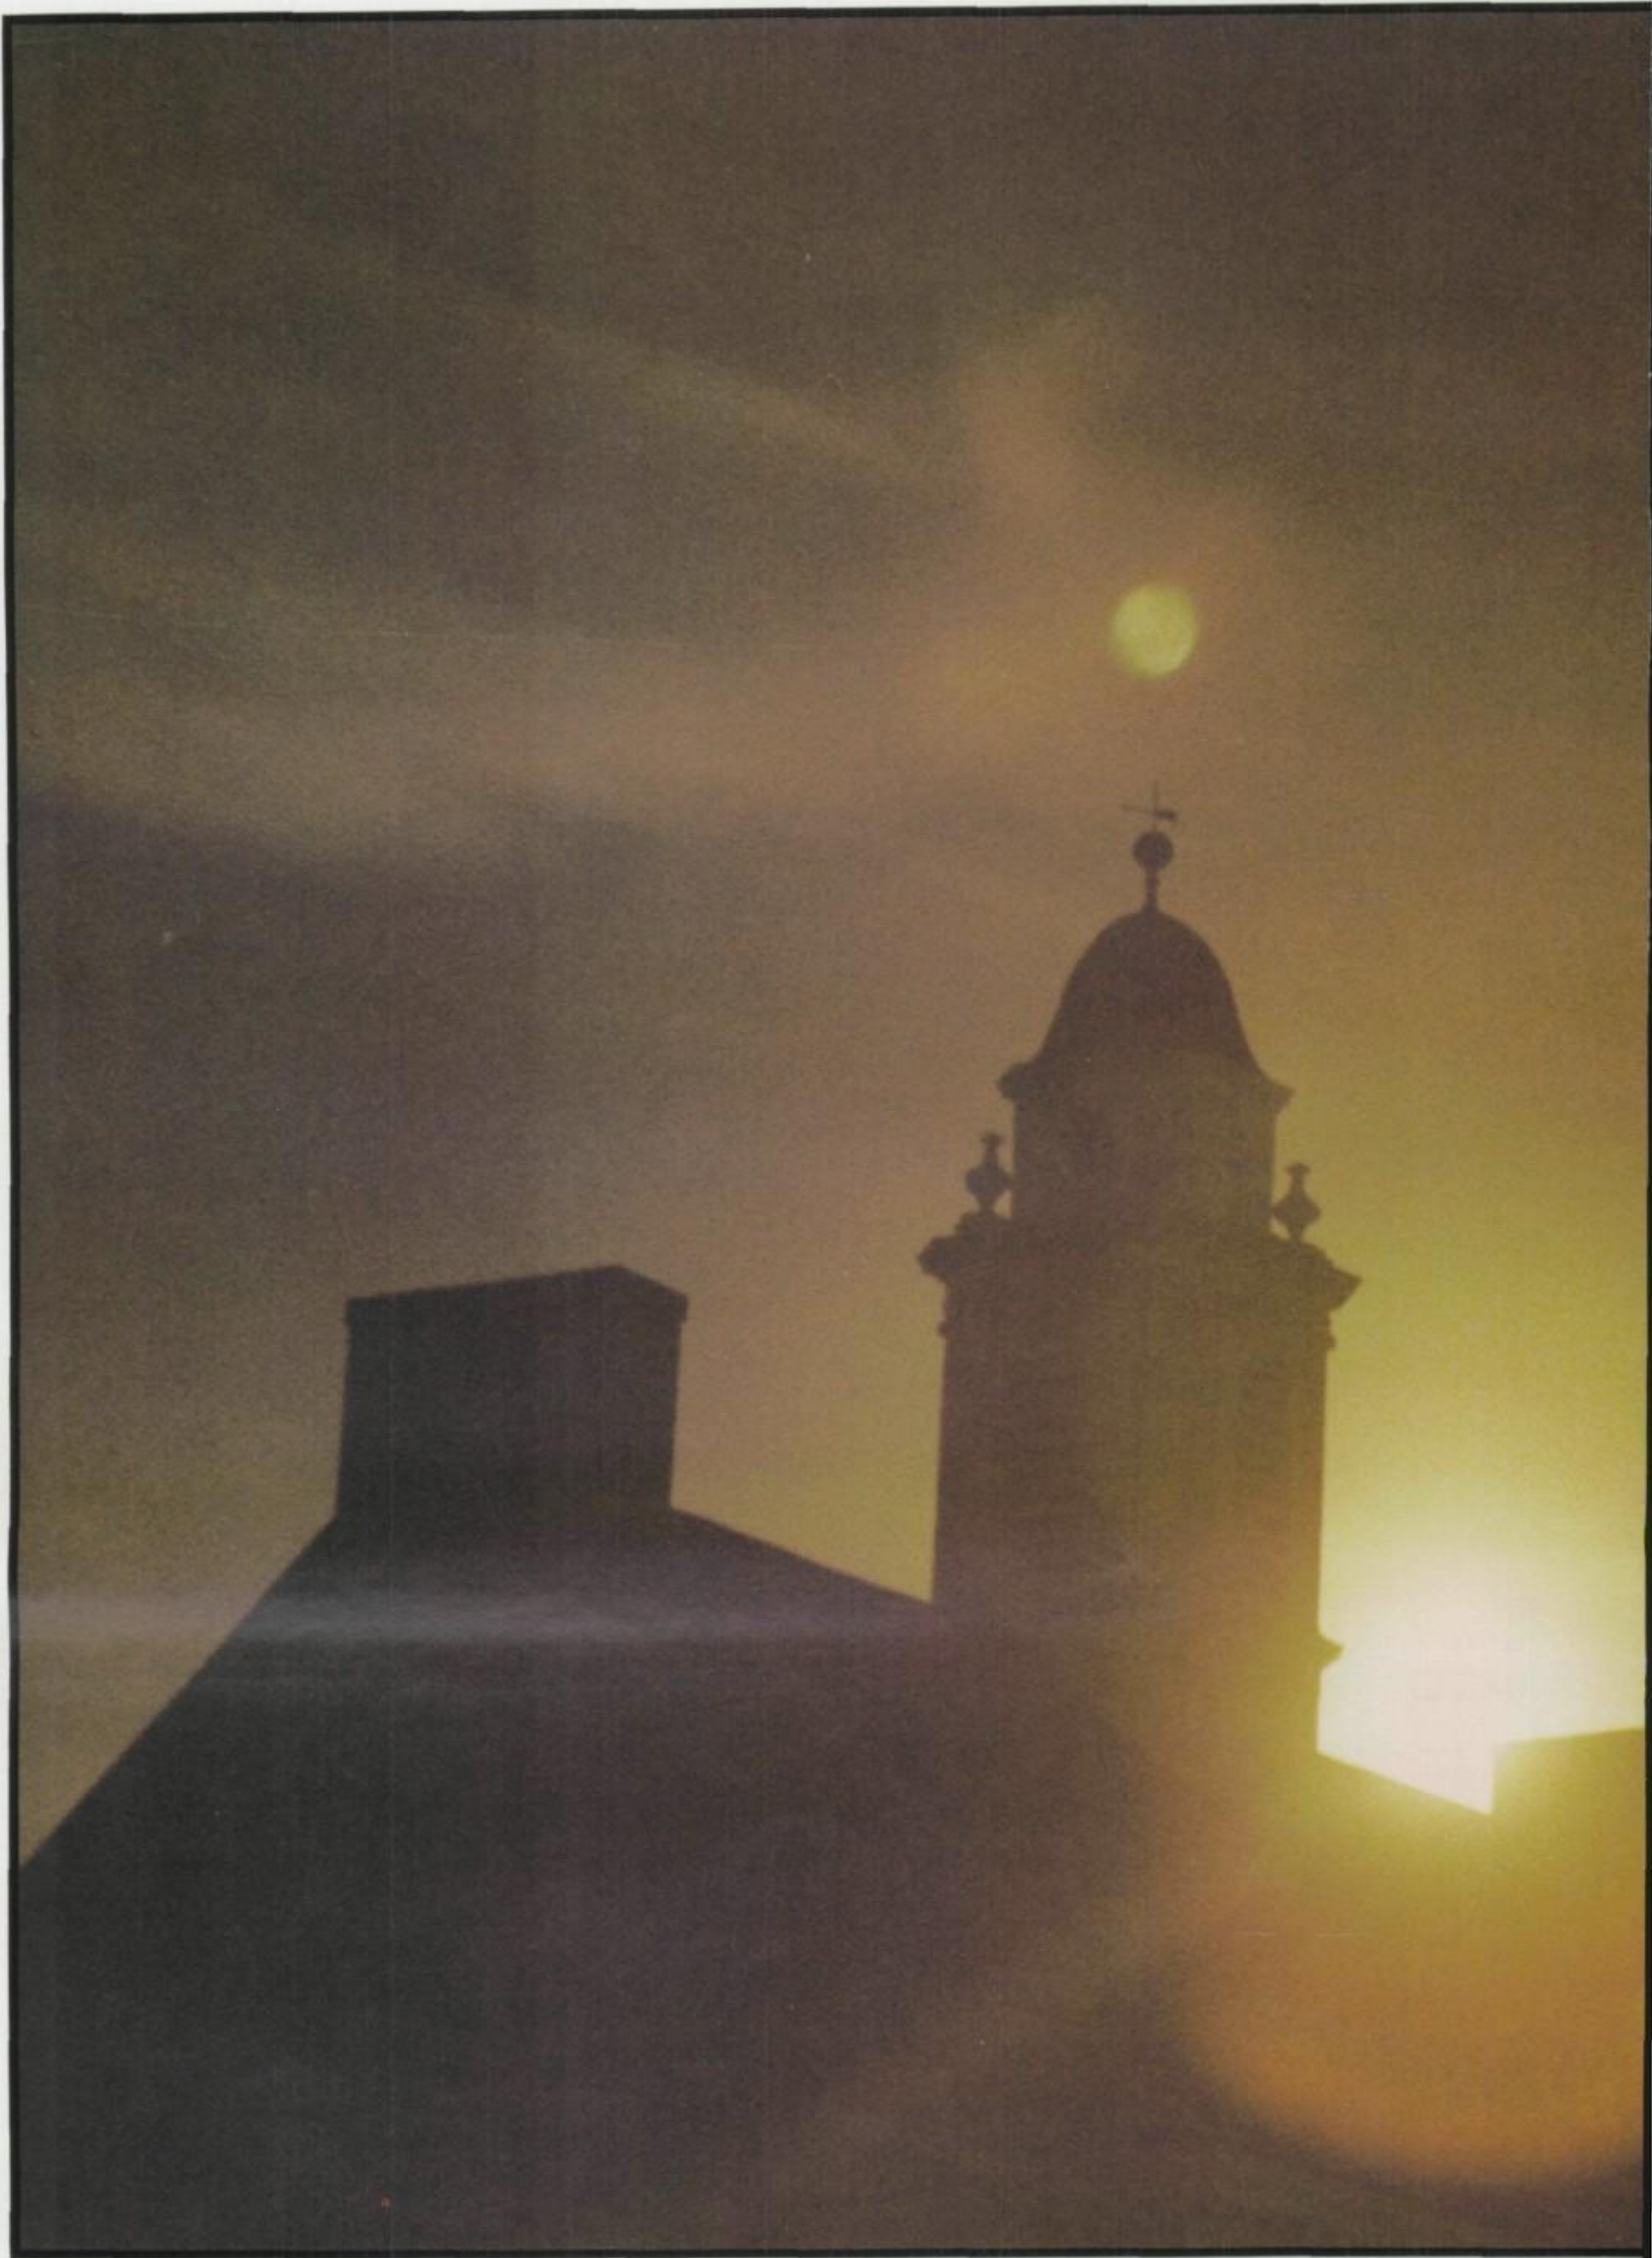

During its fifty year history Druid Hills has become a separate world within itself, shaping its modes and policies. Yet Druid Hills is not without knowledge of what is happening outside of the community. The teachers and the administration are an inspiration to the students, providing them not only with a firm basis for further educational advancement, but presenting guidelines for studying, for compatibility, and for general rules of living.

The Druid Hills faculty and student body do not have a mere teacher - pupil relationship. There is much more personality involved and one can be sure that just as he or she is prepared to enter college after five years at Druid Hills, so is the individual able to enter the mainstream of life with little transition.

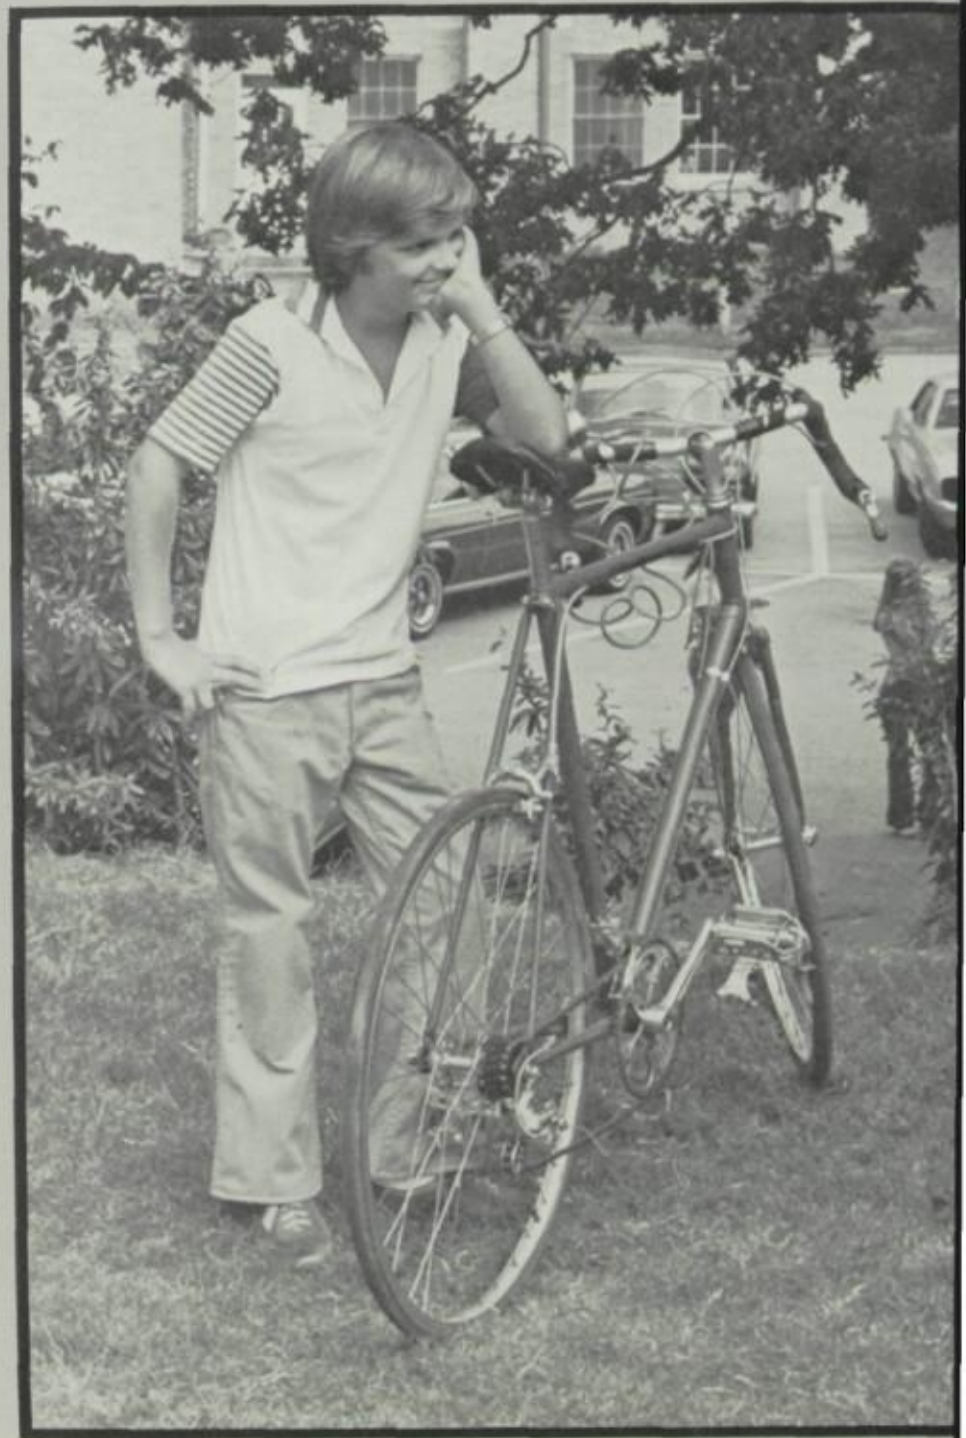

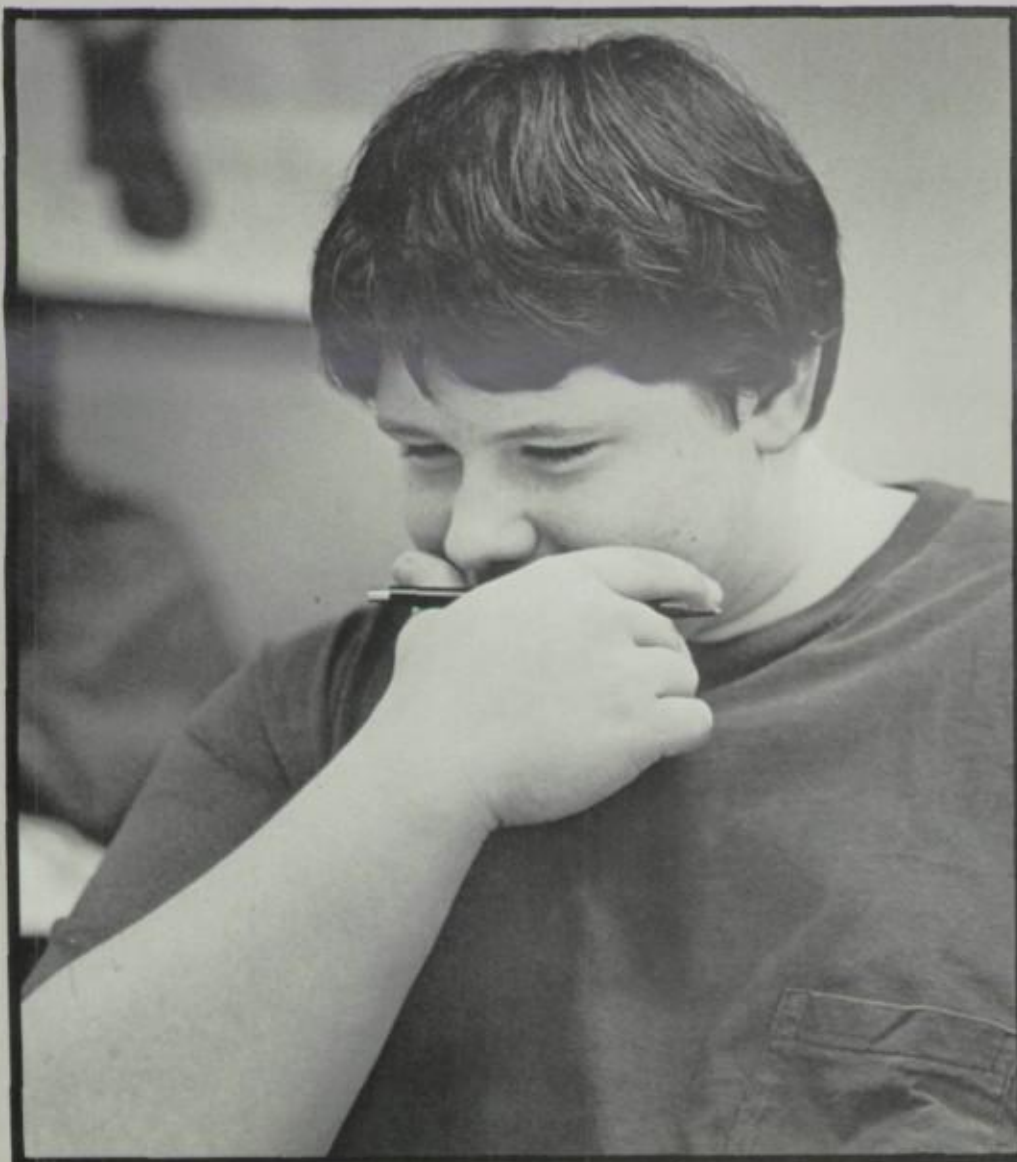

Mike, this has really been a good year, huh? I hope you've had as much fun as I have. Even though I won't be back next year, I'm looking forward to visiting. So maybe I'll see you then. You seem like a really nice guy, but I don't Once upon a time there was a middle-aged school, having profoundly reached the ripe age of fifty. During its brief history the school had seen and experienced many things. It had given birth to a community, counselled the offspring of its own child, and offered a strong guiding hand while sitting back and watching the effects of its labor. A direct influence upon its students, Druid Hills had nevertheless allowed them their own pace to follow, their own activities, and their own individuality.

know you that well. I wish you lots of happiness in the future. Have a fantastic summer.

Love,
Stickell

Likewise, the students of Druid Hills have created traditions that also mold and form their characters, while setting standards for the future. The students of Druid Hills look forward to the next fifty years as another period of growth and change, and also a period of maintaining some of our high standards. It is only the student body who can continue to set an example for the students following us, so that the next fifty years will be as great, or greater, than our first highly successful half century. It would truly be worthwhile to return to Druid Hills:

Dedication

In a school as old and small as Druid Hills, there are certain traditions that are established through the years. There is also a constant flow of new faces blending with the old. Among the members of our teaching staff is a person who is both fresh to the scene AND already a legend. In the few years she has been at Druid Hills, this lady has dabbled with the arts, sponsoring drama activities, language clubs, and literary meets. She is a devoted counselor and a dedicated sponsor. She is a friend to the student, participating as enthusiastically as she teaches. It is with great pleasure that we dedicate this year's SAGA to such a deserving, concerned individual — unsere Deutsche Lehrerin,

Homecoming 1977

It was that time of year again, when the Druids celebrated their annual Homecoming, honoring their alumni and highlighting the football season. The 1977 Homecoming preparations seemed to be more intense than usual, in a furor of poms, construction and competition (and everyone wondering if all those hinges and ropes would really work). Even the weather did not dampen the spirits of the victorious Seniors, who came through with a winning float. The week was exciting, the evening full of anticipation which was culminated with the crowning of a truly representative Queen, Miss Leslie Gottman.

This was the twentieth anniversary for the SAGA sponsored Miss Druid Hills Pageant. Twenty four senior girls competed in evening gown, talent, and personal interview on Friday and Saturday, February 24 and 25 for the title of Miss Druid Hills, 1978. The theme of this years pageant was "Cabaret" and the contest opened each evening with Richard Brown singing the title song. Jim Branscomb was the master of ceremonies, Joe Henderson the pianist, and the senior boys from the SAGA served as escorts. Talents ranged from the piano to the flute to the ballet to Shakespeare to gymnastics to vocal arrangements. The six judges — Mr. Preston Bentley, Miss Marie Varn, Mr. Charles Wynne, Mr. Michael Durrett, Miss Martha Berg, Mr. Ron Haynes — commented over and over on the intelligence and talent of the contestants and of the difficulty of their reaching a decision. Finally Miss Maeve Howett was announced as the new and twentieth Miss Druid Hills.

STUNT NIGHT

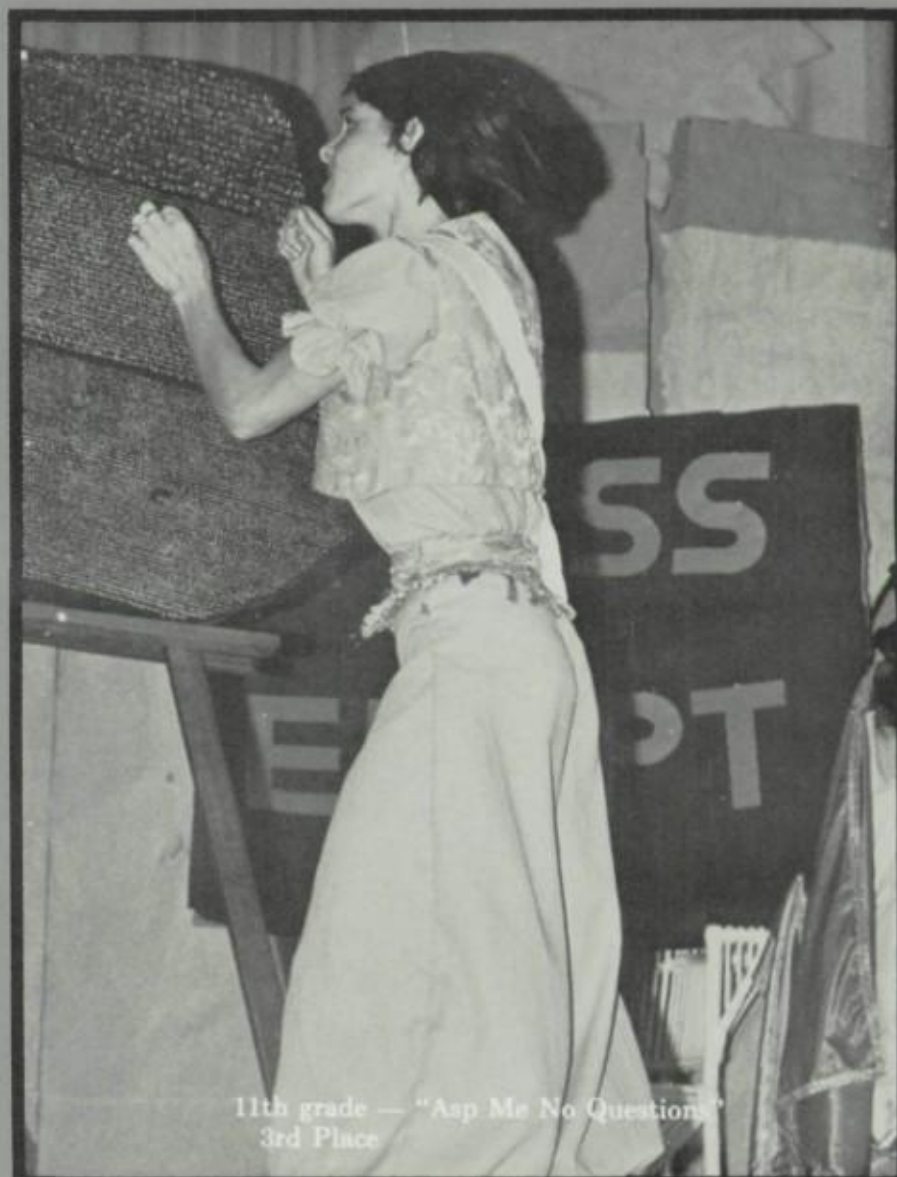

9th grade — "Pilgrim's Regress"
1st Place

The 1977 Stunt Night gave Druid Hills students a chance to create while reevaluating their knowledge of history. On November 11 and 12, under the theme of "Hysterical History", grades eight through twelve presented one of the most outstanding Stunt Nights in our hysterical history. With a comical "Pilgrim's Regress," the Freshman Class pulled off a winner. A close second, the Sophomores' "24 Carat Gold Fever" proved the Gold Rush of 1849 to be a hoax. The Class of 1979 dazzled the audience with their third place "Asp Me No Questions and I'll Give You No De-Niles." The eighth graders' "St. Valentine's Day Massacre" and the Senior's "Looney Tunes" did not place but were the perfect opening and conclusion to a memorable and fun-filled evening.

12th grade — "Looney Tunes"

11th grade — "Asp Me No Questions"
3rd Place

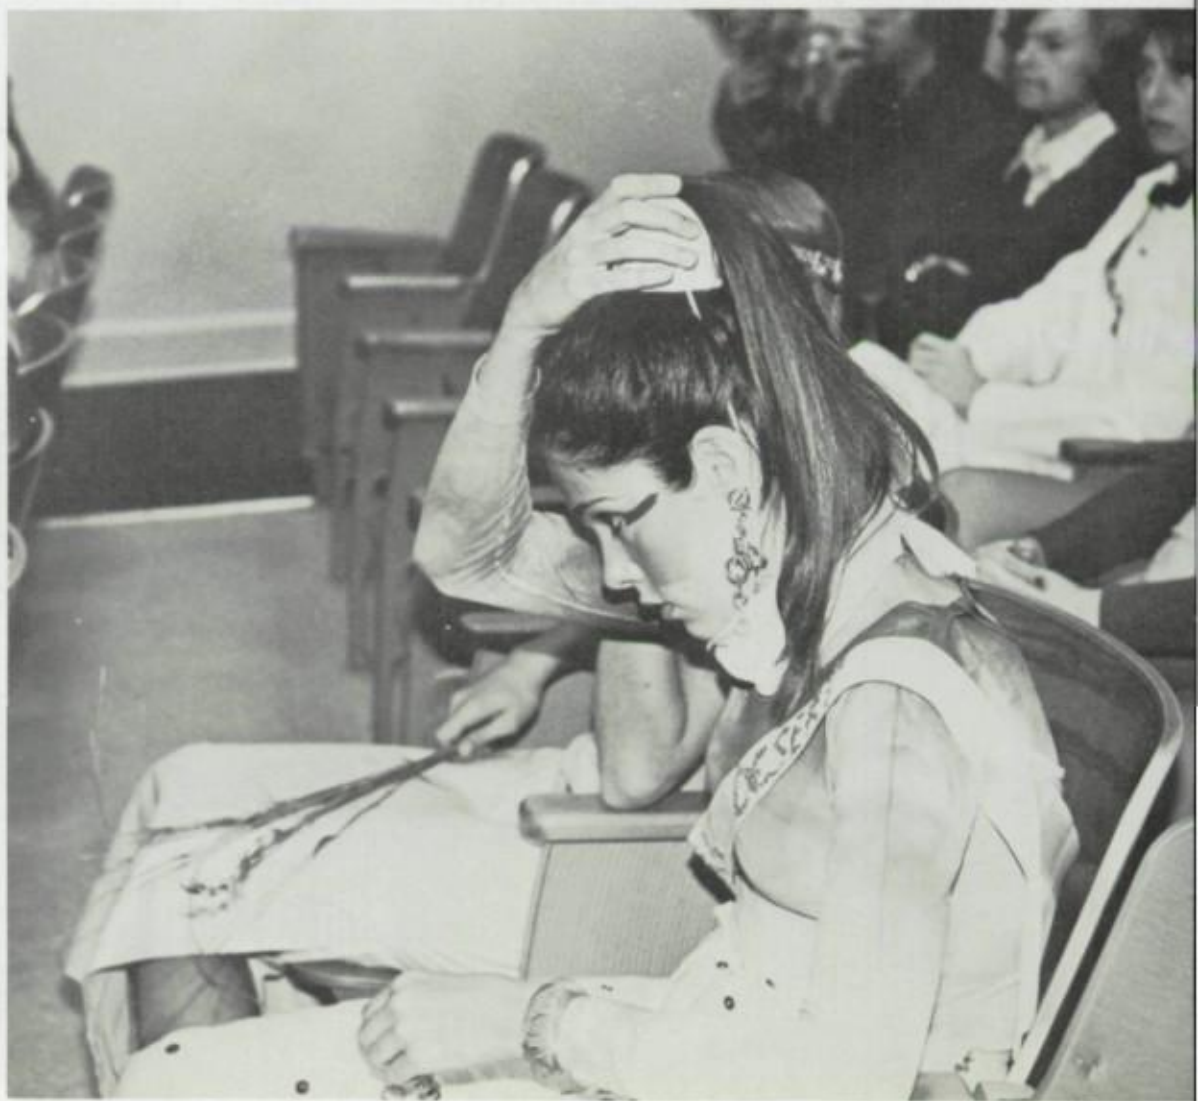

8th grade — "St. Valentine's Day Massacre"

10th grade — "24 Carat Gold Fever" 2nd place

The Band Program has maintained yet another superior season. Under the direction and coordination of Bucky Johnson, the Band, Drill Team, Majorettes, and Flag Corps have proved themselves one of the best marching groups in Dekalb County. Several auxiliary groups have developed into tight units this past year. The Pep Band is a regular feature at various sports activities. The Jazz Ensemble tours and performs all around Atlanta, and the Drum Corps is a structured and precise rhythm group. Overall, the Band Program adds spirit and variety to the student's curriculum, as well as making activities worthwhile to its participants.

The crack of the starting is heard and all of the runners rush off to a swift start. Up and down hills, around bends, between mud holes, these runners test their endurance. Finally, after completing their course, they are met with cheers and congratulations. Whether at Golfmore or the Waterworks, this is what our champion Cross-Country teams experience each meet. This year our Cross-Country teams did very well with a record of 10 and 5.

Fall
leaves...

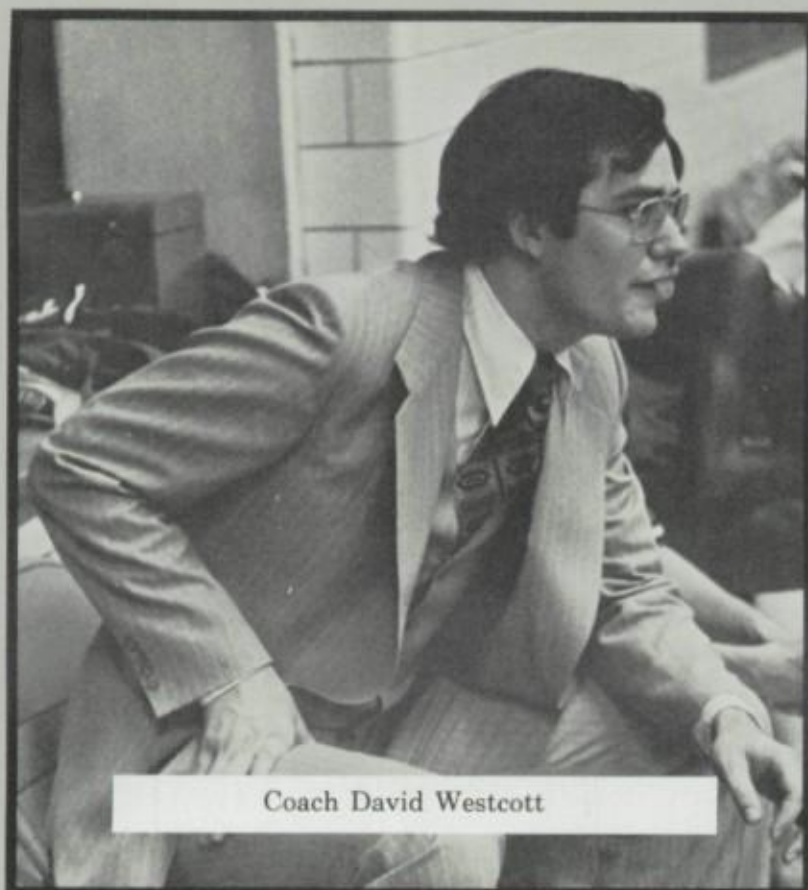

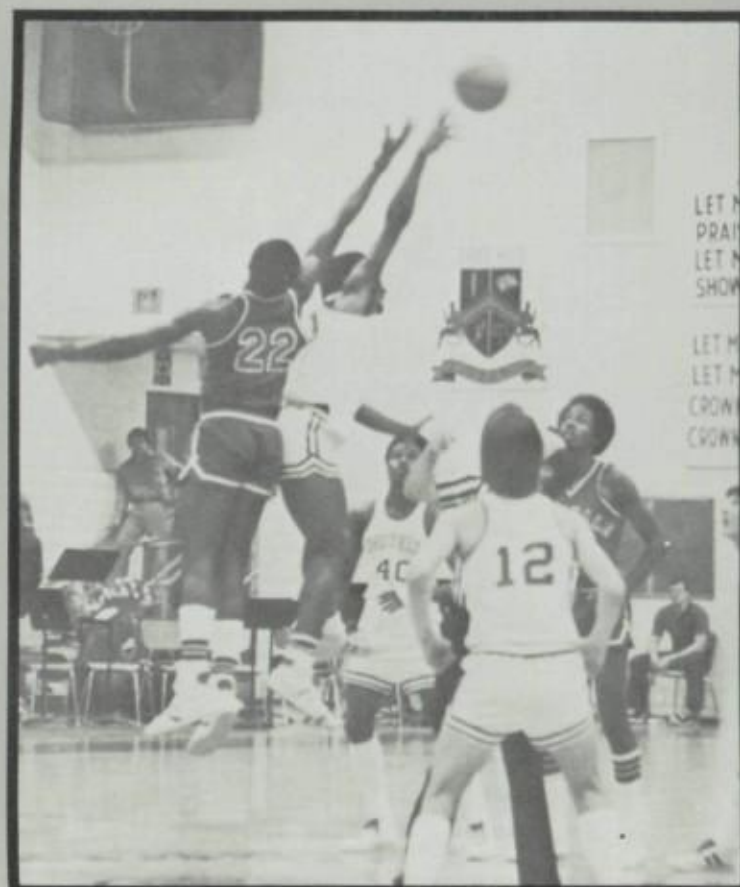

The season is fall and the sport is football. The weather is brisk, and as the immediate eye is on volleyball, the distant eye follows the cross-country runner. All the athletes participating in these sports share one thing in common: they all derive a certain energy from the crispness of the season. The renewed vigor and spirit that accompany Fall affect these sportsmen's performance. There is a tension in the air that is invigorating, extracting the best of the athletes, and reflecting their best in their sports.

Wrestling is a sport demanding an all-around athlete, combining strength, speed, and knowledge of moves and tactics. Wrestlers endure weight loss and small crowds in order to participate in their sport. This year our wrestlers combined outstanding individual effort with consistent overall team performance to achieve an impressive season.

SOCCER

Region Champions Second In State

Soccer, a sport involving a lot of stamina, is not just a kick in the grass. It requires quick thought and responsive muscles. Combining technique and coordination the players must learn to play upon reflex. Luckily, the soccer players at Druid Hills are skilled in the "feats" of soccer. This allows some of our more talented players to perform on the field, executing humorous falls and come-backs. Soccer is rapidly becoming the most popular and successful sport at Druid Hills, as can be seen from this past season.

With the coming of winter, sports take on a new aspect. Their participants become somewhat more involved and put more energy into the sports to battle the elements. Wrestlers have the chance to thaw their frozen limbs by becoming locked in warm embrace. Soccer players force their numb legs to control the direction of their ball. Swimmers lose themselves in a foggy pool, only to have their hair freeze after practice. Basketball players have it easier — they only have to contend with the cold after an active game and by then only their clothes get chilly. But with extra action, they get extra points ... Athletes do it better in the winter!

THE ENFORCERS

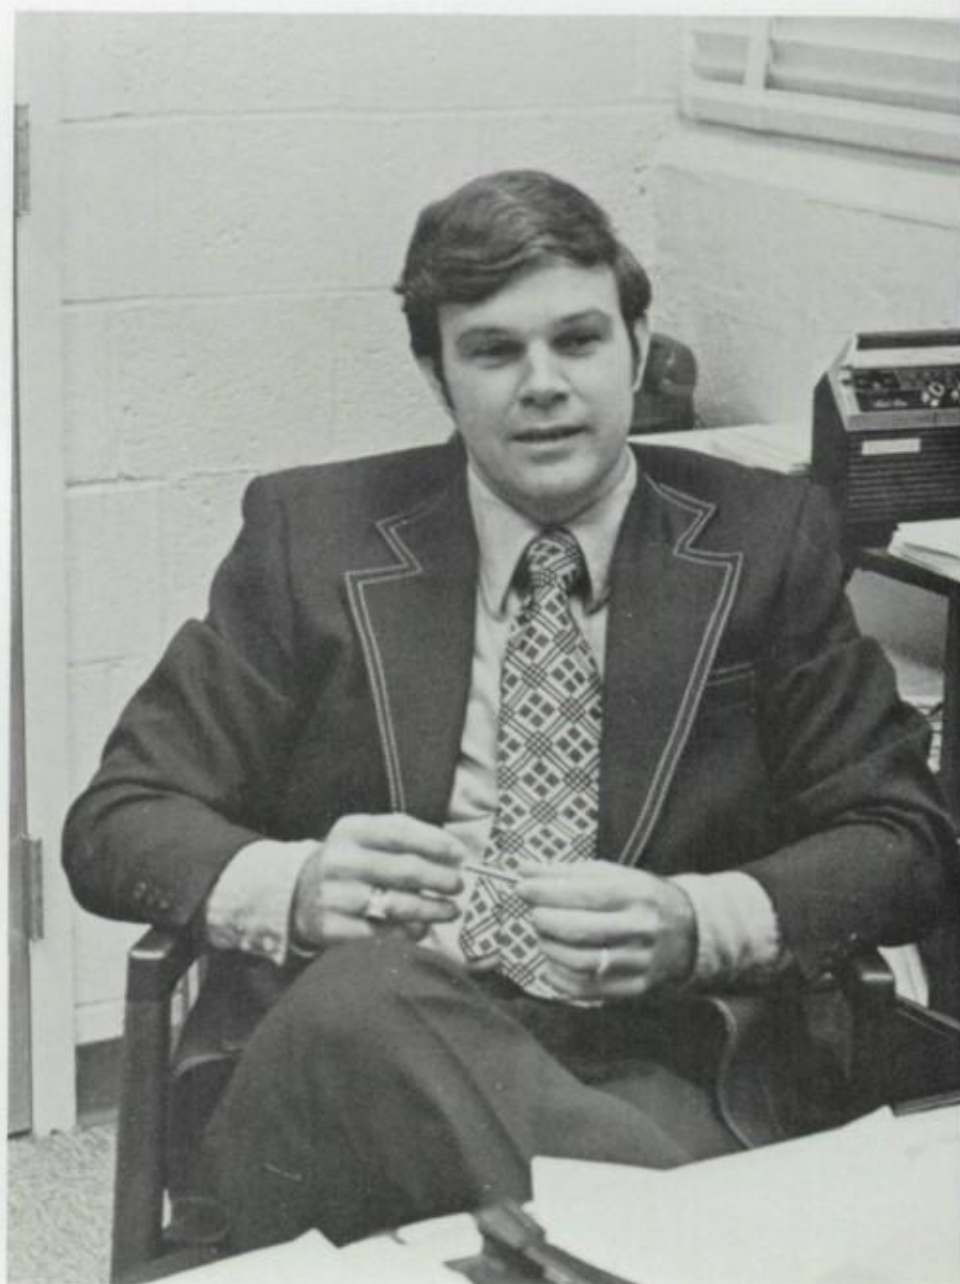

Once upon a time there was a fair young student named Golden Socks who spent much of his time pondering and wandering. Once, while engaged in pondering, he happened to wander off the campus, and wandering back on found himself in the company of three nice bears. "How was your lunch?", inquired the first bear. "Show me your open campus card," requested the second, and the third big bear said, "Come with me to the office."

Once upon a time there was a beautiful young cheerleader who was having a party to celebrate her graduation. Everyone was invited, except for one very boring young man. All the Administrative Assistants wished to give the girl a good graduation gift. The Counselors helped her choose a college to supplement her education, and gave her several scholarships. The secretaries compiled her transcripts and helped type applications to mail to the colleges. The Librarian referred her to several career oriented books. Just then, the boring young man arrived furious at not being invited to the party. For revenge, he put the cheerleader into a deep sleep, in which she would remain until kissed by an athlete.

MATH

Upon arriving at school one morning a math teacher sleepily opened the door to her room revealing a small white goose protecting a nest of golden eggs. After several days the eggs hatched into a variety of little parabolas, circular functions, tetrahedrons, and other mathematical concepts. The teacher, thrilled with all these new arrivals, kept these concepts and the students have been contending with them ever since.

There were seven doors of notable interests and the young aspiring romanticist couldn't pick the designated five. She leaned towards the splendid the ribald tales of chivalry and conquests, but knew the value of learning her grammar and increasing her vocabulary. And there was always a composition to write. After careful contemplation, she chose the door on her write. Which came out, The Novel or the poem?

SCIENCE

One day, several diligent science teachers were combining various substances in the lab. Somehow something went wrong and they found themselves overcome by a giant organic beanstalk! Sprouting from the stalk were fruitful leaves bearing molecular theories which were immediately gathered by the teachers and passed out among their eager students.

THE ARTS

A group of artful students, whilst traveling toward academic success, felt compelled to veer from their direct route and follow different paths. There was something magical behind the main building. Some discovered this magic through the whirring of little machinery, producing and printing. Others heard melodic voices and counter melodies, or energetic music that drew them together into a band. The most magical aspect was the duration of the spell — the students were destined to pursue the arts henceforth.

Once there was a young girl who desired to learn a language for college. She saw no hope of achieving this, until one day, she saw a language master spinning polished conversation on the third floor. "English into French," he sang, and murmured, "I can weave your words into golden German. All you have to do is guess my name." "Deutsches, Francais, Espanol, and Latin ..." said our heroine, thus assuring herself of learning a language.

HOME EC BUSINESS

Once there were some students who were assailed by a dragon of boredom. They cried for aid, and were soon assisted by three gallant teachers who slew the dragon. Henceforth, the students have typed, baked, sewed, and programmed computers to their heart's content.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

There once was a sleeping P.E. student who always spent the entire P.E. class in quiet slumber. One day, she was drowsily dreaming in the corner of the gym and a handsome P.E. coach approached her. Quickly, while no one was looking, he thrust a basketball in the girl's arms. Immediately she sprung into life, awaking from her dreams, full of energy and began racing across the gym, shooting baskets, where she remained bouncing happily ever after.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

Once upon a time there was a group of questing teachers, in search of challenges and an opportunity to help people. After many adventures, these teachers came upon a group of students who were full of energy. So they decided to stop, and see what they could do. Since that time, they have been putting forth all of their efforts to help their new charges develop their full potential.

PARAPROFESSIONALS

Once upon a time, there were three paraprofessionals.

While wandering around searching for an opportunity to help students learn, they came upon a beautiful gingerbread school. In anticipation they began to nibble at the idea of working at this marvelous school. To their utter delight; a big Devil rushed out and offered them a position aiding in the education of all the young Devils in the school ... a chance which they were quick to swallow. And everyone learned happily ever after.

While relaxing before lunch the local custodial staff was calmly resting after a hard morning's work. Suddenly a student came rushing up screaming, "The roof is falling! The bathroom is on fire!" The group wasted no time and immediately ran to the scene where they settled the various calamities. Then, being very hungry, they got a Take-Out Meal from the local Cafeteria and enjoyed a well prepared lunch.

CLASSES

CLASS OF 1978

Robbie Weber, President

Bonnie Jones, Vice-President

Here, within the Empire of Druid Hills, reigns a Kingdom of Classes. These classes establish a division within the Kingdom, but do not divide the Kingdom itself. It is not wise to outrank your own class, as you are born into it, but it is quite possible for your class to progress as a whole. In the Kingdom of Classes, you always stick together, the Kings see to this. Having struggled for twenty season to reach the top in this feudal system, the Senior Kings maintain a firm control of leadership. Preparing for the more vast outer Kingdoms, these Kings realize the virtues of patience and justice and use of intellect, and though they are Kings they exercise these virtues far beyond their duty. The Kings are in control, but abide by the rules of the Empire in exemplifying the merits of ability.

JUNIOR CLASS

David Brown, President

Stan Klinger, Vice-President

Not far behind, the Junior Nobles carry the torch. They are a royal class, preparing to inherit the Kingdom. The Nobles are a largely unified lot, willing to accept their diversities and use them to their advantage, combining differences to form a strong front. In preparing for the inheritance the nobles are spirited, vocal, and assume the characteristics that make potential Kings great.

SOPHOMORES

Billy Sheppard, Vice-President

In the middle of our Kingdom, we find the Knights. These knights are gallant and noble also. They give freely of their time to help establish the lower classes, and equally of their efforts to further themselves and each other. The Knights are understanding of what is behind them, and are aspiring to achieve what their fellow Nobles and Kings have preceded.

FRESHMEN

One of the lower classes, the Squires are industrious and fresh men. These Squires are becoming independent, and remain attentive to the Kinghood which they will soon achieve. Their journey towards Knighthood is difficult, presenting conflicts and decisions and dragons to slay. The squires are almost on their own, but keeping their past in humble sight.

At the bottom of the scale in Kingdom are the vassals. Bound to their superiors in servitude, they serve upper classes and each other for the benefit of their Kingdom. The serfs are hard-working, eager to learn, growing with their work and starting collectively on their rise to the top.

STUDENT LIFE

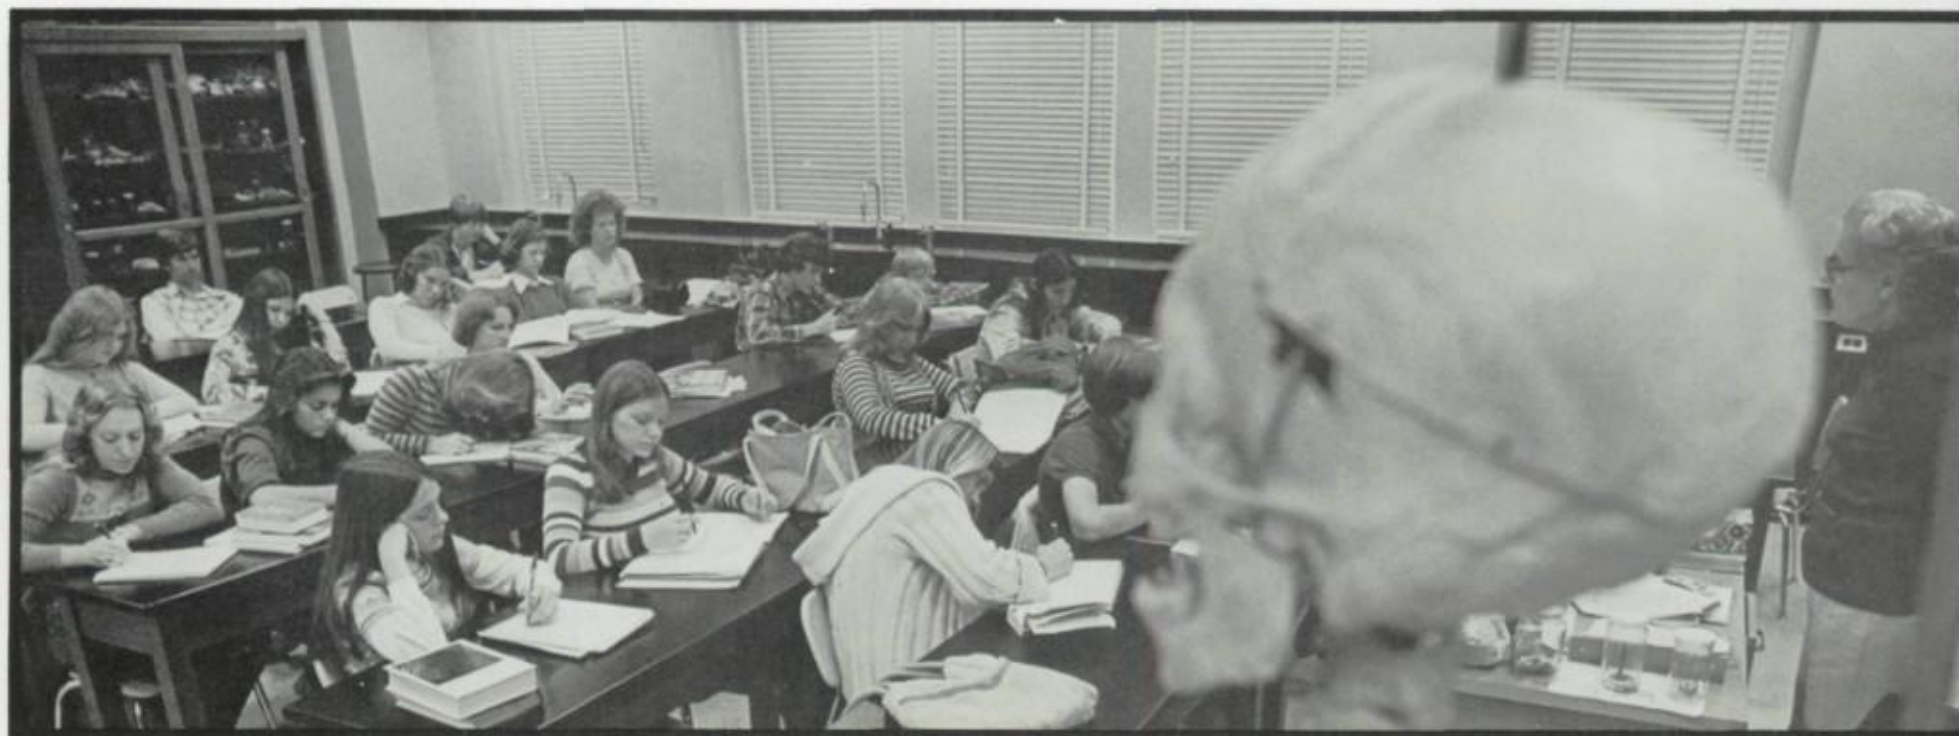

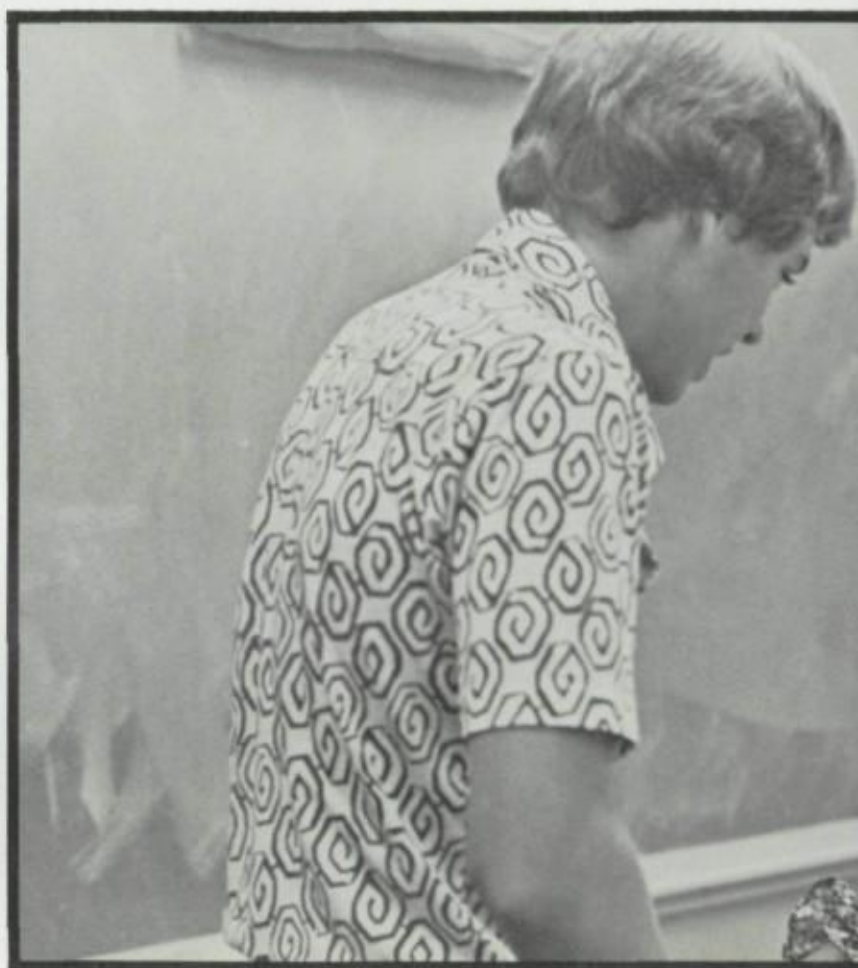

In the beginning...

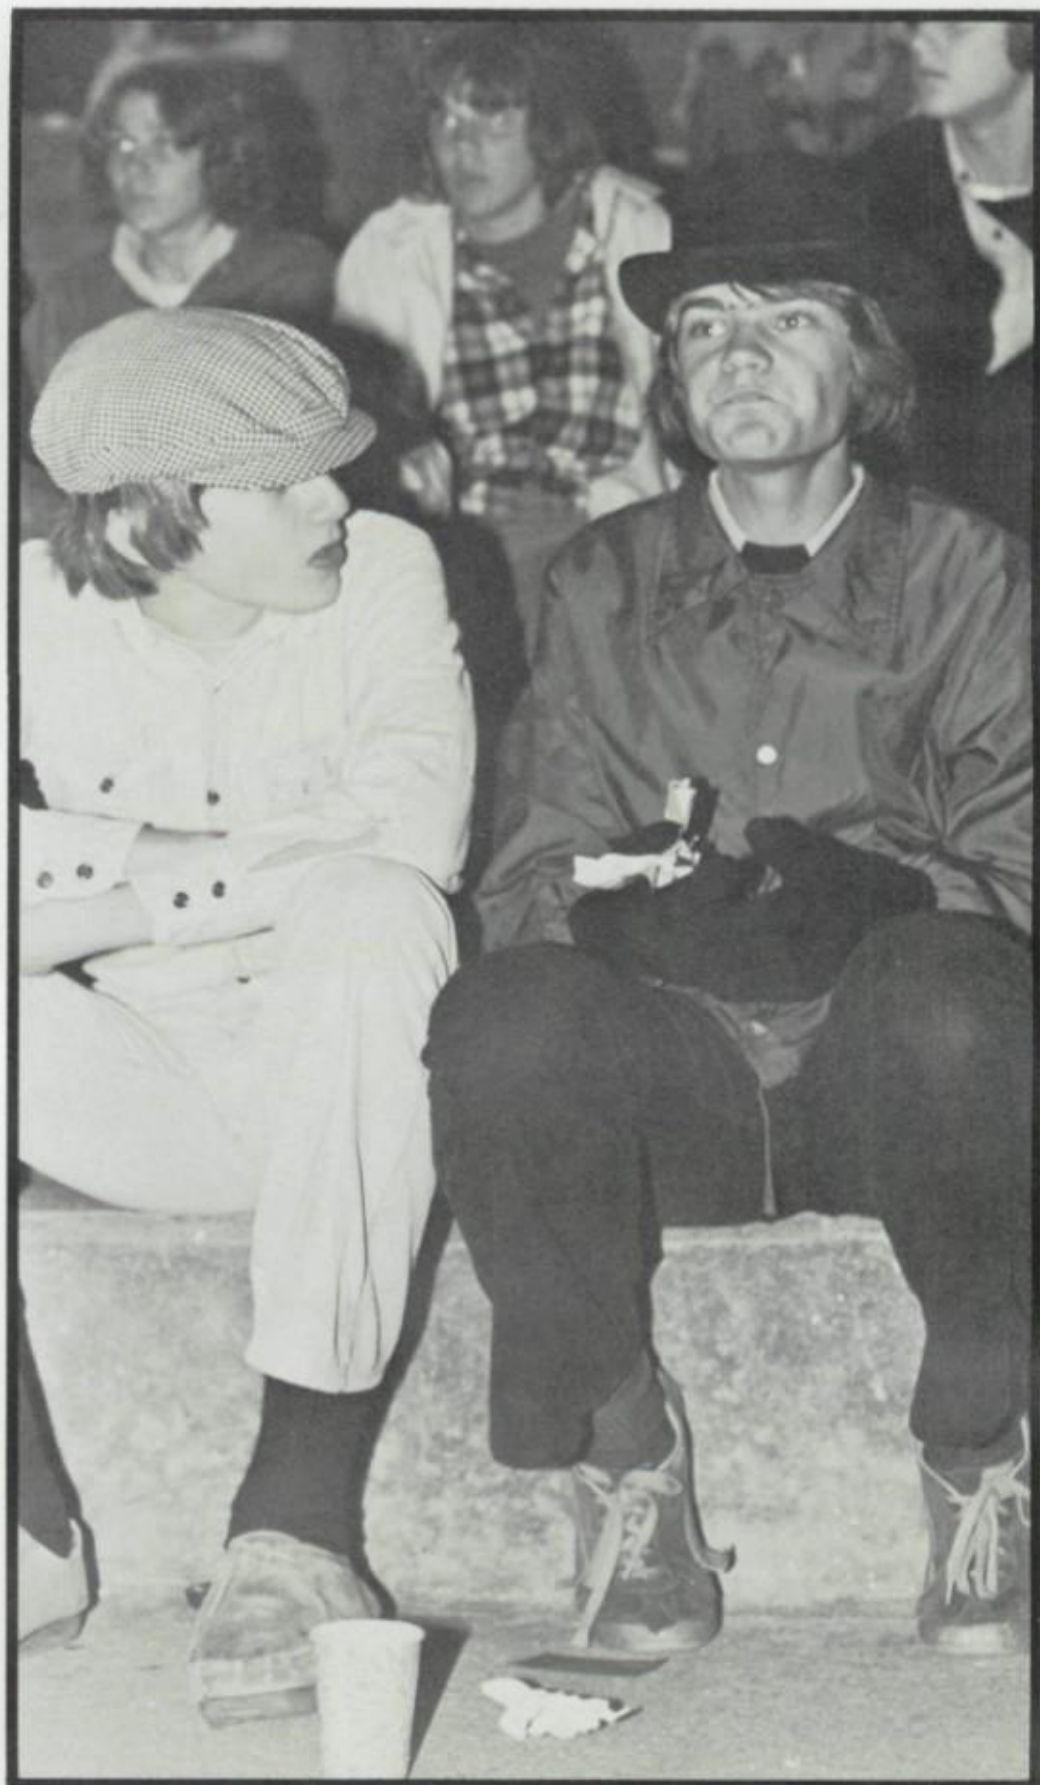

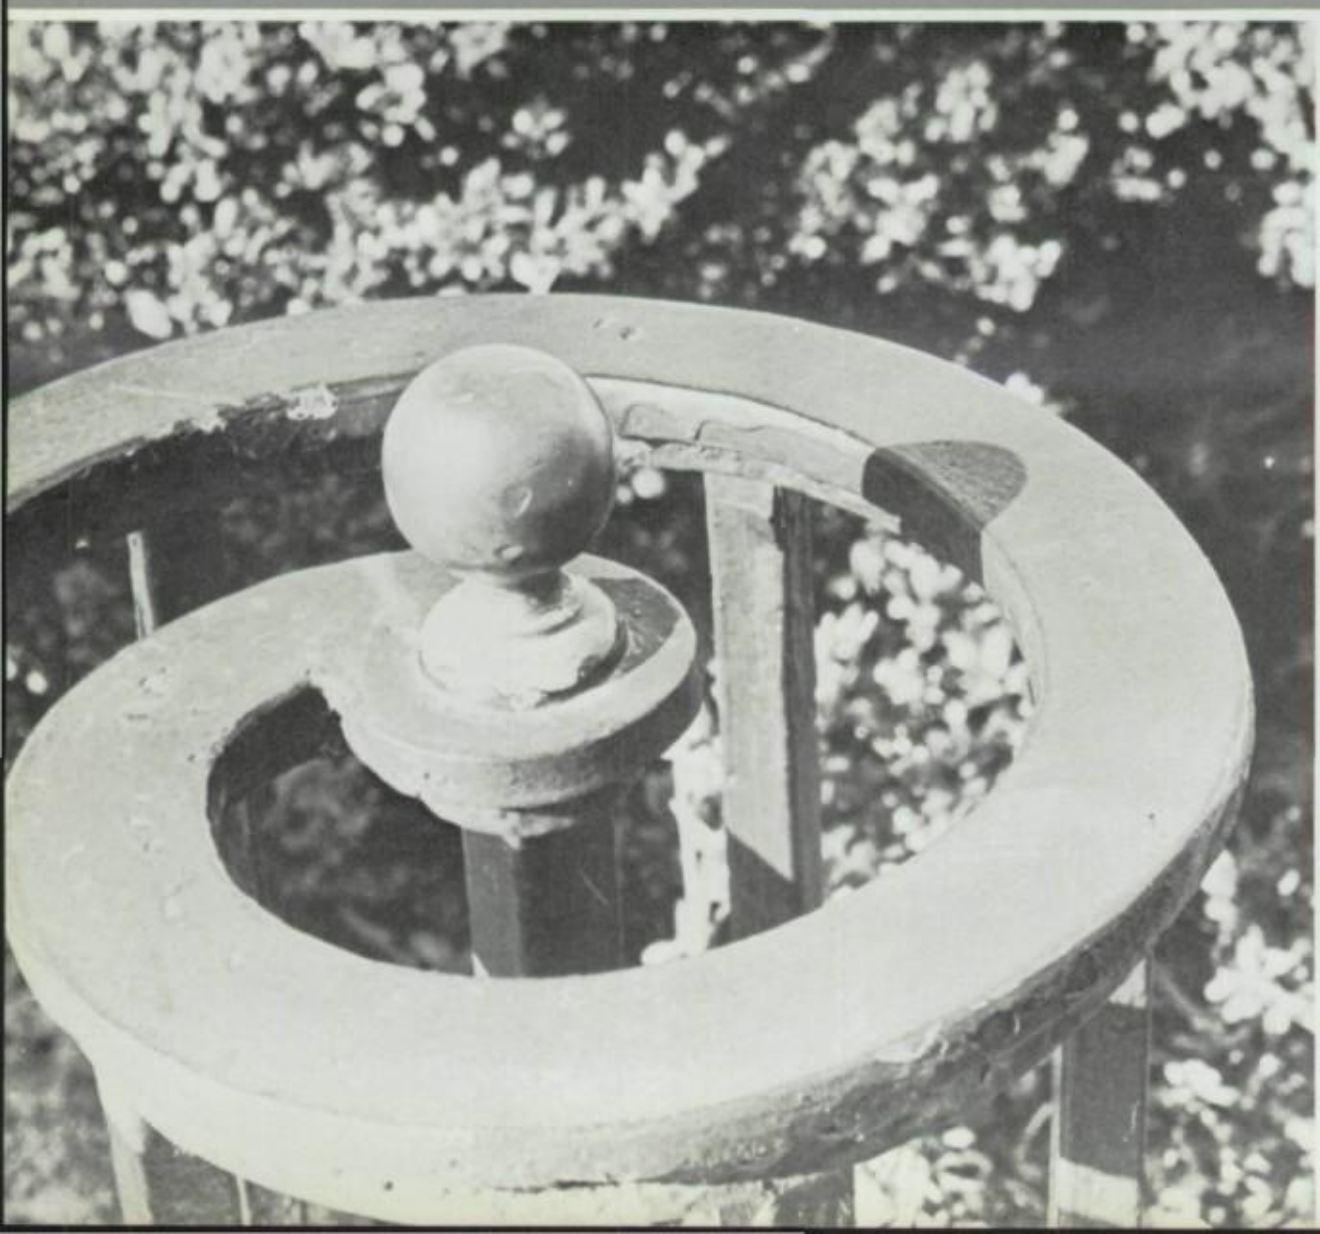

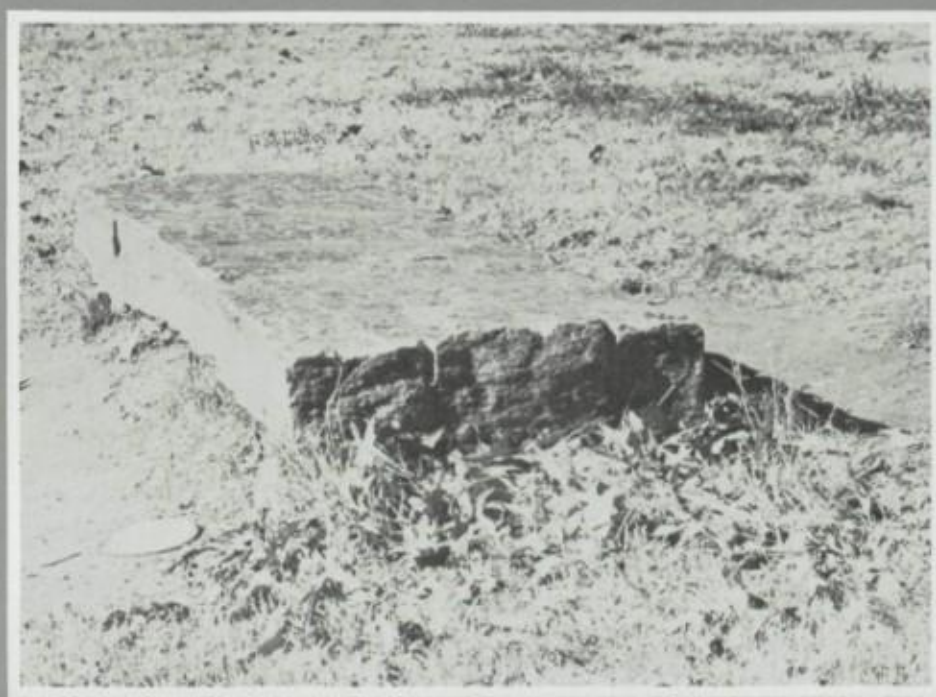

A mere smile would suffice,
And we could make it through the first few days.
Now it is conversation,
and it is not enough sometimes,
to pass through the hours.
We have acquired too many thoughts.
We fondly recount our:

Moments spent and spared, moments
Exploring ourselves and other persons, Making new acquaintances, drifting from Old established rudiments; wild and Racy capers, making time for an Involvement in school activities. We Embrace life and our School embraces us.

Let my voice in joyous song,
Praise thy graces, Druid Hills!
Let my life if short or long,
Show thy traces, Druid Hills!
Let my life reflect thy glory,
Let my life repeat thy story,
Crowning thee with more renown,
Crowning thee with more renown.

Join my voice and soul and heart,
All who love thee, Druid Hills!
So that even when we part,
Spirit of thee, Druid Hills!
Binds us brother as to brother,
Binds us closely to each other,
Hail to thee, O Druid Hills!
Hail to thee, O Druid Hills!

INFLUENCES

A local affair, a midnight pizza, a day with a friend, a romp at Candler — these are but a few of the influences that touch our lives daily. We are persuaded to join the ranks but must contend with our own thoughts of individuality. We are influenced by the pull of a thousand different moods and reasons. Our actions and inactions are under constant scrutiny by OUR peers and THEIR peers. And we yield to these influences, yes, but we are not powerless against the pressure. The causes are external and the effects internal—designed to modify the spirit and soothe the soul.

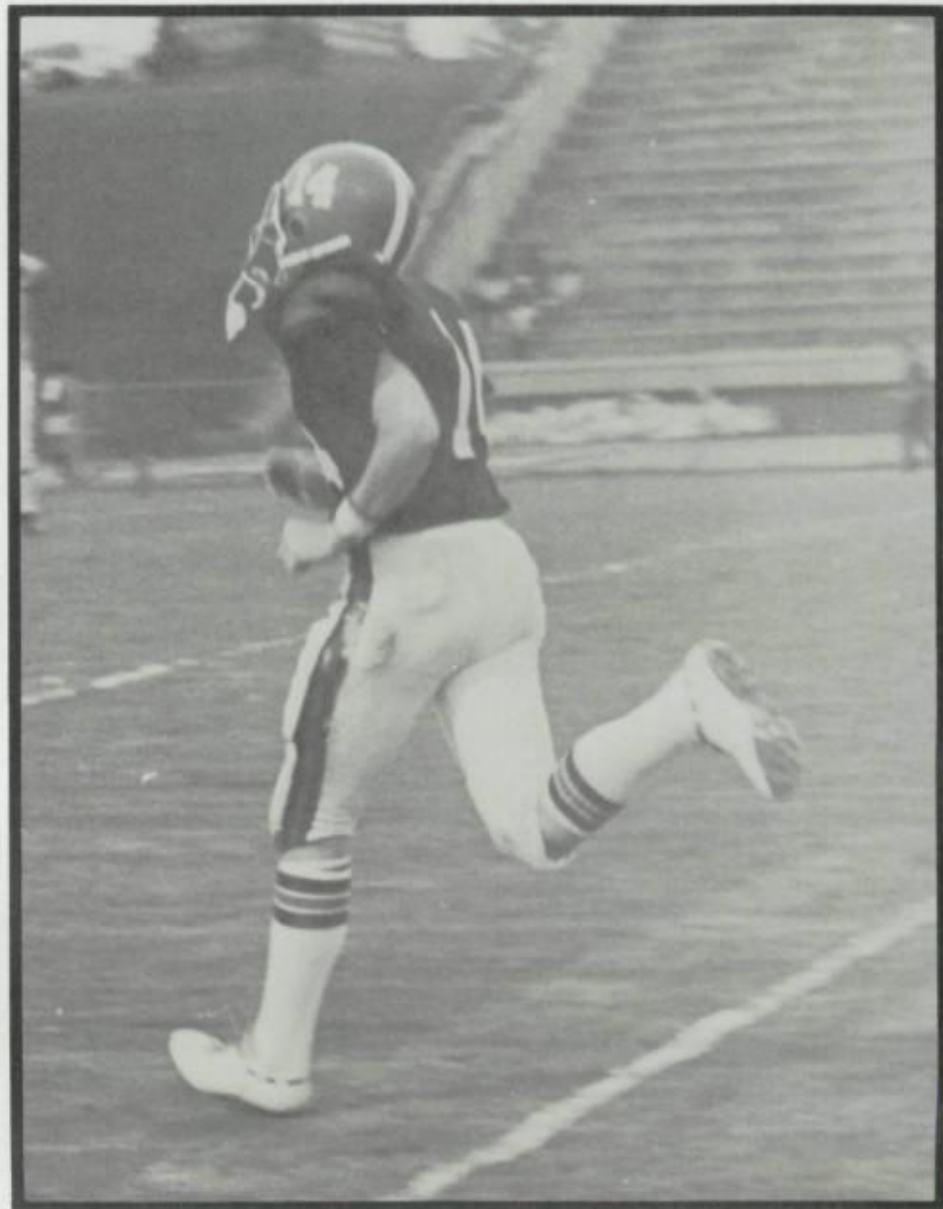

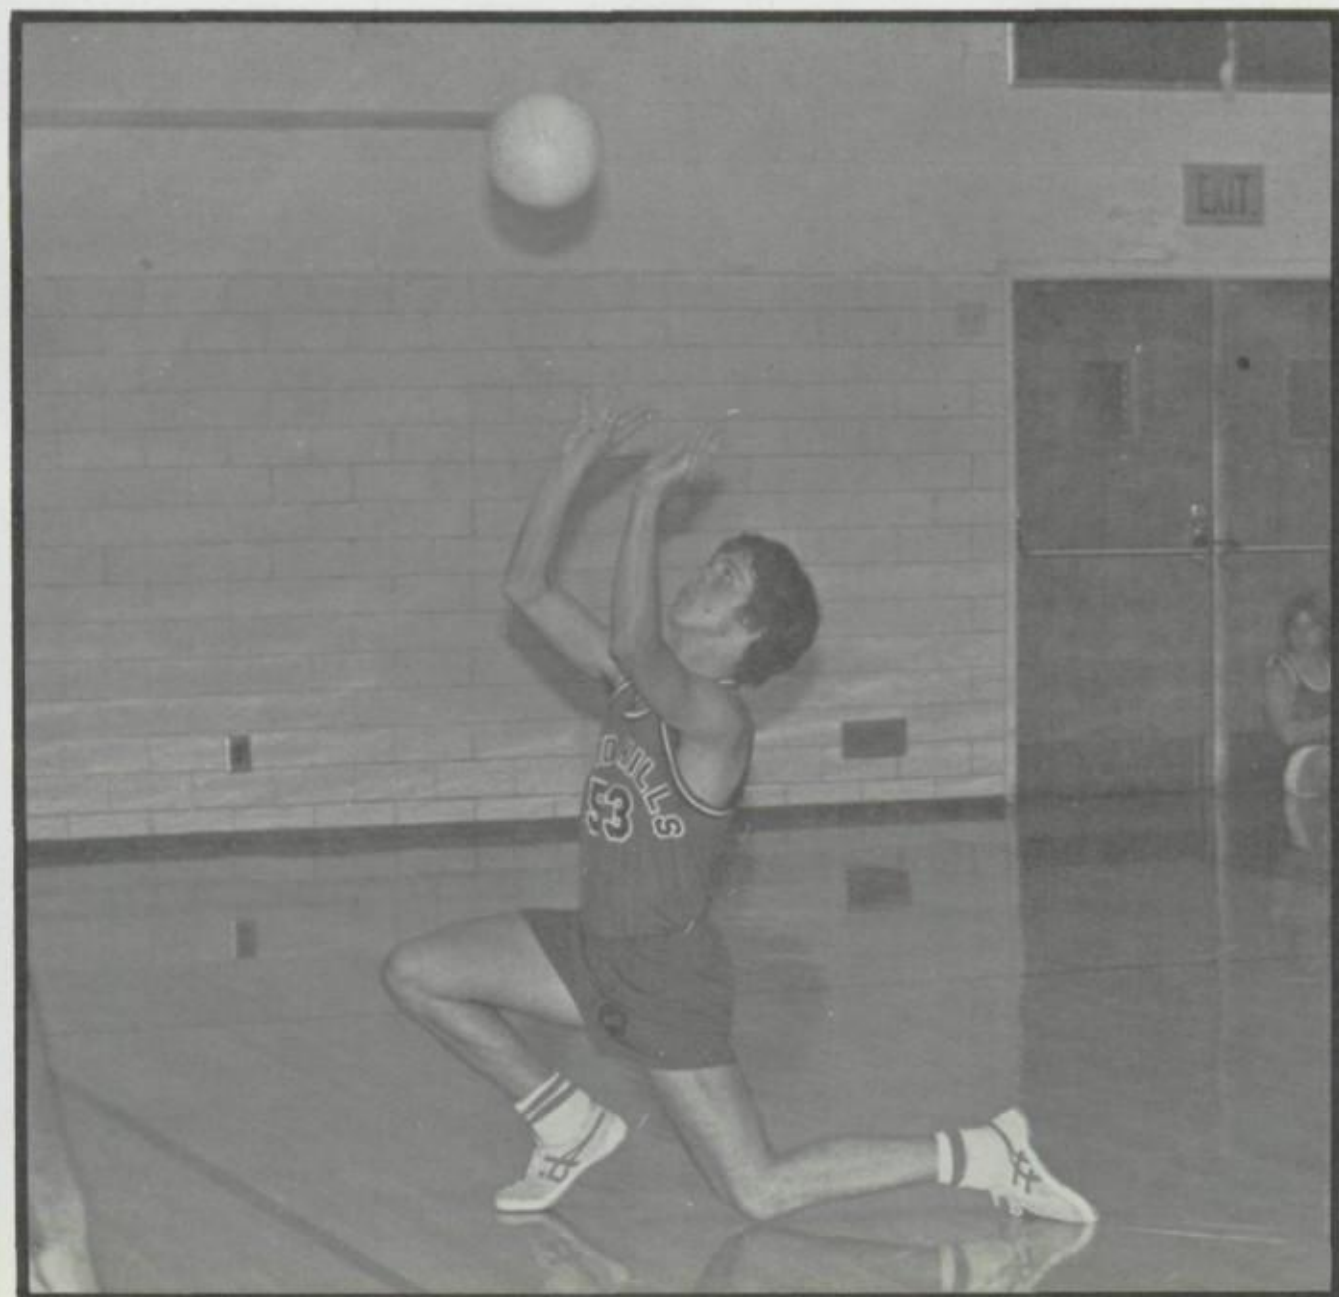

THE WORLD IS A STAGE

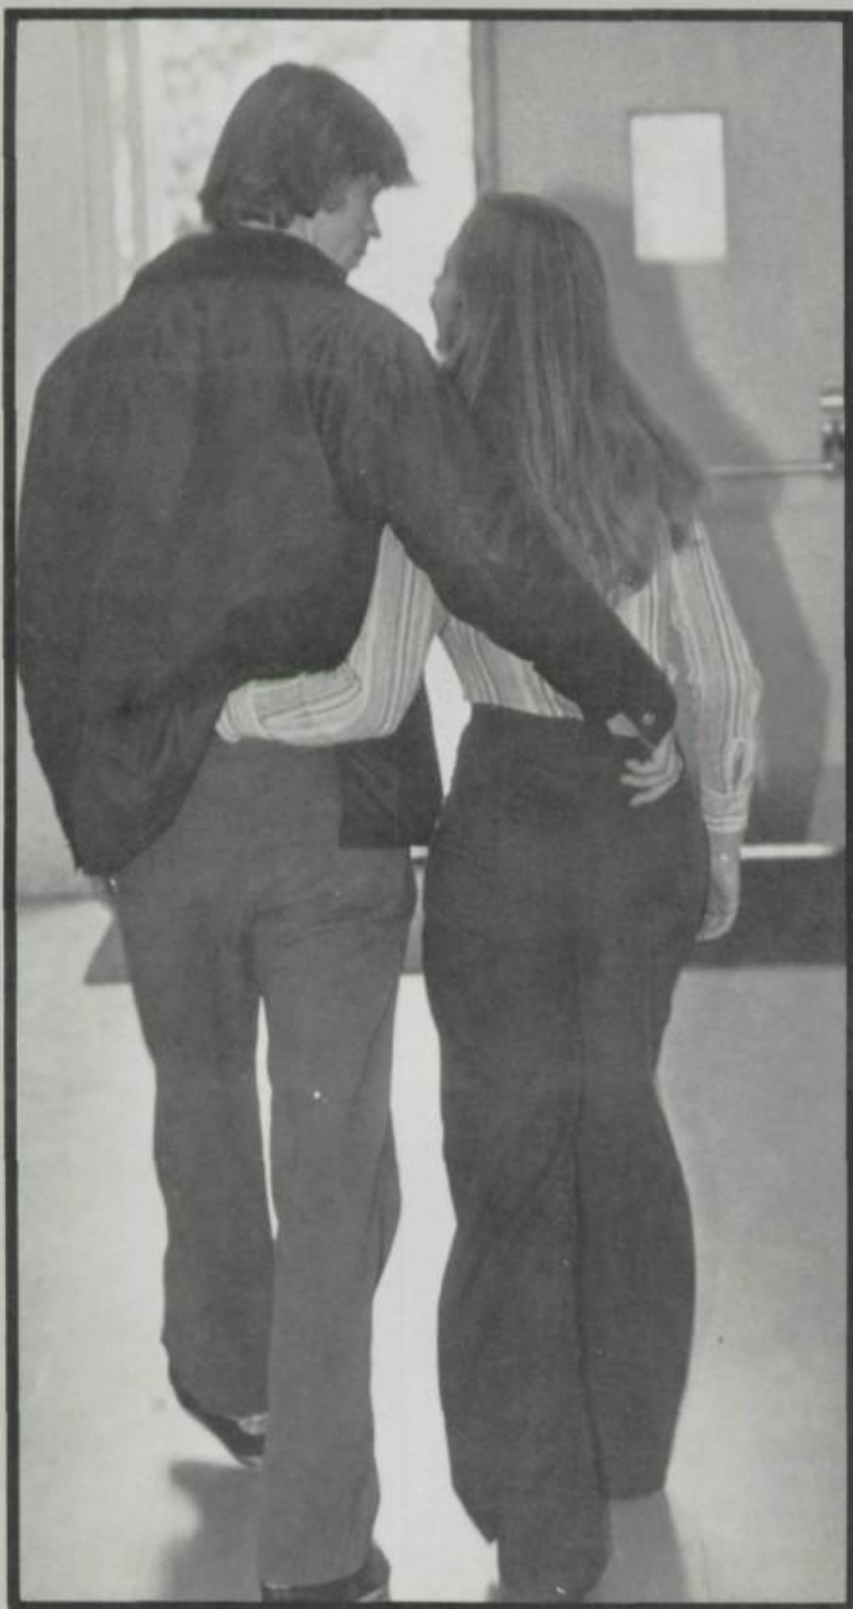

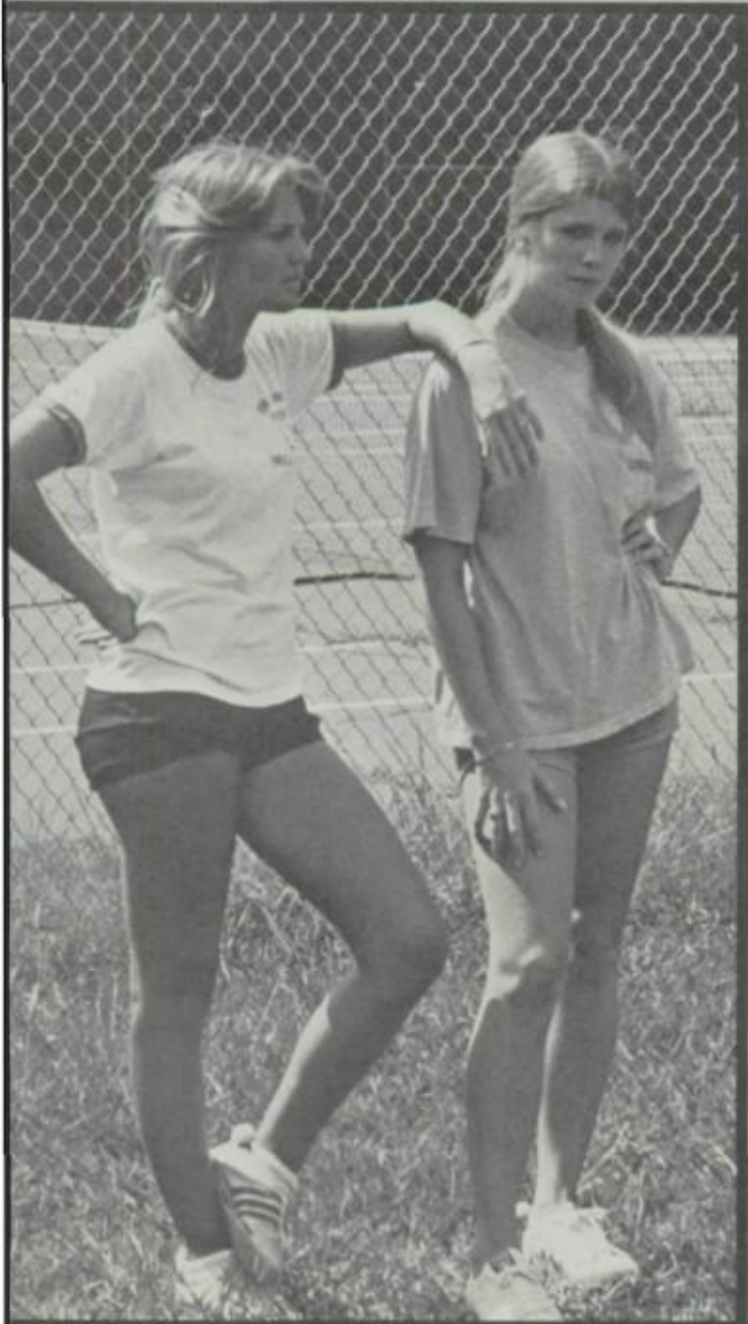

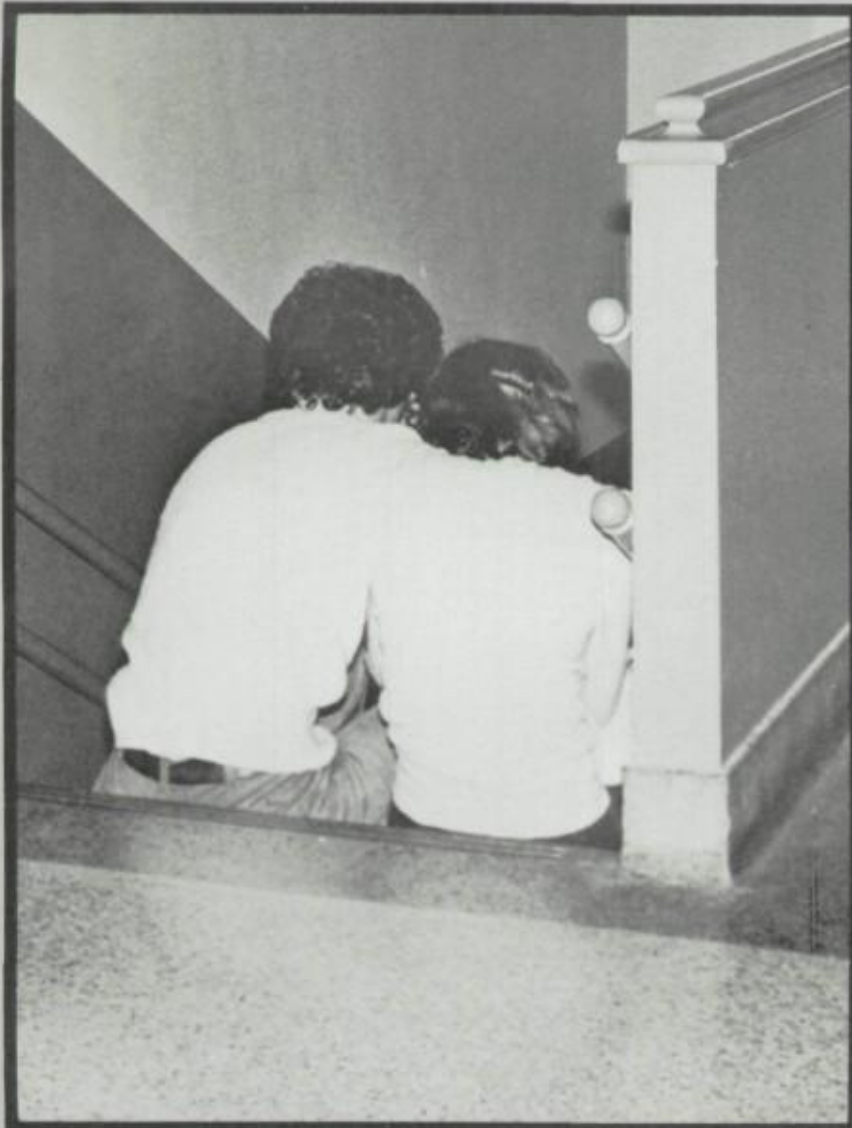

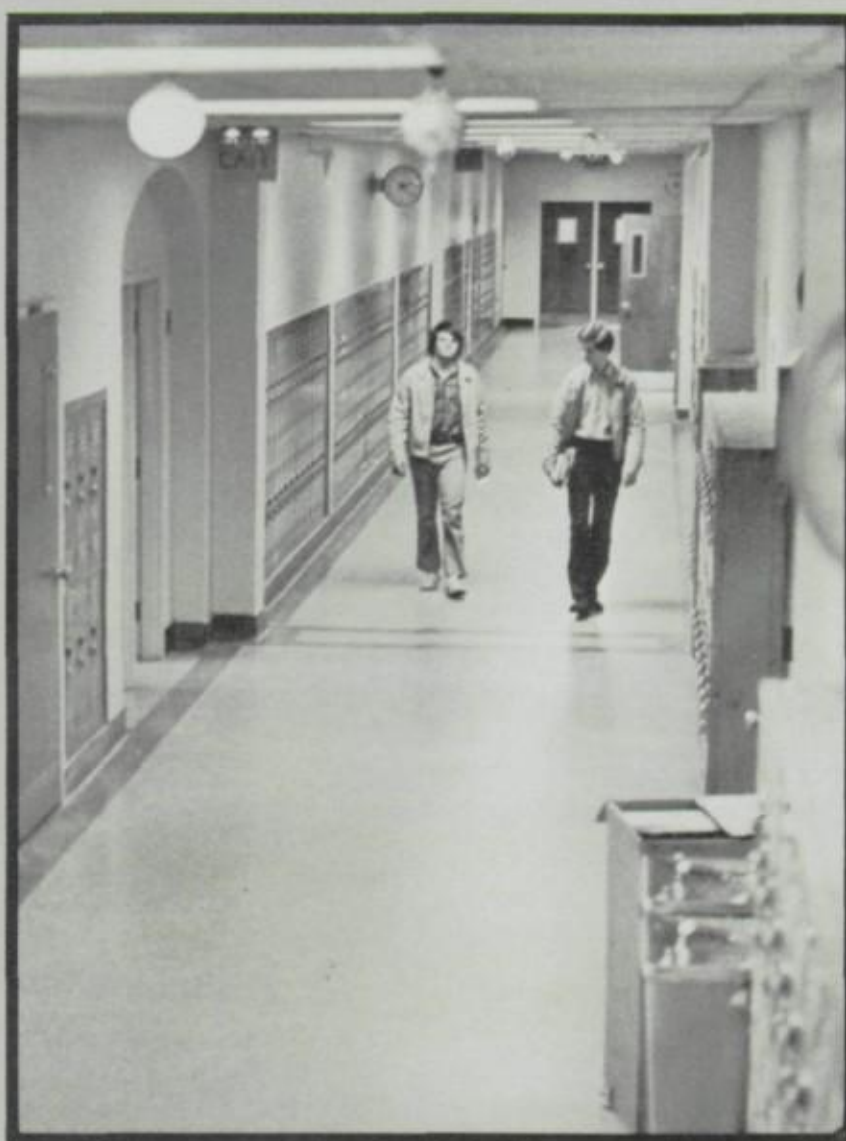

You've got a friend

Friends are those with whom we share all those things of which we care.
We talk, we laugh, we mess around;
feeling, learning all we've found.
Those times of hardship we can't ignore, without our friends we'd be no more.
But most of all we must remember,
it's friends that give our life it's splendor.

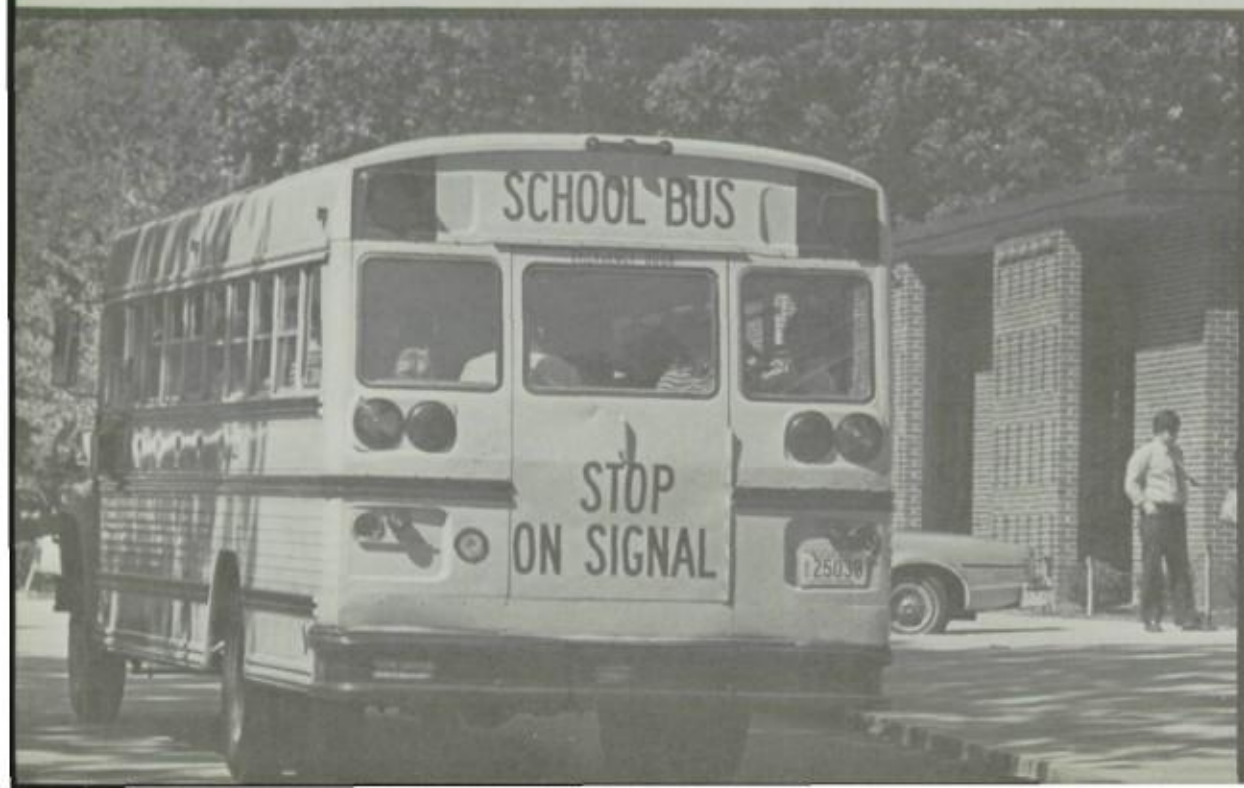

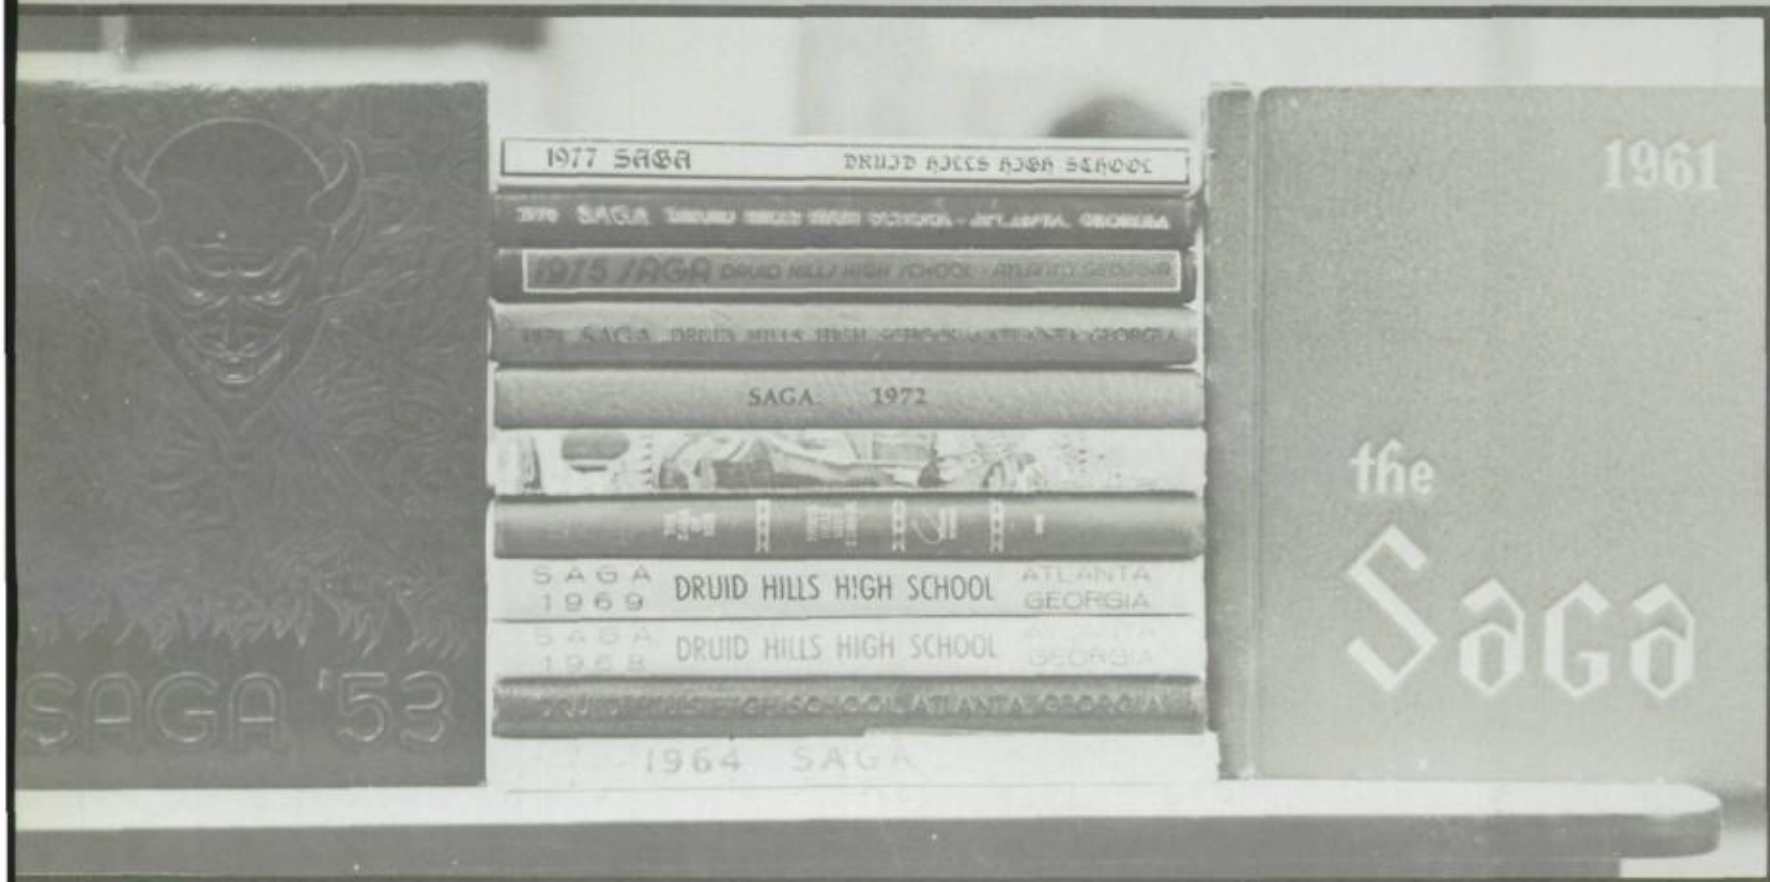

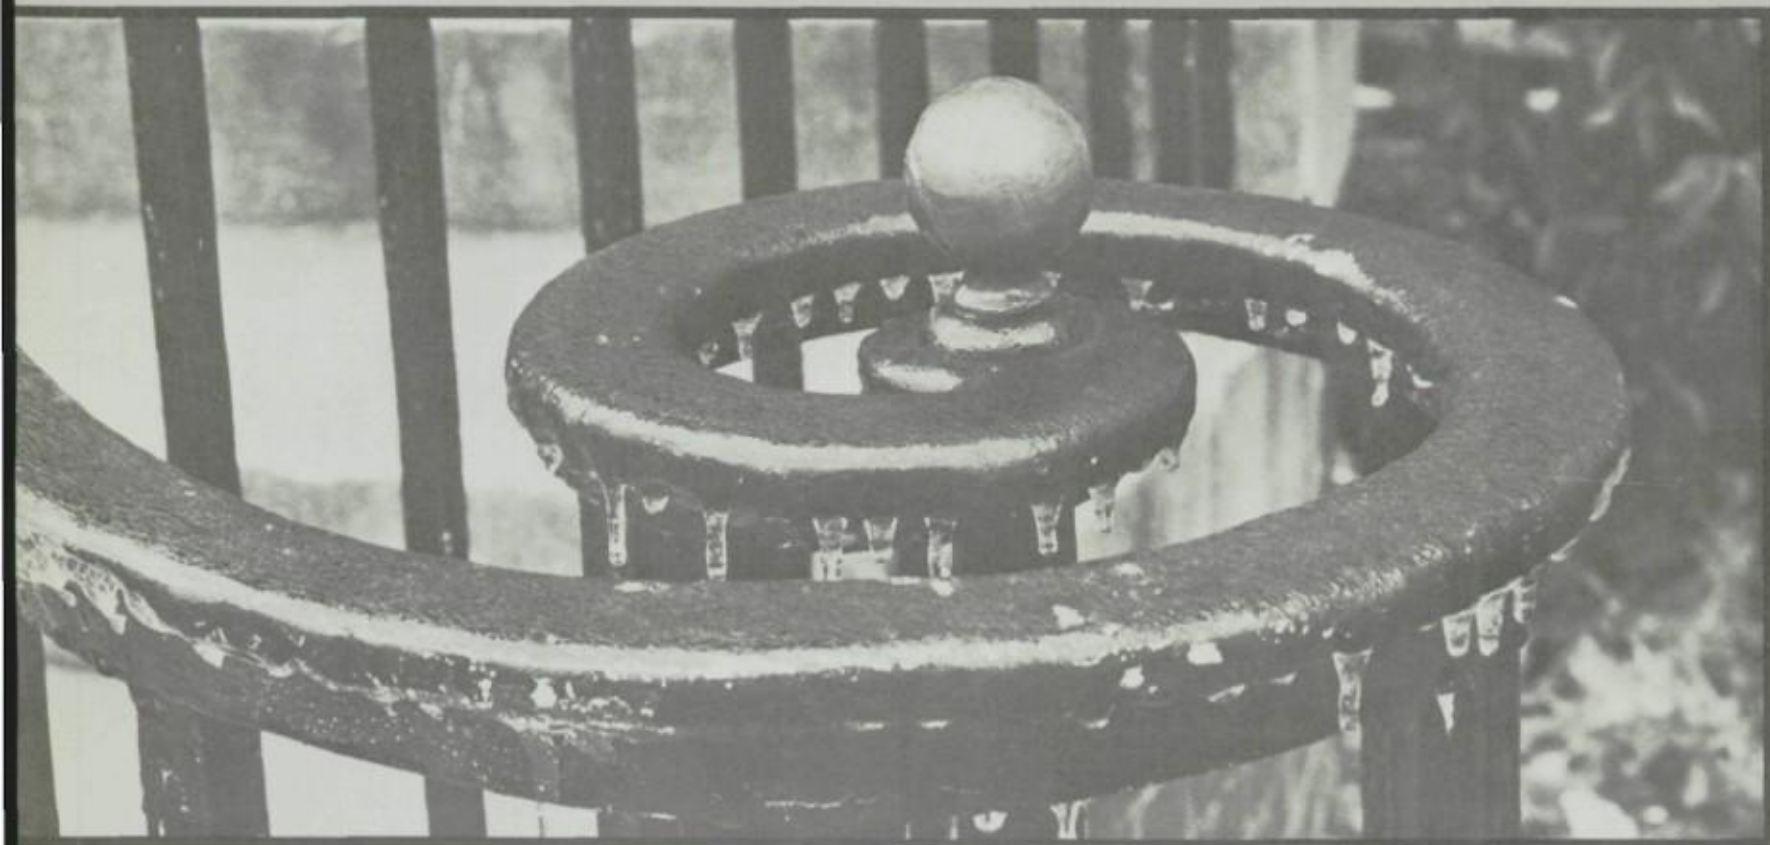

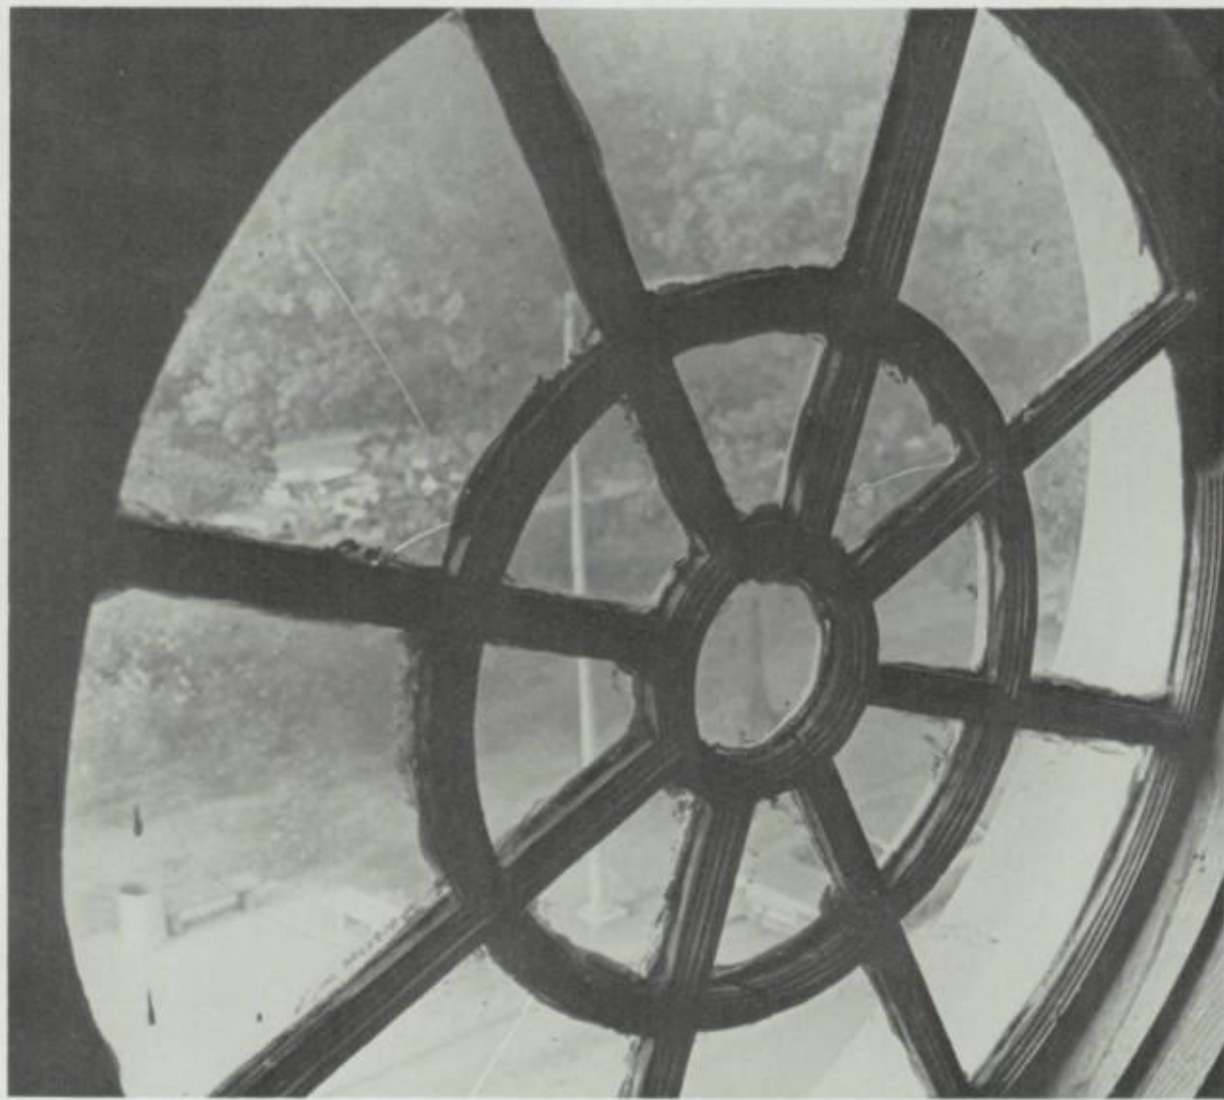

Traditions

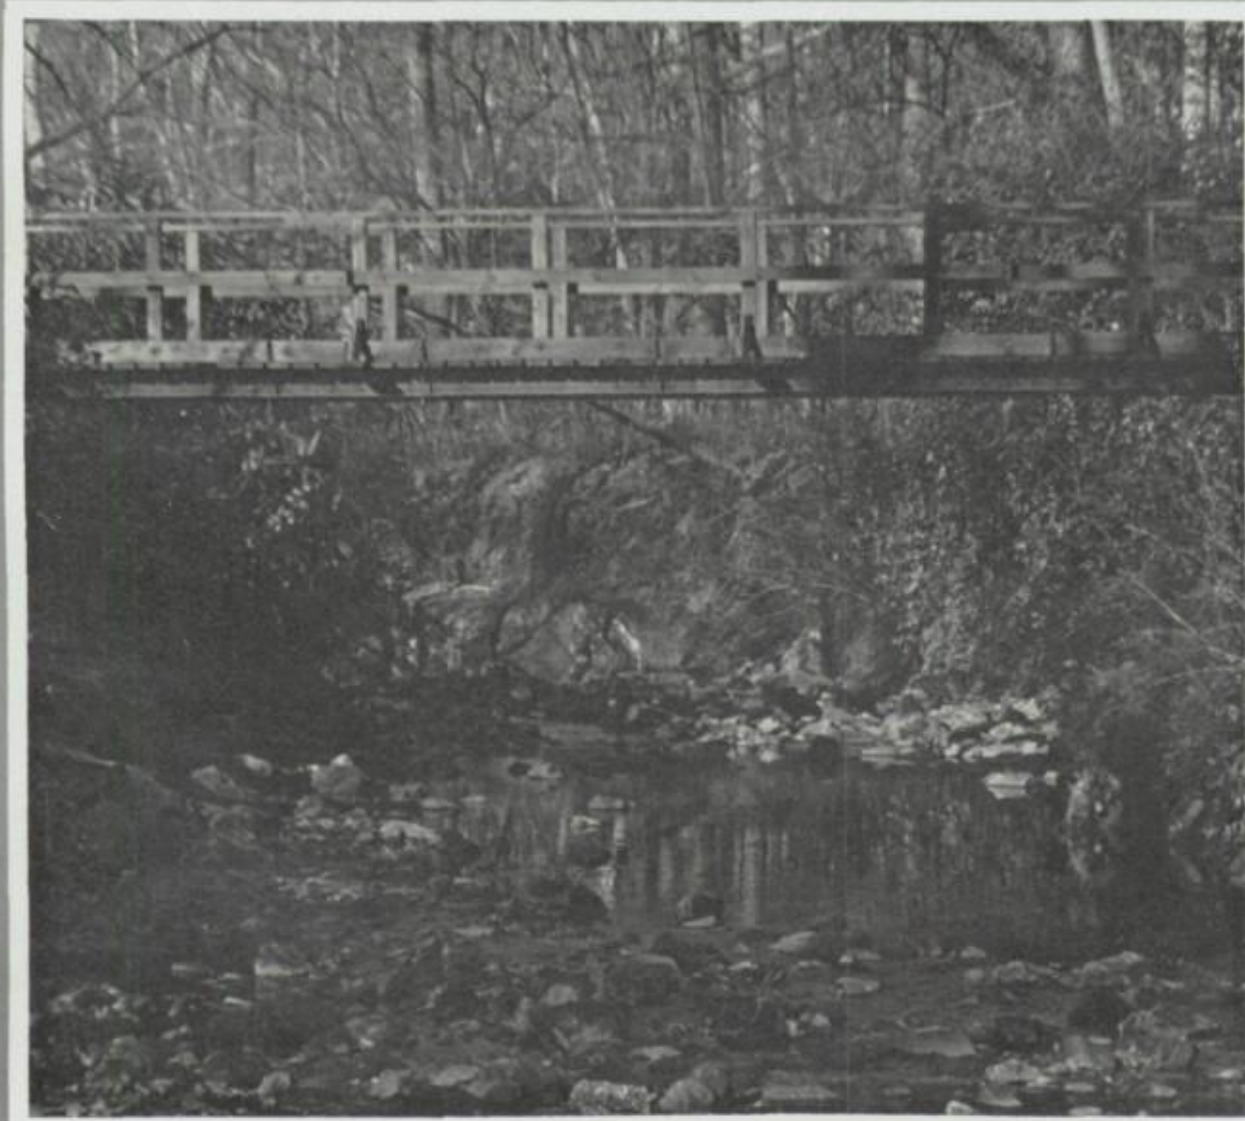

CONCLUSION

As we reflect upon these years and our environment we realize how contained they were.

No matter how freely we learned to express ourselves, or how freely we conducted ourselves we were molded, shaped, discovered through a touch of artistry. Our reflections are not mere mirrored images, nor are they glimpses of others in passing.

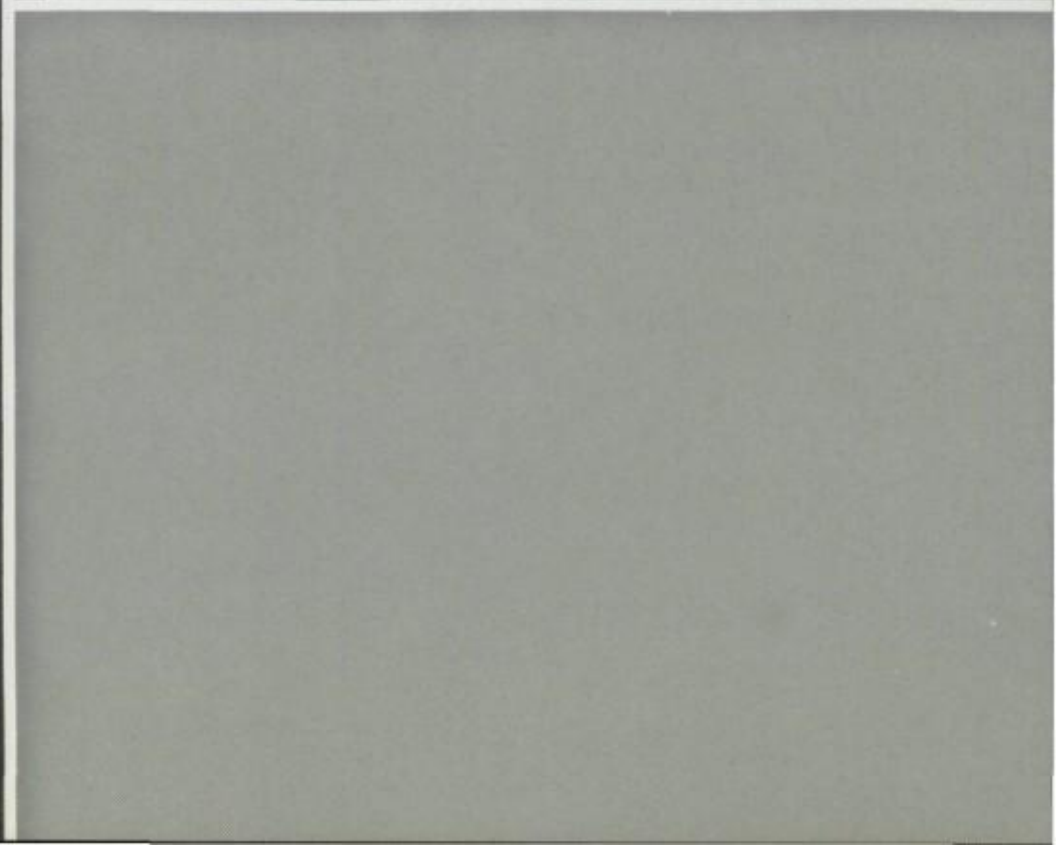

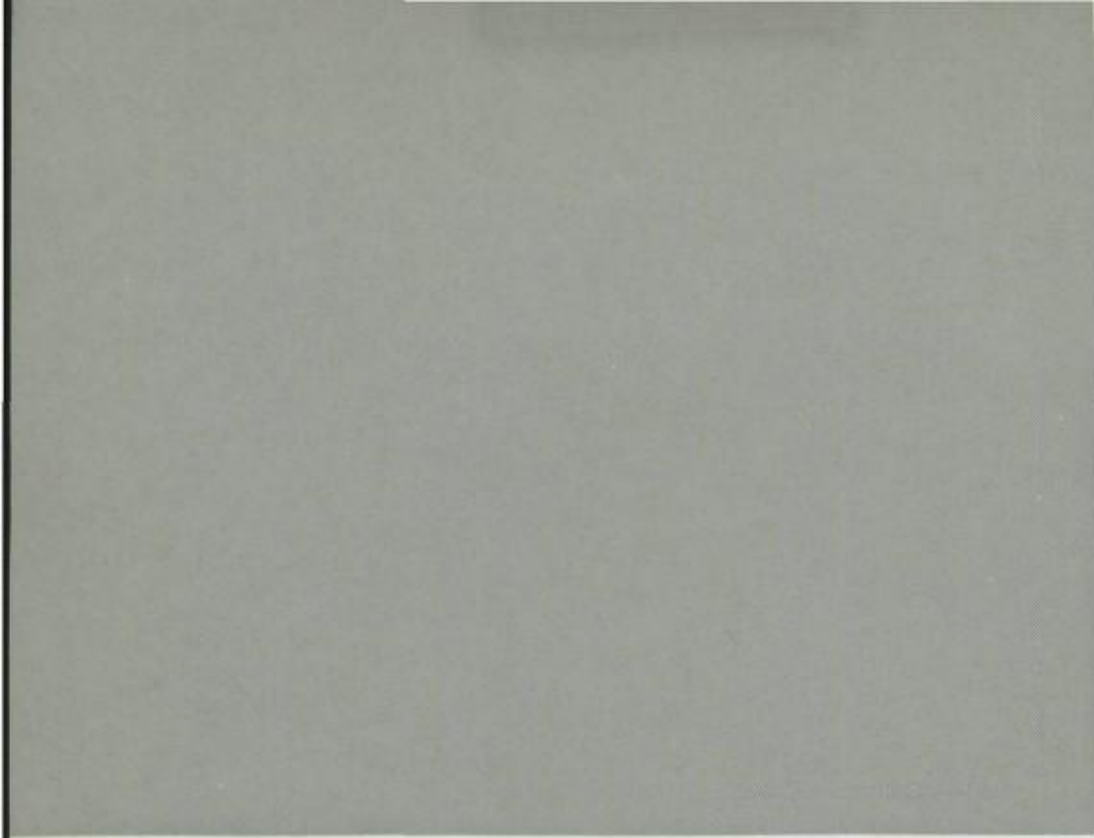

They are watered silk portraits, and we are the objects, our colors running together under the touch of youth's brush.

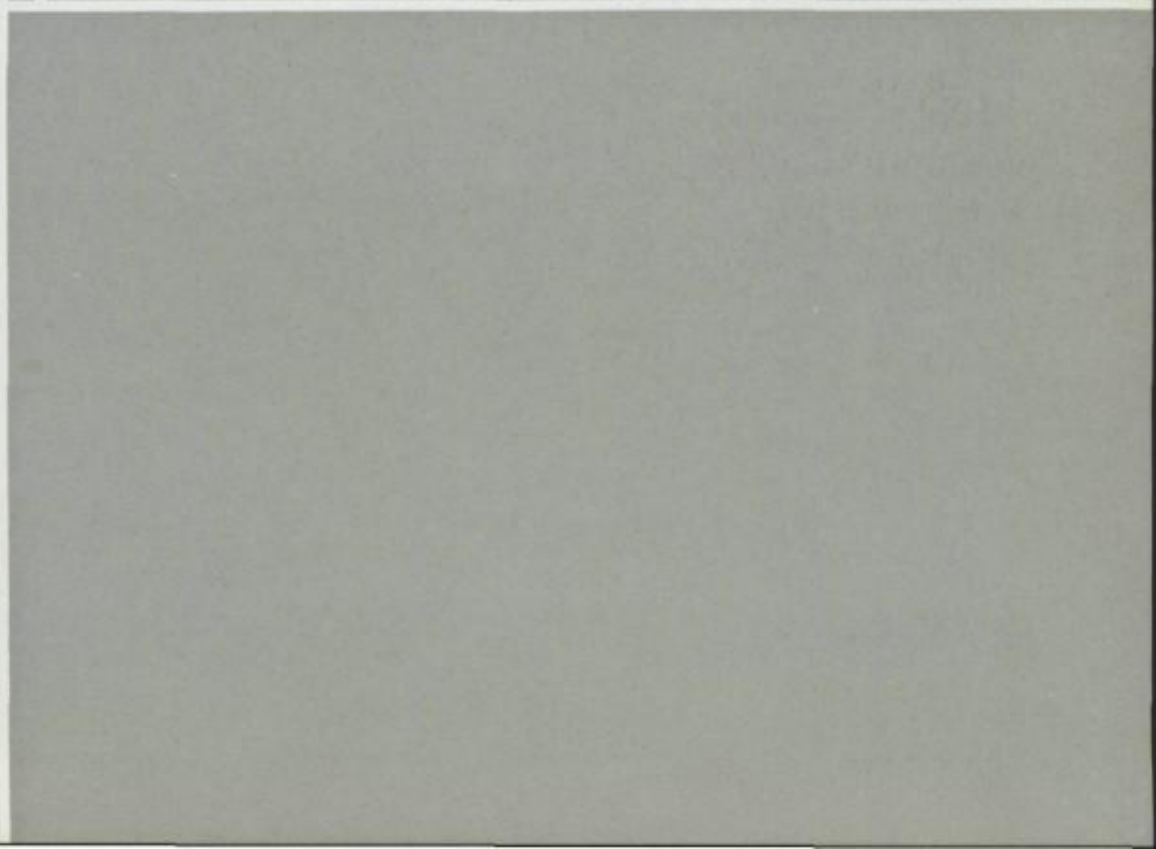

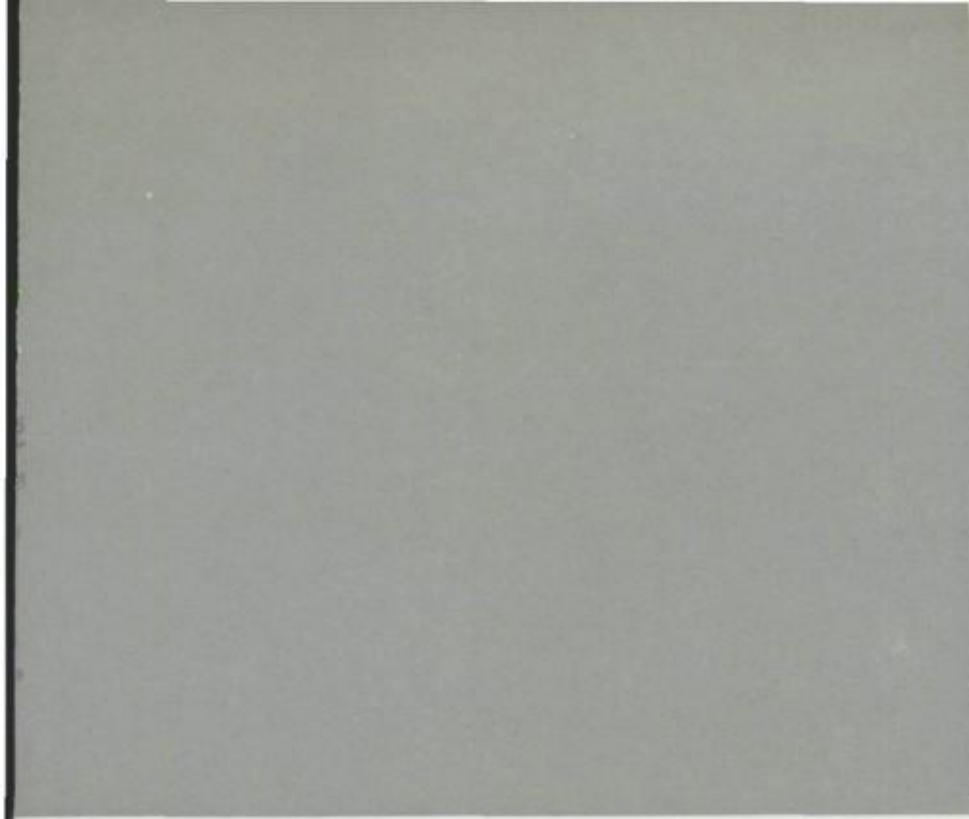

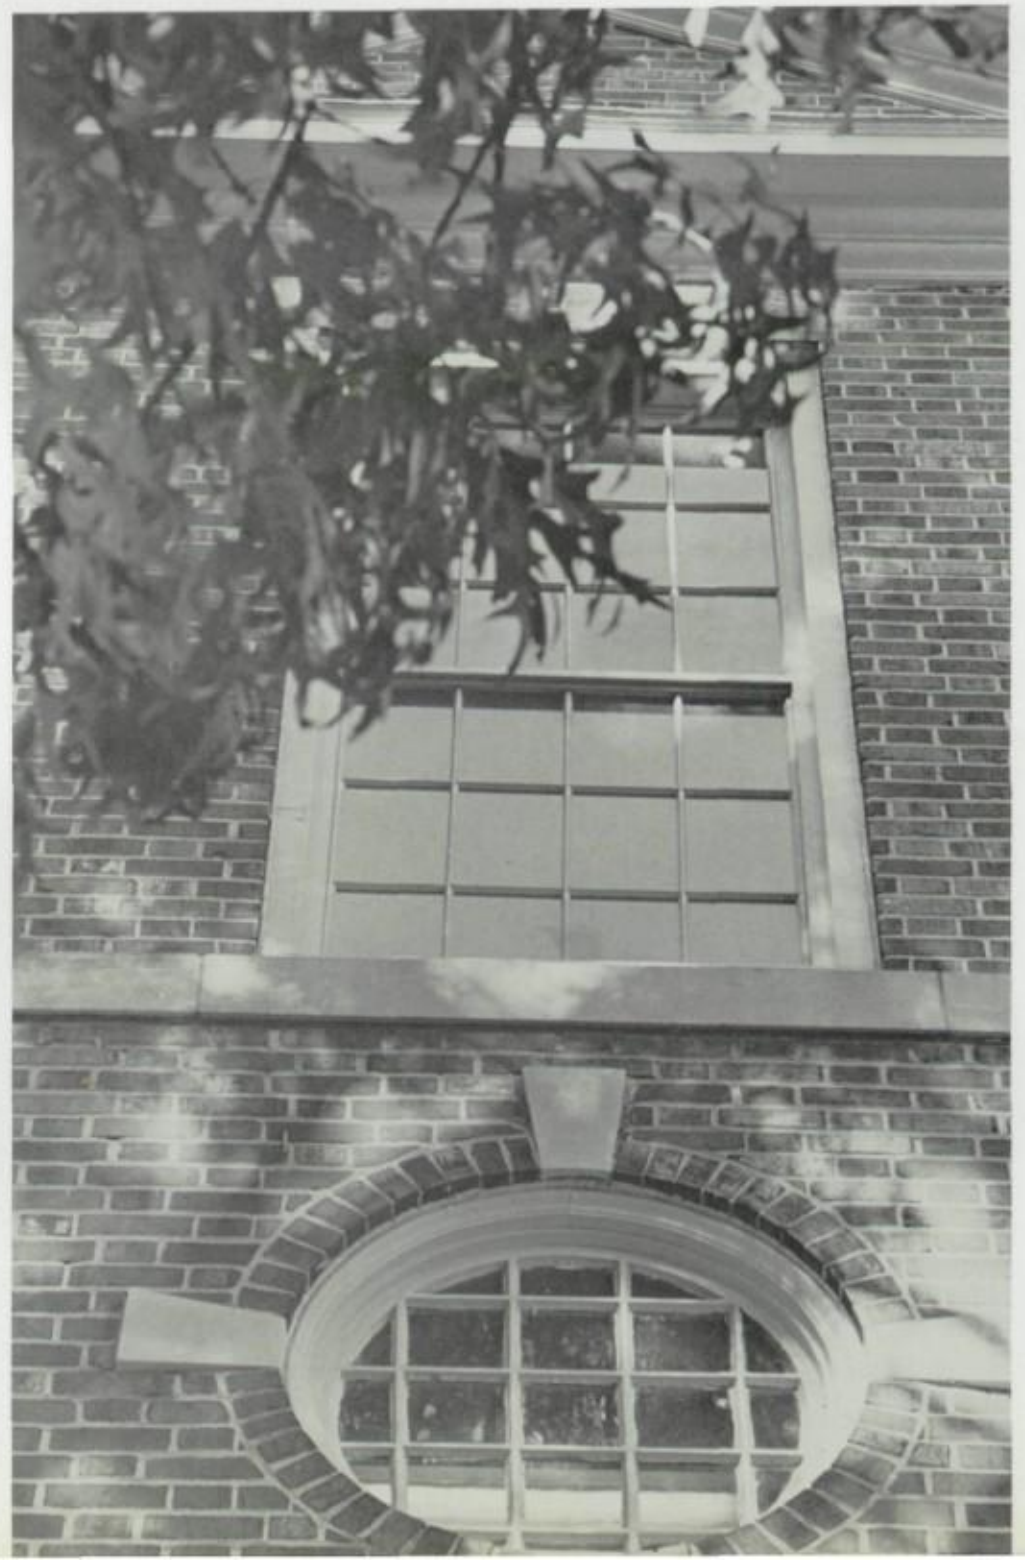

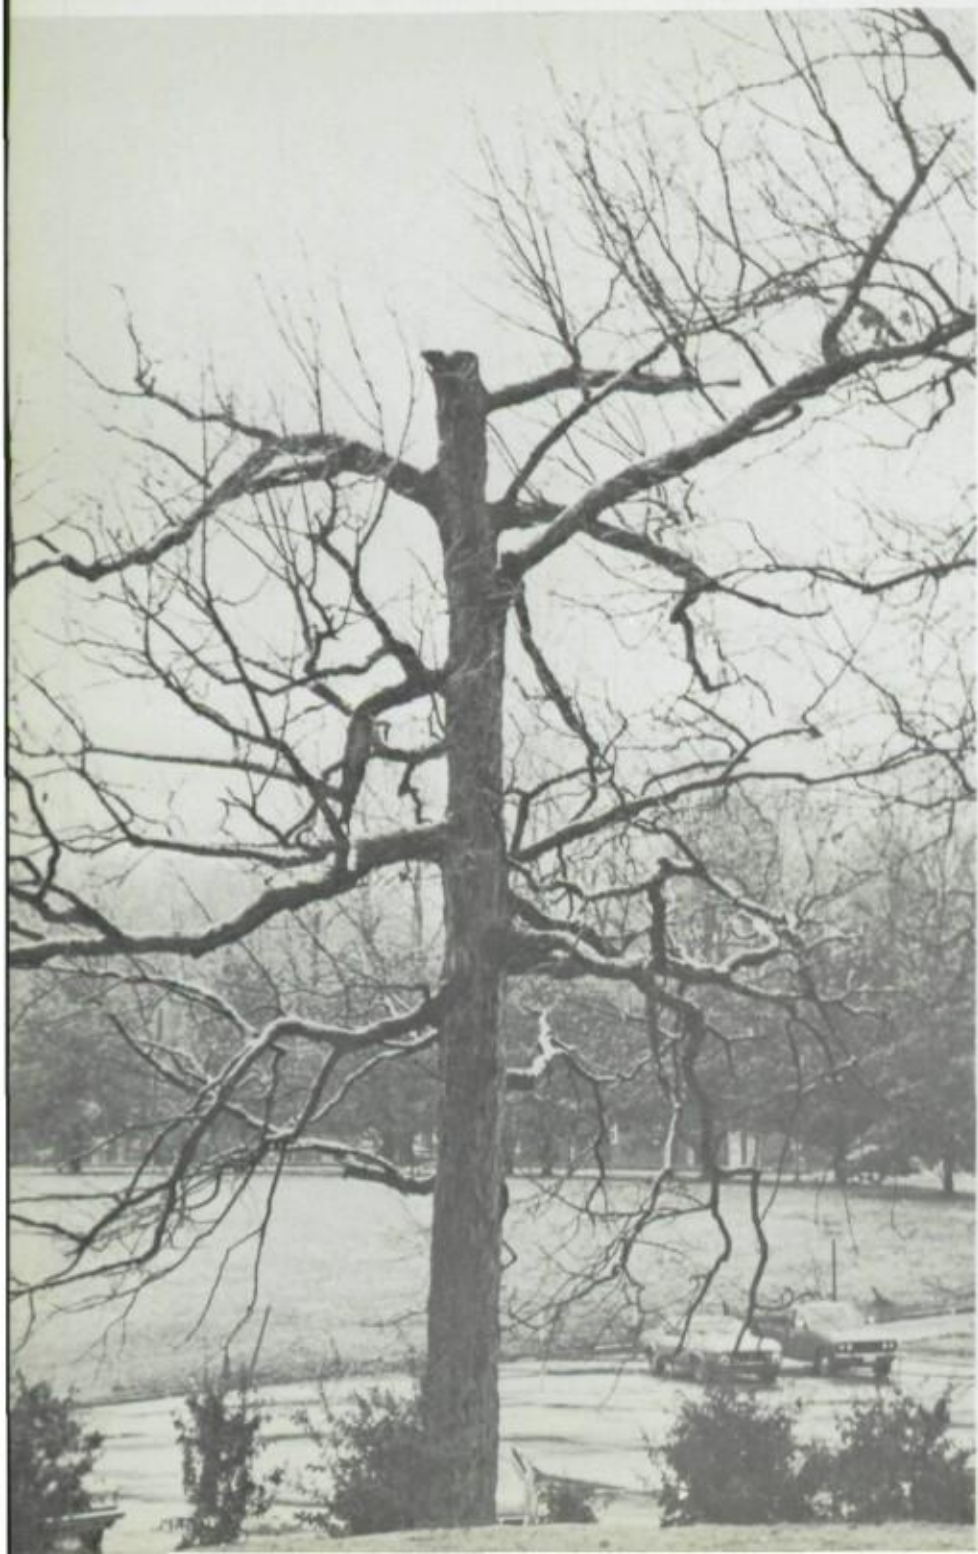

Welcome to the wild menagerie!
 Some say this is a zoo, but you and I know that we are far too cultured to be a zoo.
 I'd say we were more of a potpourri of personalities, a blending pot of ideas and facts and ambitions.
 And the pot gets too hot,
 you say?
 Well when the heat is too hot,
 get out of the kitchen!
 But it's not so bad here,
 really.
 Sometimes, I feel like another caged animal, but there is the freedom to create and imagine, if not roam.
 And when I look at all my brothers and their beautiful structures and hear their various calls,
 I realize the comforts in crowds.
 I am but one voice in this small menagerie,
 but when we all speak together
 you know we are a powerful bunch.

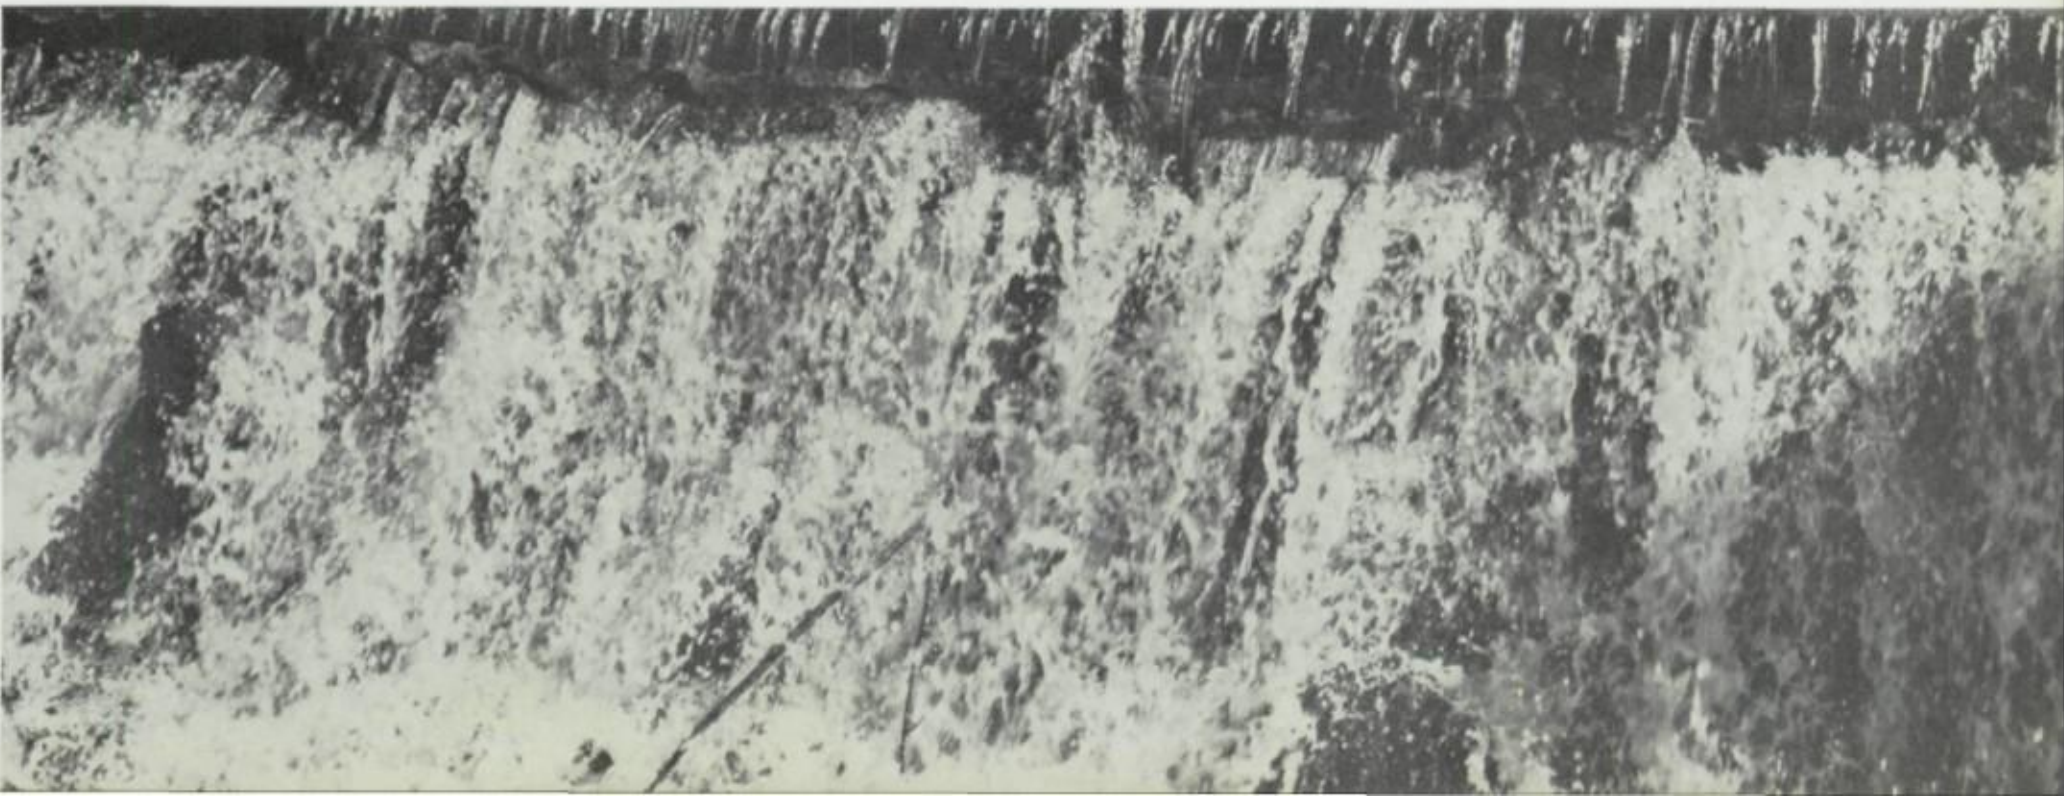

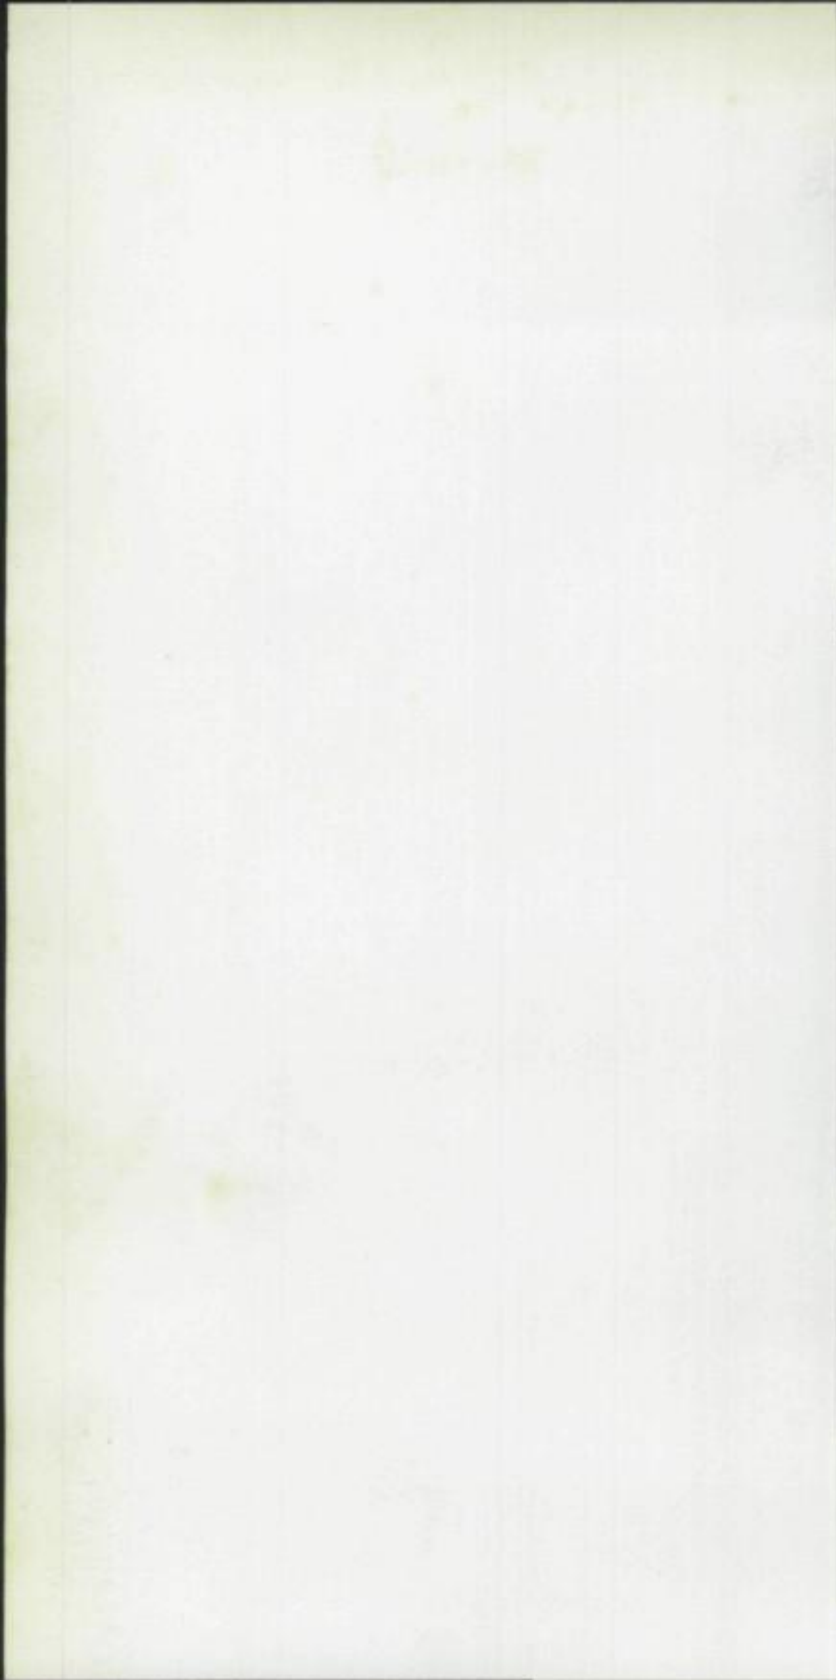

Winter/Spring
 Seasons of rejuvenation Invigorating cold, snow splashes, a leaf preserved in an icy lucite case.
 Images, crystalline images,
 water splashes,
 a torrent of energy collects,
 A reflection in the lake
 A thought melting into memories Into our minds shattered by experience, saved by memories.
 Illustrations of a student's life.

A once crowded place, now empty deserted, leaving only memories behind.
 Times to be alone
 but not lonely,
 our thoughts will keep us company.
 We fade away, forgetting our surroundings
 Imagining, Dreaming ...
 A passing friend pulls us back to reality.
 We return to our daily routine,
 But fondly remember those moments alone,
 to find ourselves.

It is late.
The buildings are devoid of sound, activity, energy. A lone figure can survey his heritage with detachment. There are no disruptions to his solitude, now, when the shadows cast soften the strong lines of the building, soften his recollections of electric blue skies on nippy spring days;
the peace and enchantment
and romance;
the structured hours of learning;
the dreaded routine;
the foundation it had given him;
the urge to get out when he was there;
the desire to return.
The figure turned away.
A single waning shaft of sunlight struck a sundial on the lawn;
Time Takes All But Memories.

Putting together a yearbook is both a responsibility and a privilege and this year has been no exception. We have done our best to capture the moods and experiences of our peers, but without the effort and cooperation displayed by our staff none of it would have been possible. We would also like to thank our advisor, Mr. Robert Morgan, for the dedication and guidance he has shown this year and in all the years past.

The SAGA Staff of 1978 presents our creation to you along with the hopes that the next fifty years will be as prosperous as the first half century that Druid Hills has seen.

Mike,
Well I can't believe this year is almost over, it's gone by so fast, and I really enjoyed spending that last period of the day talking to you. I hope we have more classes together next year, that way we can get to know each other better. Play good Friday night, I'll be watching you. Have a good summer.
Stay as nice as you are and don't change.

Love,
Eleonor P.
(P.H. P.H.)

Mabel,

After not seeing you much last year it was nice being in some classes with
you. Can't take that wrong, it would have been much even if I had seen you a lot last year. I hope you make it through with Mrs. Wright.
Didn't you love 12th period? of course so did
I. Have a good summer & take care of yourself.
See you in the fall.

Love

Carolyn
